WEATHER CONDITIONS.

A high pressure area of considerable magnitude is central over Southern Idaho. The barometer is relatively low over Montana.

General rains have occurred in Western Washington and Northwestern Oregon, and the weather is cloudy and threatening in the eastern portion of these states and in Idaho.

It is much cooler in Southern Idaho, but mild temperatures continue elsewhere in the Pacific Coast States.

The indications are for rain over the greater portion of this district Monday.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

Forecasts made at Portland for the 28 hours ending at midnight, Monday, Dec. 3:

Portland and vicinity—Occasional rain; southerly winds.

Oregon and Washington—Probably occasional rain, with snow in foothills; southerly winds.

Idaho—Rain or snow in north, probably fair in south portion; variable winds, mostly southerly.

EDWARD A. BEALS, Forecast Official.

Economy in Good Roads.

Boston Transcript.

The common road is the connecting link between the farm, the home, the country schoolhouse and the church. The utility of good roads requires no exposition. Leaving the railroads out of the category of public roads, for which government is responsible to the people, one expert estimate states that 99 per cent of every load hauled by railroads must be carried in a wagon or truck over a highway. No more convincing proof is needed that building and maintaining highways is a question of a wise public policy.
