W. W. STEVERS FILES ON WATERS OF M' KENZIE

W. W. Stevens, employed in Midgley's planing mill and sash and door factory in this city, yesterday afternoon filed with the county clerk a notice of appropriation of 88,000 cubic inches of the waters of the McKenzie river for the purpose of generating electric power. The name of the ditch, flume or canal shall be the Odalisques Electric Power Co. and shall be owned by the said W. W. Stevens, his assigns and successors. The point of diversion of the waters shall be on the north bank of the McKenzie on the southeast quarter of section 23, township 17, south of range one west, 150 yards south of the Potter residence. The general course of the canal is to be westerly along the north bank of the river and extend for a distance of about four miles. The canal is to be 60 feet wide at the bottom, sufficient to carry 88,000 cubic inches of water under a six-inch pressure.

The Ideal Family Laxative

is one that can beu sed by the entire family, young and old, weak and strong, without any danger of harmful effects. It should have properties which insure the same dose, always havng the same effect, otherwise the quantity will have to be increased and finally lose its effect altogether. These properties can be found in that old family remedy, Brandreth's Pills, because its ingredients are of the purest herbal extracts, and every pill is kept for three years before being sold, which allows them to mellow. We do not believe there is a laxative on the market that is so carefully made.

Brandreth's Pills are the same fine laxative tonic pill your grandparents used. They have been in use for over century, and are sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar-coated.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

SO KIND OF THEM.

When flames go shooting through the roof
And up and down the wall,
And when the neighbors come and say
The house is going to fall,
The firemen race with no delay
The burning spark to find
And put the conflagration out;
I'm sure they're very kind.

The weather may be cold as sin
Or may be piping hot,
But either way the fireman
Is Johnny-on-the-spot.
He brings his polished engine out
And tells his nags to "Git!"
Though he is certain that it may
Get specks of dirt on it.

Where flames are fierce he rushes in,
Climbs stairs with no concern
To see if careless ones have stayed
Inside where they might burn,
Or if from every window ledge
The flames are rushing wild
He bravely climbs the ladder tall
And saves the lady's child.

He doesn't think it very much,
And he is not afraid
To rush into the flames, for he
Is working at his trade.
Peace has its heroes same as war,
With laurels to be won,
And, though he doesn't own to it,
I rather guess he's one.

Different Lines.

"Hear about Spouter, the tragedian? He had a special engagement, and he forgot his lines."

"Must have been horribly embarrassing."

"Not so very. He was out driving with a young lady at the time."

About Heroes.

It is said that no man is a hero in the eyes of his valet. But that isn't strange, since no real, genuine hero has a valet.

When we speak of the stuff heroes are made of we do not speak of "stuff" as designating a great roll of money in the bank or in his pocket, nor yet of the thick padding carefully put in his clothes by a fashionable tailor.

The hero is a man walking along the street with his hands in his pockets wondering where his next meal will come from. Suddenly a runaway horse dashes by. In the buggy that sways from side to side and threatens every moment to topple over sits the only daughter of a bank president. Death seems to stare her in the face. Is there no one to save her? Is it possible that one so young, so fair and with so much money to spend must meet an untimely end?

Here is where the hero comes in. Darting out from the sidewalk, he seizes the horse by the bridle and with almost superhuman strength brings the wild animal to a sudden halt and saves the girl. Her father rushes up. "My brave man, what can I do for you? You have saved my daughter's life." Then he gives him a quarter, while the girl gives him a smile. It used to be that the hero married the girl, but that isn't considered good form any more.

Mean Revenge.

I'd like to be the weather man,
And wouldn't I get gay
When some one whom I didn't like
Was busy making hay.
