WEDNESDAY, JULY 5.

John Hay

John Hay, the last connecting link between the official life of Abraham Lincoln and the present day, is dead. When Hay was a young man of 23, just out of Brown college, from which he graduated in 1858, he became the intimate friend, confidant and assistant secretary to the great martyr, Lincoln, and from that day until his death, in Newbury, New Hampshire, has been almost continuously in public life as a trusted and brilliant servant of the American people. As secretary to American legations abroad, as president of the great sanitary congress, as editor of the Tribune, as army officer, secretary of state and in every other place he has filled he has been the same steadfast, thorough, outspoken, ideal American citizen, never swerving from his fixed pathway for prejudice or political favor.

But the glory of John Hay, the diplomat and public servant, is overshadowed in the glory of John Hay, the poet and author. "Jim Bludsoe" will live longer than the name of any American secretary of state. "Pike County Ballads" will be fresh and verdant in the memories of men when the Hay-Pauncefort treaties have perished and are forgotten.

Some Stated Facts

The Register tells how it has wanted a fair, impartial trial for Mitchell and how it is known as a correct medium for news, etc. We give an editorial from the Oregonian that shows how Oregon's leading republican paper takes the Eugene railroad organ to account:

"The Eugene Register, one of the yelping pack of patty papers that are snapping always at the heels of the Oregonian, wants to 'let the government handle its own job in its own way. If the government found any or all of these men guilty, we would stand solidly to the man in applauding the government in ferreting out the evil and correcting the same.' Very well, then. Are Puter, McKinley and their gang guilty, or are they not? Was the government right in proceeding against them, or was it not? Did the government find that they were authors of a series of most infamous frauds, or were they not? Did the Register applaud the government for its course in these cases, or did it not? Of course it did not. The Register does not want to see the government succeed. It proposes to throw, and it has thrown, so far as it could in its puny way, every possible obstacle in the path of the administration. It is working hand and glove with an unscrupulous political ring that fears to have the infamies of the land thieves exposed because it means ruin and oblivion to the gang.

"The Register is one of several little Oregon journals that seek to divert attention from the land frauds. They say that the Oregonian has 'sought by every means, fair or foul, to manufacture public sentiment and even testify before the grand jury, and to have all those were before the grand jury all but indicted, tried and sentenced.' This is not truth. It is, on the contrary, unqualified falsehood. If the Oregonian had not been active in getting the news from all available sources and presenting it accurately and fully to the public, who has a right to complain, and who that has nothing to hide will complain?

"Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, became convinced some time ago that there were extensive land frauds in Oregon. He found that a conspiracy existed between various corporations and their agents to steal a great portion of the public domain. He determined to put a stop to the colossal frauds that he knew, and everybody else now knows, were being practiced on the public. He sent his representives to Oregon. They started their investigation. Now, what was the duty of every law-abiding citizen in Oregon? Was it to protect the land thieves and impugn the motives of the president and his agents? Or was it to give them all possible information and full opportunity to learn the truth? The president's officers have been confronted with immense difficulties. There has been a determined and organized purpose to defeat them. The president himself has been attacked, and his honesty assailed. Nevertheless, results so far have been that Puter, McKinley, Tarpley and others have been convicted. Others, who may or may not be guilty, are on trial. It rests with the twelve citizens of Oregon, and not with Mr. Heney or any other official representative of President Roosevelt, to determine whether the defendants shall be convicted or not. Because these twelve Oregon men are to pass on the guilt or innocence of a United States Senator and two representatives in congress, all can well understand why the Register and its fellow-manufacturers of opinion are making such an outcry at this time. The Oregonian wants to see the government have a fair show. It wants to see the defendants have a fair show. It hopes to see the truth triumphant, the guilty convicted, sentenced and punished, and the innocent vindicated and absolved. Meanwhile it will continue to print the facts as they develop, as it has done from first to last."

No comment on the above is necessary. Eugene people know well how and for what purpose the Eugene organ exists. The Guard is the only Lane county paper that has refused to stand for the ring against the president of the United States. Mitchell had a fair trial and has been found guilty, but we believe that till a final decision has been reached in the courts sentence should be suspended.

SSS FOR THE BLOOD
"S. S. S. for the blood" has been a household saying. When the blood is in need of treatment from any cause, this great remedy is the best and used by thousands of people all over the country, because to all other blood purifiers. It is a purely vegetable remedy and penetrates the circulation and forces out all poison and impurities, also builds up the entire system by its fine tonic effect. During winter months the natural avenues of bodily waste have become dull and weak and failed to perform their full duty, the blood has been sluggish and an extra amount of poisons and waste matters have accumulated in the system and been absorbed by it. With the coming of Spring and warm weather the blood is aroused and in action and in its effort to throw off these acids and poisons it offers. Boils, pimples, blotches, rashes and eruptions break out. Continue until the blood is cleansed and made pure. S. S. S. is for this condition; it clears the blood of all impurities, makes it strong and these skin troubles pass away. Rheumatism, Blood Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison and all of the blood are cured by S. S. S. Book on the blood mailed free of charge. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.
I was suffering from impure blood, run-down condition of the system, loss of appetite, was losing flesh, and had a lingering that made me miserable. I took S. S. S. and my blood was made normal, healthy condition. My appetite increased in weight, that "tired feeling" I was again myself.
