A EUGENE BOY SEES THE FIRE

Fred Herbold Left Here on First Train After the Earthquake

Is Now With the Red Cross Giving Aid to San Francisco--Finds the Eugene Inhabitants Are Uninjured

Fred Herbold, of this city, took the first train to San Francisco after news of the great earthquake had been given publicity by the Guard. He writes the Guard from Oakland on the 20th as follows:

"I arrived here on the evening of the 19th and found martial law had been proclaimed. No one was allowed to enter San Francisco. I went to the place where I met an old Butte friend of mine, Dr. Hanson, now of Los Angeles. He was doing Red Cross duty, and placing a red cross on my arm, in company with the doctor and several other doctors and nurses, we had no trouble in entering the stricken city, and the Red Cross badge allowed us to come and go without any questions being asked.

"We started up Market street, and such a scene of desolation and devastation is beyond all description or imagination. The fire had passed over this section 36 hours previous, yet the smoke, fires and falling buildings compelled us to abandon this route. We then went to Montgomery street and around the foot of Telegraph Hill to Union Park, which was full of sick and injured, in all about 700. Many soldiers were at this point. From here we went to the top of Russian Hill. When we reached this point the people were moving out, carrying what little they could. We passed through the fire lines up to within a block of the fire. The firemen were blowing up hundreds of buildings with dynamite, but all had no effect on the hungry flames. We went from here to Van Ness avenue, where another stand was made without result.

"No one can imagine the suffering and agony the people are going through here. Children suffer untold tortures from want of water, food and clothing. The need of medicines for the sick and injured is also a great cause of distress. Many have moved what belongings they have to streets in the burned district. I met some who had moved their goods over three miles through crowds and hardship, and then lost them by the flames. Throughout the city friends and families are hunting each other, parents are separated from children and the hunt is made till they drop from sheer exhaustion. Unless water, food and medicines are obtained speedily the death rate will be high.

"One of the worst features in the city at the present time is the fact that the soldiers, police, marines and firemen are envious and jealous of each other.

"Do not think any of the Eugene residents were injured. I saw Herbert Thompson, and he had seen Thurston and Church, and from all reports all got off safely.

"The fire was the grandest sight I ever witnessed, but the ruins, suffering and desolation are so horrible and complete that it is heartrending. I shall stay here with the Red Cross and aid all I can.

"Over the ruins, even now, San Francisco people are preparing to build a greater, bigger city.

"In the residence district of San Francisco and Oakland nearly every house has sustained damage; windows generally are broken and dishes, glassware, bric-a-brac and articles of this nature suffered in every household. The railroads are taking people out of here free and thousands are leaving."

OREGON WINS TRACK MEET AT COLUMBIA

Dan Kelly Breaks the University Record in Broad Jump

Also Equals World's Record in 220 Yard Dash--Oregon Makes 54 Points to O. A. C.'s Thirty-Four

The third annual indoor track meet of Columbia University was won by the University of Oregon by a score of 54, O. A. C. 34, M. A. C. 4, and Willamette University 3. Dan Kelly, of Oregon, was the star of the day. He broke the university record in the broad jump, making 22 feet 5 inches. He also equaled the world's record in the 220-yard dash, for a 12 lap track in 23 1-5 seconds. He also did 5 feet, 7 3-4 inches in the high jump, and ran the last leg in the relay race. Gordon Moores defeated the famous Smithson in the 50-yard dash in the remarkable time of 5 2-5 seconds. Prideaux won the quarter mile from Greenhaw, and A. C. McKinney broke the state record in the shot put. He hurled the ball 42 feet 2 inches. For O. A. C. Devoll won both the half mile and the mile run. Smithson did good work in the hurdles, but Kelly was too much for him in the other events.

This is Oregon's first victory in track events for two years over O. A. C., and Dad Trine concedes that Oregon has the strongest team this year.

As a result Oregon brought home the big purple and white banner for winning the meet, and a beautiful silver cup for a trophy for the relay race. Gold medals were given for first, and silver medals for second place, and the Oregon men secured most of them.

A summary is as follows:

50-yard dash—Moores, U. O., first; Smithson, O. A. C., second. Time, 5 2-5 seconds.
