One of the finest and best equipped railroads is the Chicago, Milwaukee & St Paul. On our recent trip through South Dakota, Iowa, Minnesota and Illinois we tried this railroad and know whereof we speak. The road is splendidly equipped with fast trains, the coaches are all furnished with the latest improvements and it is a pleasure to ride with these people. They employ none but sober, industrious men who constantly look after the comfort and safety of the traveling public. Anyone traveling in the above or adjoining states should take the Milwaukee road by all means if it is convenient to do so. If you wish information concerning this excellent and popular road, ask any ticket agent, or write to C J Eddy, General Agent at Portland. Or, and he will gladly give it.—Genesee Idaho News

It gets hot up in Eastern Oregon. The thermometer went up to 103 in the shade at Pendleton Monday.

The Lakeview land office announces that the lands embraced in the Fort Klamath military reservation, the sale of which was postponed some time ago, will be sold on September 20th.

Nearly $250,000 will be paid to the officers and crews of the ships that destroyed the Spanish fleet at Santiago as "head" money. That is so much per head of the complement of men that manned the captured ships.

A circular folder comes to us from Sitka, Alaska, with the homestead laws of Alaska printed thereon. It was probably printed by Geo M Miller as his law card, the only advertisement on the folder, occupies one corner.

Among the hops in warehouse at Salem is one lot of 120 bales of the crop of 1897, for which the grower, a prominent farmer, was offered 14 cents per pound last fall, which offer he refused at that time, accepting in lieu thereof a short time ago 4 cents per pound, a net loss to the grower of $2400.

They have genuine hail storms over in Eastern Oregon. A Pendleton dispatch of July 12 says: "As a result of a hail storm Sunday evening in Spring hollow, seven miles east of this city, 2000 acres of wheat were destroyed. Henry Pierce lost 500 acres. The storm barely missed 1000 acres adjoining. Mult Bros lost 900 acres, and W Henderson, B F McElroy and D H Nelson 300 each. Some of the hailstones were as large as hen's eggs. The storm lasted an hour. Tumble weeds were cut to pieces."

"A word to the wise is sufficient" anda word from the wise should be sufficient, but you ask, who are the wise? Those who know. The oft repeated experience of trustworthy persons may be taken for knowledge. M W M Terry says Chamberlain's Cough Remedy gives better satisfaction than any other in the market. He has been in the drug business at Elkton, Ky, for twelve years; has sold hundreds of bottles of this remedy and nearly all other cough medicines manufactured, which shows conclusively that Chamberlain's is the most satisfactory to the people, and is the best. For sale by Osburn & DeLano, druggists.

Ten Cents Extra to Get Married

The Multnomah county clerk has issued a circular letter to the clergy calling their attention to the law requiring a 10-cent revenue stamp to be affixed to marriage certificates, beginning July 1. Numerous certificates have been sent to the clerk minus the stamp, and in compliance with instructions from Collector of Internal Revenue D M Dunne, these must all be stamped.

Collector Dunne has decided that all official bonds and bonds in probate cases are subject to a 50 cent stamp, according to the terms of the law. All certificates issued out of the county clerk's office, such as citizenship papers, and declarations of intention, must be stamped.

An Affidavit.

This is to certify that on May 11th, I walked to Melick's drug store on a pair of crutches and bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm for inflammatory rheumatism which had crippled me up. After using three bottles I am completely cured. I can cheerfully recommend it.—Charles H Wetzel, Sunbury, Pa.

Sworn and subscribed to before me on August 10, 1894.—Walter Shipman J P. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by Osburn & DeLano.

He Remembered.

He rose to depart as the clock sounded eight,
And getting his hat and his cane,
His wife sweetly murmured: "Now, don't stay out late,
Dear Charlie, 'Remember the Maine!'",
With that somewhat startling injunction in view,
He was back home at ten with his pet.
For should he stay later he very well knew
What a great blowing up he would get.

Rheumatism Cured.

My wife has used Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism with great relief, and I can recommend it as a splendid liniment for rheumatism and other household use for which we have found it valuable.—J W CUYLER, Red Creek, N Y.

WILL RETURN MONDAY—Judge and Mrs W C Hale and family are expected to arrive in Eugene Monday from Klamath Falls, and will in the future make their home in this city. Judge Hale has formed a partnership with Attorney H D Norton for the practice of law, and they will at once open up their office. Judge Hale is a very able jurist and will be an honored addition to the legal fraternity of this district, while his family will be gladly welcomed in the social circles of the city.

NOTICE.—The ladies of the Catholic church will hold a Lawn Social on the grounds surrounding the church on Wednesday evening July 13th. The object of this social is to add to our new church fund. By many novel features, among others a well stocked booth and Dewey table, the ladies intend to make of this a very enjoyable and social gathering. Kindly honor us with your presence.

BEAUTIFUL HYDRANGEA.—In the north window of Osburn & DeLano's pharmacy is to be seen a stalk containing 13 blossoms from a hydrangea plant. It assumes magnificent proportions and on account of its beautiful appearance is the cynosure of all eyes. The plant is grown by Mrs W E Brown of this city.

RETURNED TO SALEM.—At 3 o'clock this morning a crowd of Salem bicyclists who have been in Eugene for a week started on their return home. They include C M Lockwood, Elmer Paine, Earnest King, Hugh Williamson, Al Kuykendall and Webster Kincaid. The trips about 85 miles, and will be made in one day.

STRAYED.—One brindle cow, high horns, had a bell on when last seen. Has some brands. Strayed from Goodpasture farm, two miles north of Eugene. Information leading to her recovery will be rewarded by

Something To Know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electic Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centers in the stomach, gently stimulates the Liver and Kidneys, and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters improve the appetite, aid digestion, and is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. Sold for 50c or $1.00 per bottle at Wilkins & Linn, Drug Store.

CONSTIPATION

"I have gone 14 days at a time without a movement of the bowels, not being able to move them except by using hot water injections. Chronic constipation for seven years caused me to this terrible condition; during that time I did everything I heard of but never found any relief; each was my case until I began using CASCARETS. I now have from one to three passages a day, and if I was rich I would give $100.00 for each movement; it is such a relief." AYLMER L. HUNT, 169 Russell St., Detroit, Mich.

No Resistance of It.

One of the most noted of the hardy western frontiersmen was Kit Carson, to whom, with Daniel Boone, belongs the credit of having always dealt fairly with the various Indian tribes, as they themselves acknowledged. The withdrawal of Carson by the government was the cause of a great war. Captain Henry Inman, in his book, the "Old Santa Fe Trail," relates an amusing incident of the gallant pioneer.

My own conception of Kit Carson, as a child, was that he was 10 feet high, that it would have required the strength of two men to lift his rifle; that he usually drank a river dry and picked the carcass of a whole buffalo clean as easily as a lady does the wing of a quail. Years after, when I made the acquaintance of the foremost frontiersman, I found him a delicate, reticent, under sized, wiry man, the very opposite type of what my childish brain had created.

One day while Kit was at the fort I came across a periodical that had a full page illustration of a scene in a forest. In the foreground stood a gigantic figure dressed in the traditional buckskin.

On one arm rested an immense rifle. His other arm was around the waist of the conventional female of such sensational journals, while in front half a dozen Indians lay prone, evidently slain by the hero in the impossible attire in defense of the preposterous female. The legend stated how all this had been effected by Kit Carson.

I handed it to Kit. He wiped his spectacles, studied the picture intently for a few seconds and then said:

"Gentlemen, that thar may be true, but I hain't got no recollection of it."

Wasteful Western Rivers.

"Queer American Rivers" is the title of an article in St. Nicholas written by Mr. Spearman. The author says of western rivers:

All the rivers of the plains are alike full of yellow mud, because the soil of the plains melts at the touch of water. These are our spendthrift rivers, full to the banks at times, but most of the year desperately in need of water. It is only with the greatest effort that they can keep their places in the summer. There is just a scanty thread of water strung along a great, rambling bed of sand to restrain Dame Nature from revoking their licenses to run and turning them into cattle ranches.

No wonder that respectable fish refuse to have anything to do with such streams and refuse tempting offers of free worms, free transportation and protection from the fatal nets. Fancy trying to raise a family of little fish and not knowing one day where water is coming from the next!

Not but what there is water enough at times. Only these rivers of the great plains, like the Platte and the Kansas and the Arkansas, are so wasteful of their supply in the spring that by July they are gasping for a shower. So part of the year they revel in luxury, and during the rest they go shabby, like shiftless people.

A New Poet to Order.

An editor has received the following letter from a budding genius:

MY DEAR SIR—I inclose here with some Poems of my own composure the first I have atimpted to write. So if they are warth anything to you, You can Publish them, and if you know of any Publishing Co, who wishes for a poem writer. Please give thim my name and address. If you think warth while to do so. You will Oblige me very much. If you wish a poem on any Subject Just draw up what you wish and let me have a trial at same. Those I enclose are my first to write.

Clearly that poet has confidence in himself, "Just draw up what you wish" and send it on, and he'll fill all orders "with poems of his own composure." It's a big contract, but everything goes in "the literary business."—Chicago Times-Herald.

THE TRUNK OF VALUABLES.

A Story of How a Babe Escaped From a Railroad Wreck.

When a man has handled the express money for a score of years without loss or any sort of accident, the company begins to appreciate him and lets down a little on the cast iron rules that bridge employees. So is was that Sam Alton was sometimes allowed to take his young wife and baby boy on his trips when they made him stay at the other end of the road over Sunday. And Jennie Alton grew quite accustomed to making herself comfortable for a journey of 100 miles or so among the variety of things that are piled in an express car, while the boy crowed with delight and tumbled over his father without the slightest regard for the long yellow bills that seemed so important to the messenger. Then it was such fun to fix the big trunk with a gunny sack for a cover when Charlie grew sleepy.

"That chest is meant for us to carry valuables in, and I reckon it's serving its purpose," Sam would say as he softly arranged the folded coat for the curly head, and Jennie would laugh low in delight and be perfectly willing to listen to the same tender joke very often.

Valuable! Why, all the money in all the canvas sacks in the safe wouldn't buy one curl of his golden hair! Two faces would bend above the trunk lovingly, and Jennie would caution her husband to fasten the lid up well as she thought with a shudder of the tragedy of Genevra.

It was just before Christmas when Jennie and the boy made their last trip in the express messenger's car. Sam was pretty busy, and there was hardly room for them to sit, but he piled the packages high, and when he lifted one that he thought might be a trinket or jewels or a cloak of seal he sighed a bit, wishing the gift was for Jennie. But she was well content in that pearl of great price, a good man's love, and watched her boy sleeping in the trunk with eyes full of brooding tenderness that always seems to grow more fine as the anniversary of the nativity draws near.

Suddenly a crash as of collision threw the three in the car together on the floor, with the boxes and bales tumbling around them. The lid of the trunk cracked and swung down, shutting the baby inside, but before the parents could extricate themselves they felt the car suddenly lift in the air and then plunge downward.

"Charlie!" shrieked the mother, all the prayers that a woman's heart can frame expressed in that one word. Then the engine drank from the river hissingly. The side fell away from the car, leaving a sight of a waste of waters; then blindness and silence.

A farmer and his wife stood at the edge of their acres and watched a box float in the water. It looked as though it might contain valuables, and the man secured it, to find within, smiling and rosy in sleep, a little orphan boy who said his name was "Tarlie."—Chicago Journal.
