OREGON REPUBLICANS ON TRUSTS.

Trust organization began with the first election of President McKinley. During the four years or more he was in office the Republican majorities controlling both branches of congress took no effective stand against the trusts, neither have those majorities done so since the installation of President Roosevelt. Commercial and manufacturing trusts today largely control and fix prices of manufactured products throughout the country. These are facts that will meet with no denial. Now read this resolution unanimously adopted by the Republican state convention at Portland Wednesday:

Resolved, That in the war which President Roosevelt has inaugurated against the gigantic combinations of incorporated capital he has the united and enthusiastic support of the Republican party of Oregon.

There were few men in that convention so ignorant as not to know that Republican tariff legislation is responsible for the trusts that have clutched the business of the country in their grasp. What were the controlling Republican majorities in the House and Senate and the executive branch of the government doing all these years when those "gigantic combinations" were getting everything worth having in their grasp? What are they doing now? There is no indication that congress is in accord with President Roosevelt in the stand he has taken against the trusts.

If those delegates honestly favor the resolution they passed they wil have to vote for Democratic nominees for congress, whoever they may be, if they hope to make it effective. The record shows for itself.

"ALONG OTHER LINES."

Salem Statesman.

A rumor, probably well founded, has it that W J Furnish, the Republican candidate for governor, will soon come to Portland and open up headquarters. Mr Furnish is reputed to be one of the best organizers in the state, and, besides offering his services in a general way to the party, will personally direct his own campaign from here. He will not make a stump-speaking tour, but will conduct the campaign along other lines.

"Along other lines!" That means that Mr Furnish has not read, at least not profited by some Oregon history. David P Thompson, Republican candidate for governor in 1889, conducted his campaign "along other lines" with the result that, while the "sack" was kept open for all callers, Sylvester Pennoyer got the election. Furnish is a careful man. He will see how and to whom the money goes. But the voters vote by ballot. There's the rub!

Was it with feelings of shame, or sorrow that Canadian citizens read in the London dispatches yesterday that fifty-three of Canada contingent for service in South Africa had lost their lives in a battle with the Boers? Canada enjoys a great measure of freedom, little control being exercised by the home government. The mass of her citizens cannot but regret that an obligation to the imperial government compels the sending of her sons to South Africa to assist in the subjugation of heretofore free peoples.

The professor of philology at the Washington state university, Seattle, has become insane, with an attempt to commit suicide. It is a peculiar case. Three weeks before, almost to the day the professor, Frederick E Colgrove, visited the Steilacoom asylum with his class for study and observation of the inmates, insanity being one of his specialties, his lectures during the first term of the school year pertaining to the mental degeneration and during the second with insanity and suicide.

Kentucky is a land of surprises. Now a court of the bourbon state has sentenced a man to a year in the penitentiary for stealing a Bible. No explanation of the motive of the theft accompanies the news, but it must be a mystery as the thief certainly had no use for the book himself, while his neighbors are not noted for a scramble even when Bibles are offered for the taking.

DOING HIS SHARE.

"Brother Hogmore, are you contributing anything for the benefit of the heathen this year?"

"Yes, sir! I am having my washing done at a Chinese laundry."

St. Vitus's

Dance, or chorea, is one of the most pitiable afflictions humanity is called on to endure. That this disease can be cured, however, is proven by the fact that it has been cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The tranquilizing effect upon the nerves exercised by this remarkable medicine is witnessed to by thousands who have found healing and strength in its use. It not only cures womanly diseases, but it promotes the health of the whole body. It is a nerve-feeding, strength-giving, sleep-inducing medicine. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol and is entirely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics. It cannot disagree with the weakest or most delicate constitution.

"When our daughter Lizzie had St. Vitus's dance, I happened to get one of your small books and read it," writes Henry L. Miller, Esq., of 1016 North 7th St., Burlington, Iowa. "Among other things I found that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cured patients suffering from that trouble, so I went out and got a bottle. She was very bad at that time and could hardly talk. When I read about your medicine in that small book, I said to myself, with the help of God and that medicine we can cure our daughter. We did so. Four bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' cured her, and I did not have to take her to the doctor any more. She is well, thank God and the 'Favorite Prescription' for it."

Story of the Butterfly—How to Make Black Ink That Is Black—A Curious Puzzle.

Once I was a fat caterpillar. You would not think so now as you look at my beautiful wings, would you? I used to watch the butterflies sailing about and wish I could fly as they did. I could only crawl and could not go very fast.

I used to feed on milkweed leaves. I liked them as well as you like bread and butter, little boy.

One day a little girl broke off the leaf on which I was feeding and took it, with me on it, into a room where there were many children. Some of them said, "What a pretty caterpillar!" I had stripes of yellow, black and white across my back.

A lady took me and put me into a glass jar. I could not get out. Every day the children brought fresh leaves for me to eat. There was nothing else for me to do, so I ate and ate and grew very fat.

By and by I began to feel sleepy. I spun a covering to keep me warm, rolled myself up in it and had a long, long sleep.

One day I awoke and tried to throw off my clothes, but they seemed very heavy, and I could not move them at first.

But after trying many times I was at last able to crawl out of my warm bed.

I was stiff at first and could hardly move. Something seemed to have grown on my back, and I could not get rid of it.

I crawled over some dry leaves and got out of the jar and walked on the window sill.

Soon a little girl said, "Oh, see the lovely butterfly!" I looked around, but could not see one. Then some children came up to me and said again, "See the lovely butterfly!"

Then I knew they meant me, and I knew what was on my back. I had wings—just what I had always wanted. I spread them out that I might see them. Now I could fly!

I tried it and fell. But after trying a few times I could do it very well. How happy I was!

This morning the lady opened the window, and I flew out into the sunshine. I have had a lovely time flying about and stopped here to rest a moment.

Now I must be off again. I wish the kind children who fed me had wings too. Flying is so much more fun than walking. I know you would like it, little boy. Now off I go. Goodby!

How to Make Black Ink.

With black ink selling at 5 cents or so a bottle it seems hardly worth while for one to use homemade ink, but the trouble is that all black ink is not black by any means. The following recipe, however, which, by the way, is some 200 years old, tells you how to make a black ink that will not fade and which is dead black in hue. Here is the recipe:

One quart of rainwater filtered through a close woven cloth, three ounces of bruised galls, one and one-half ounces of sulphate of iron (green copperas) and two and one-half ounces of gum arabic. Coarsely powder the galls and put into a bottle with the other chemicals; stir them up and add the water. Securely close the bottle and place in the sunlight, letting the bottle stand until the gum arabic and copperas have dissolved, occasionally stirring the contents to bring this about. Shake the bottle each day for a month or six weeks, then add some 20 drops of carbolic acid to prevent mold, and your ink is ready for use.

A Curious Puzzle.

The following is a very curious puzzle. Try it, all of you:

Open a book at random and select a word within the first ten lines and within the tenth word from the end of the line. Mark the word. Now double the number of the page and multiply the sum by five. Then add 20.

Then add the number of the line you have selected. Then add five. Then multiply the sum by ten.

Add the number of the word in the line. From this sum subtract 250, and the remainder will indicate in the units column the number of the word, in the tens column the number of the line and the remaining figures the number of the page.
