LONDON STOCK EXCHANGE.

Settlement Was Effected Much More Easily Than Expected.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The stock market managed to get through the settlement more comfortably than had been expected. While more time than usual was required to arrange the heavy accounts, few had believed that the number of defaults would be so few.

Prices were very irregular. Consols closed at 96¼, this being lower than they had been since 1892. Americans were unsettled and distinctly lower, owing to realizations, but they closed above the worst figures. St. Paul and Denver preferred fell 1 point, Northern Pacific ¾ and Southern Pacific ⅝. Union Pacific rose ⅝ and Reading lists ⅛. Mines showed signs of recovery Saturday.

Business Stagnant on Berlin Bourse.

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—Business on the bourse during the week was stagnant, but prices were firmer. Outsiders show less inclination to sell shares, and the volume of business has sunk to low proportions.

Domestic loans are strong. The Bavarian loan was a great success, and lower subscriptions have been so heavy that the allotments will be of the smallest amount.

Lewis and Clark Centennial.

Walla Walla Union.

The Lewis and Clark centennial at Portland should be encouraged by our Legislature. If we cannot have the centennial in this state we must recognize that whatever benefits Oregon aids Washington. Anything that brings people to the Pacific Slope is certain to swell the population of Washington, for once the people are within range we can take our chances in their deciding in favor of this state when it comes to a question of location. From a selfish standpoint, therefore, this state should encourage the Lewis and Clark centennial.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

During the last 24 hours light rain has fallen in Northern California, Nevada and Western Oregon, but elsewhere in the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast States no rain or snow has occurred, although the weather is generally cloudy and threatening. The temperatures west of the Cascade Range of mountains are seasonable, but east of this range it is slightly warmer than usual at this season of the year. The indications are for continued cloudy and threatening weather, with probably occasional light rain in Southern Oregon and generally fair weather in the remaining portion of the Pacific Northwest.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

Forecasts made at Portland for the 28 hours ending at midnight Monday, January 21:

Portland and vicinity—Cloudy and threatening; northerly winds.

Oregon—Occasional light rain in south, cloudy and threatening in north portion; north to east winds.

Washington—Generally fair; northerly winds.

Idaho—Fair in north, cloudy and threatening in south portion; northerly winds.
