Mattoon's Dishonesty Exposed!

Expositor Meeting at Eola.

At a meeting of the Eola Printing Association and citizens generally, on Saturday, June 12, for the purpose of taking into consideration the conduct of the editor of the Expositor, on motion, J. B. V. Butler was called to the chair, and J. C. Caywood chosen secretary.

On motion of Mr. Caywood it was resolved that a committee of three be appointed to take into consideration the conduct of the editor of the Expositor, and report at an adjourned meeting, whereupon W. M. Walker, H. M. Waller, and B. Hayden were appointed said committee.

On motion, the meeting adjourned to meet at Eola on Tuesday, the 17th inst., at one o'clock, P. M.

Met pursuant to adjournment. Absent, J. B. V. Butler, and J. C. Caywood.

On motion of A. C. R. Shaw, James M. Fulkerson was called to the chair, and H. N. V. Holmes was appointed secretary.

The committee having under consideration the conduct of the editor of the Expositor being called upon to report, presented the following, which was unanimously adopted:

The undersigned committee appointed to investigate the conduct of the editor of the Religious Expositor, published at Eola, in Polk County, beg leave to report, after a thorough investigation of the matter, that the conclusion is irresistibly forced upon them that C. H. Mattoon had no authority under the original articles of agreement of the Eola Printing Association, to remove the press from Eola before the expiration of one year from the time it was established at Eola.

They further report that they are of the opinion that any copy or instrument purporting to be a copy of said articles, exhibited by Mattoon, conferring authority upon him to remove the press at his option before the expiration of one year, as above stated, was not a correct copy of the original articles of agreement of said association.

The undersigned further find that the secret arrangements made by Mattoon to remove the press without the knowledge or consent of the stockholders, was not characterized by that candor and frankness which should mark the conduct of a Christian or a gentleman.

They are also of the opinion that the editor of the Expositor was bound by justice, equity and honor to refund the money of those who subscribed merely upon local considerations and paid in advance.

W. M. WALKER, B. HAYDEN, H. M. WALLER. } Com.

A. C. R. Shaw introduced a series of resolutions; after some discussion, the meeting adjourned, with the understanding that the chairman, James M. Fulkerson, should notify C. H. Mattoon, Editor of the Expositor, of the charges made against him, and request his attendance at the next meeting, to be held at Eola on Tuesday, July 29th, 1856.

Met pursuant to adjournment, J. B. V. Butler in the chair, H. N. V. Holmes Secretary.

Mr. Shaw asked leave to withdraw the resolutions introduced by him—leave was granted. Whereupon, Mr. Shaw introduced the following resolution:

Resolved, That the proceedings of the meetings be signed by the President and Secretary, and copies be furnished to the Statesman, Advocate, Argus, Oregonian, Standard, Times and Sentinel, with request that they publish. Adjourned.

J. B. V. BUTLER, Ch'n.
H. N. V. HOLMES, Sec'y.

Particulars of the Battle of Grand Ronde.

[From the Correspondence of the Oregonian.]

The Indians were not expecting to be attacked in that quarter, as Maj. Layton and Capt. Goff had an engagement with them on the 15th of July, on Burnt river, about 40 miles southwest of the Grand Ronde.—When we came close up to the Indians our Indian guide, Capt. John, spoke to a chief who shook hands with him and told him to speak good for them, the chief at the same time was riding a fine horse dressed off in war style, displaying the scalp of a white man on the top of a polo, and his warriors were going through their war dance, and crying out at the same time, to shoot Capt. John our guide. Col. Shaw knew in an instant, from his complete knowledge of the Indian character, that they were trying to deceive us, and that they wanted time to drive off their stock, and made the necessary arrangement for an attack, which was done in gallant style, company's K and N guarding the pack train under the command of Lieuts. Williams and Wait. The charge was made by detachments from the following companies:—Co. A, Lieut. Bennington, Co. C, Capt. B. L. Hanness, Co. D, Lieut. Powell, Co. J, Capt. Miller under the command of Col. Shaw. When the order, forward! was given, it was answered by a shout from the whole line. We started at a fast gallop and nothing could be seen but retreating Indians and a cloud of dust; after traveling about half a mile from where we started in the charge, the prairie was literally covered with Indian food and clothing, ammunition, guns, pistols, axes, nets, and buffalo robes, with horses yet unpacked, also fine articles of Indian dress, both male and female, in a word, their whole commissary was captured. The food consisted principally of camas, couse, dried beef, salmon, peas, corn, dried berries, some flour, coffee, sugar, and rice, with all their cooking utensils, consisting of brass kettles, pans, plates, knives, and in fact everything they had. Many of the above articles were undoubtedly stolen from our citizens in the commencement of the war, and from persons on their way to and from the Colville mines. I recognized a powder flask which belonged to Charles Jones who was murdered on his way to the mines last year. I also found two scalps which had been taken from white men; one of a dark color with gray hairs in it, the other light hair, belonging to a young man. I think the scalp with the gray hair belonged to Capt. A. J. Hembree, as the hair was short and of the above color—they were both buried on the Grande Ronde river. Near where the scalps lay I found a dead Indian with warrior's cap and trinkets a loaded revolver, one and a half pounds fine rifle powder, sixty-five musket balls, two dozen flints, and a pair of skin leggins covered with beads. A short distance from the above, I captured two squaws and a pack-horse; I brought the squaws into camp, and they told us that there were eight chiefs present—I do not recollect their names. I counted fourteen dead Indians on one side of the Grande Ronde river, and nine on the other, besides others that I did not see.

Maj. Maxon got separated from the main body of the charging party to our right, and got surrounded by the Indians, when one of his men was shot dead, another severely wounded, and four or five horses shot down. Two of his men whose horses gave out and could not follow, were left behind, one was killed and scalped, and his body dreadfully mutilated, the other was rescued by Lieut. Wait, who was despatched by Col. Shaw to hunt up Maxon, as the Colonel wanted to follow up the retreating Indians. Maj. Maxon reports ten Indians killed; one a chief who was inciting the Indians to fight. When Lieut. Wait was returning at night to camp he met an Indian on horseback whom he killed and got his gun and horse. The whole number of Indians killed on the day of the fight, July 17th, was about forty. Very few were wounded as it was a hand to hand encounter, sometimes the Indians and our men beating each other's heads with their guns. Maj. Maxon would have been hurt only for the timely arrival of Capt. Miller of Co. J, who shot the Indian with his revolver, and in another place where an Indian's horse got shot from under him, he discharged his whole stock of arrows at the person who was after him, and threw the bow in his face as he was despatched with a revolver. On the second day's hunt for Maxon, Col. Shaw sent out Capts. Miller and Hanness to try and find his whereabouts. They discovered two Indians on the side of the hill who were chased by five men; W. Holmes, of Thurston county and S. N. Lilley of Steilacoom, who had the fastest horses went ahead about half a mile when they dismounted and fired at the Indians; Holmes shooting first, missed his Indian, the Indian dismounted then, and shot Holmes through the heart. The two Indians then whooped and attacked Mr. Lilley, who defended himself nobly; he was armed with a revolver—the Indian who shot Holmes struck Lilley three times over the head with his gun, cutting him severely, while he was trying to get hold of his revolver he threw up his arm to protect his head, when the Indian struck him on the arm near the elbow, fracturing the forearm; he then fired his revolver, wounding the Indian twice in the abdomen, both Indians then run taking both Lilley's and Holmes' horses. Lilley captured the two Indians' horses and a gun—the one which shot Holmes was a United States rifle with elevated sights.

Col. Shaw on the third day after the fight took seventy-five men and searched all round for Maxon; he could not find any tidings of him, but found where he had a fight with the Indians, and found one of his men killed, and two horses dead in the creek; he then concluded that Maxon went into camp on Mill creek, which proved to be correct.

There has been no fight since the war commenced which has crippled the Indians so much as that on the Grande Ronde.—They have lost all their provisions, about 60 pounds of powder and 25 pounds of lead, besides all the fine elk skin houses for the winter, along with all the pack saddles and ropes, which can not be got in this part of the world very easy; also, about two hundred head of horses, young and old, besides some fine mules and a few O. T. horses; and quite a number of guns and pistols. We had no person killed in the main attack, only two slightly wounded; but Maxon got one killed when returning to camp and another beside himself while engaged with the Indians. Holmes got killed the next day, while hunting for Maj. Maxon and his party, consisting of sixteen men. When the charge was ordered every man seemed well pleased; when they beheld the Indian chief holding up the scalp of a white man, waving it about with as much defiance as the Emperor of Russia could have done, then you could have seen their excited feelings rise; when the word charge was given they started as one man, and run the Indians about eighteen miles without getting off their horses. Some of the men's horses gave out, as the day was very hot, they mounted Indian horses and followed on. I could hardly recognize the most of them when they returned. The very Indians themselves had to hide in the sloughs and long grass until night, as they had abandoned horses and squaws to save their own lives. As we went on the trail a number of dogs were found lying along with the packs of muckamuck. It must have been very annoying to the Indians to have been watching from the hills their whole winter's stock of provisions laying on the prairie, and then the unkindest cut of all in setting it on fire and in burning their skins and houses. I did not see any person present who did not do his best during the whole affair.

We had to keep a good lookout for the pack train, as the Indians were firing at us in our rear for about five miles. The value of the food we destroyed could not be furnished to the Indians short of $60,000. I think there were about 350 or 400 warriors and 200 women and children present from the amount of food found on the prairie. The two captured squaws say there were plenty of Indians there that day. We had not rations, or we would have followed them up on Snake river. We spent three days hunting for Maj. Maxon, which prevented us from leaving the Grand Ronde until he was found. The weather here is very fine, but rather too hot.

I send you a list of the killed and wounded in the engagement of Maj. Layton and Capt. Goff on Burnt river, on the 15th July, and that of Col. Shaw on the Grand Ronde prairie on 17th inst. * * *

MATTHEW P. BURNS,
Surgeon 2d Reg. W. T. V.

HEAD-QUARTERS, TYH VALLEY, O. T., July 28, 1856.

MR. DRYER—Dear Sir:—Please announce the death of Stephen Brown, member of company C, Oregon rangers. He died July 27th, from a shot received on the 26th, about 1 o'clock, A. M., from the guard, in not answering the challenge, which was given three times before the guard fired.

And oblige, J. T. BOWLES,
Com. Detach't Oregon Rangers.

☞ An express arrived on Tuesday from the Nez Perces, having left there since the news of Col. Shaw's battle at the Grand Ronde had reached them. By this we learn that now the Nez Perces profess to desire peace and not war; that they have concluded to receive from Craig the goods and presents sent them by Gov. Stevens. How long these professions can be relied upon is a matter of much doubt. If a little reverse in the fortunes of the hostiles depresses them so readily, a little success will as easily inflate their desire for war. There can be no doubt of the necessity of keeping a strong force of troops East of the Cascades for months to come if we would have peace.—Standard.

An Indian School.

Mr. J. M. Garrison informs us that while at the Grand Ronde, a few days since, he visited the Indian school, which is taught by Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, formerly of Michigan. Mr. Garrison thinks the school is remarkably prosperous, and at present gives strong assurances of success in the attempt to instruct the Indians. The school spoken of is attended by about an equal number of boys and girls, mostly belonging to the Rogue river tribes. It has been in progress only four weeks, and the pupils had not attended school before, yet they were making rapid progress in spelling, arithmetic, reading, and an acquaintance with geographical maps. They were also being taught to sing. The oldest pupils he judged to be from 15 to 18 years of age. Mary, the daughter of the well known chief, Sam, appeared to be quite as intelligent as any of them. This experiment in education under the auspices of the government, will be watched with interest. Deprecinated by some, its success will be earnestly desired by others.—Advocate.

RESISTANCE TO RIDICULE.—Learn from the earliest days to inure your principles against the peril of ridicule; you can no more exercise your reason, if you live in the constant dread of laughter, than you can enjoy your life if you are in the constant terror of death. If you think it right to differ from the times, to make a point of morals, do it, however rustic, however pedantic it may appear; do it, not for insolence, but seriously and grandly—as a man who wore a soul of his own in his bosom, and did not wait till it was breathed into him by the breath of fashion.—Sydney Smith.

HEMMING APPARATUS, S. P. Chapin, of New York City. This contrivence is an attachment to sewing-machines, and its object is to fold over the edges of the cloth into the proper condition for hemming, while the cloth is being fed into the machine. There are a great many species of garments and articles made by the aid of sewing machines, on portion of which some hemming is required. The invention here noticed, is capable of a variety of applications, and is a highly useful improvement.—Scientific American.

WHICH IS WHICH.—Recently, a mother and daughter in Albany were both confined on the same day; their babies, both boys, were placed in one cradle, and so mixed up that they don't know which is which. It is a singular and distressing case. The oldest of the women can only know that one is her son and the other her grandson. If she takes her grandson for her son, he will be the brother of his mother; or if the youngest mother brings up her mother's son as her own, she nurses her own brother. As their features develop, however, it may appear that Nature has legibly stamped the parentage of the infants; but absolute certainty must always be wanting. Were Solomon called on to decide he would find use for all his wisdom.

AMERICAN APPLES.—American apples are one of the luxuries of India, it seems. The Calcutta Englishman of Feb. 20, says:

Those who relish extra-tropical fruit, will be pleased to learn that a consignment of fresh and very fine American apples has just arrived at the ice house, where they may now be had nearly as cold as the ice itself.

THE LOUISVILLE WAR.—Prentice, of the Journal, comes down on Harney, of the Democrat, in the following gentle style:

"The editor, as we see, misrepresents and lies, and does all in his power to make the world think that there can be no security here for life and property. He is as great a curse to Louisville as God in the mysterious dispensation of His Providence ever sent upon a city. He seems, in his destructive and pestilent influence to be a combination of the lice, the frogs, the flies, the locusts, the murrain, the boils and blains, the hail, the darkness that could be felt, and all the rest of the ten plagues that Heaven in its wrath visited upon Egypt."

THE IRON TRADE.—Great Britain last year manufactured 3,585,906 tons of iron, valued at $125,000,000. This product was achieved by 238,000 men and 2,120 steam engines, of 242,000 horse power. The annual production of the world is not greater than 7,000,000 of tons; the United States being, next to England, the greatest producer, giving about a million of tons. Assuming the population of the world to be 900,800,000, the production and consumption is at the rate of 17 lbs. per head. In England the production is 287 lbs per head, and the consumption 44 lbs. In the United States the production is less than the consumption, being 84 lbs produced per head to 117 lbs consumed. According to what are deemed the best authorities, there are 20,000,000 of square miles of habitable surface on the globe, which will ultimately require 2,000,000 miles of railroad. To lay and operate this quantity will require 600,000,000 of tons of iron, the annual wear and operation of which will demand at least 60,000,000 tons per annum, in addition to the thousand other uses to which iron is applied.
