State Beekeepers to Meet

The state beekeepers association of Oregon will hold its annual meeting and conference this year at The Dalles, January 18 and 19. This meeting is for the purpose of discussing beekeeping problems and getting a more thorough organization among the beekeepers. Plans are being made to have four leading eastern bee specialists present at the meeting. They are James I. Hambleton, agriculturist for the United States bureau of entomology; Kenneth Hawking of the C. B. Lewis Co., Watertown, Wisc.; Jay Smith, well-known queen breeder and popular writer of Ind., and George Demuth, editor of Gleanings and Bee Culture, Medina, Ohio. This promises to be the best conference that has ever been held according to H. C. Scullen, secretary treasurer.

Leaf Hopper Controlled

The rose leaf hopper, the small white insect seen flying from rose bushes in the fall in Oregon, can be controlled by a nicotine spray, says the entomologists of the experiment station. These insects damage the plants by sucking the juice out of the leaves, making white spot. The best time to apply the spray is in the spring when the wingless insects are found feeding on the underside of the plants. The formula used is nicotine sulphate two tablespoonfuls, fish oil soap ¼ pound, and water 12 gallons.

WHY FRISCO CHINATOWN IS QUIET IN TONG WARS

Peaceful Elements Hold Sway in That Quarter

HIGHBINDERS KEPT OUT

Police Says, Keep Out Gambling Houses, Stop Traffic In Slaves and Peace Assured

(Correspondence of the Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO.—While several cities were scenes of sanguinary tong wars, resulting in scores of Chinese being deported, San Francisco's Chinatown, the largest in the country, remained at peace, despite the fact that one of the warring tongs, the Hip Sing, has headquarters here.

Detective Sergeant John J. Manion, head of the Chinatown police squad, explained why.

"Keep out gambling houses. Prevent traffic in slave girls and in narcotics and you'll have no tong wars. With the cooperation of the peaceful elements—the merchant class and the Christians—we have largely eliminated those causes of trouble. Watch for highbinders, or gunmen, and try to keep them out of Chinatown."

The other tong concerned in the recent war the On Leong, has no organization in San Francisco at present, but, according to Sergeant Manion, it arranged through another tong to have some Hip Sing members slain here. Money was paid for the transaction, but the police learned of it in time to prevent it.

Gambling Tong War Cause

Sergeant Manion, known at police headquarters as an encyclopedia of Chinese affairs, added: "Gambling most frequently is the cause of tong fighting. Gambling houses invariably are run by tongs. Rival tongmen come in to play, there are disputes, charges of cheating, and soon two tongs have set their gunmen on each other."

The officer estimates that 65 per cent of the Chinese in America do not belong to highbinder tongs and have no sympathy with them.

Yet the tongs still have a strong hold here. Eight of them have national headquarters, and several others have branches. The tong or society, usually is a family clan in China. The highbinder tong, unknown in China, started in the early days of Chinese emigration to America. As the Chinese immigrants went into business, the representatives of smaller families were oppressed by more powerful families and organized for protection. Out of these tongs, formed without regard to family or other affiliation, grew the highbinder menace. Whenever there were disputes, lives would be forfeited.

Highbinder Is Cowardly

The typical highbinder Sergeant Manion described as an all-around criminal, cowardly, sneaking about shooting without risk to himself. The police have found that such gunmen usually are entirely Chinese in their associations and habits. The young Chinese educated in America or exposed to American influence is extremely unlikely to become a tongman.

Where highbinders are active, there is a "captain of gunmen," the go-between, taking orders and money from the tong leaders, who have no direct connection with the assassins. Where there is a "job" to be done, a gunman volunteers his services and tracks down his man. The price varies with the victim's importance.

Chinatown here is the safest part of town for a person to wander through at night, said Sergeant Manion. There are no holdups, crimes of violence. It is seldom there is a burglary or petty theft.

MRS. REINECKE EQUALS TEST AS FIELD PIONEER

Is Now Collector of Internal Revenue for Chicago

(Correspondence of the Associated Press)

CHICAGO—A typical pioneer is the 100-pound bit of femininity, Mabel Gilmore Reinecke, who presides as collector of internal revenue for the Chicago district.

Five hundred employes in her office, nearly 200 field employes, and collections of approximately $200,000,000 a year from 700,000 income taxpayers, leave her unruffled of temper, and never groping for command of the situation.

"First woman to" is an expressio found frequently in a sketch of her 14 years in public life, which started well before she had attained her majority.

She is "first woman to":

Hold a presidential commission

Occupy a federal executive position in Chicago.

Be a secretary of the Cook county board of assessors.

Organize Republican women.

As a trail-blazer she was thus described by the late Senator Medill McCormick when she was elevated to the position she now holds:

"Her promotion proves that a career in the public service like the free exercise of suffrage, is open to men and women on equal terms."

Best Cook in Chicago

At the same time, her husband says she is the best cook in Chicago.

Fourteen years ago, when as Mabel Gilmore, a little miss of 18 years, she took charge of the Progressive Republican campaign for mayor of Charles E. Merriam.

Later she became secretary for Harold Ickes, Progressive national committeeman, and virtually managed the women's end of the Bull Moose campaign.

After five years of working in the ranks she achieved her "recognition," secretary to Charles Ringer, member of the Cook County board of assessors.

Another three years and she had gained the endorsement of both of Illinois' United States senators, McCormick and William B. McKinley, for appointment as chief deputy to John C. Cannon, then collector of internal revenue. Mr. Cannon was in ill health, and shortly after Mrs. Reinecke undertook the heavy burden of first deputy the entire load was shifted to her shoulders. Upon his death she gained the appointment as chief by the late President Harding.

Handles Much Money

Since then millions of dollars of revenue for the federal government have streamed through her fingers to the federal reserve system with a definite order and precision.

Her salary is $6000 a year.

While busy in her first onslaught on the Hydra politics, she found time to be married to George W. Reinecke, young Chicago real estate man.

Perhaps her outstanding public performance prior to achieving her present position was upon passage of the suffrage amendment, when she visited virtually every section of the United States to organize the new voters.

Mrs. Reinecke is a good housekeeper in her office. Her desk is a marvel of tidiness, despite the great rush of papers dealing with the nation's millions that must receive continual attention to avoid a flood.

FORD LEADS CLASSES IN REVIVAL OF OLD DANCES

Waltz, Gavotte and Schottische Are Taught

(Correspondence of the Associated Press)

DETROIT—St. Paul's Cathedral hall, which has seen the election of two bishops and the settlement of many weighty diocesan problems of the Methodist Episcopal church, has become a Mecca for those who believe, with Henry Ford, in the revival of the old-fashioned dances.

With the hearty endorsement of Bishop Herman Page, the hall is being used twice monthly for classes of instruction in the almost forgotten steps; and there is being aroused an enthusiasm which Mr. Ford is hopeful will return the waltz, the gavotte, the schottische and even the homely, boisterous quadrille to a parity with the Charleston.

Mr. Ford has been one of the most active participants at the Cathedral parties, acting as instructor to matrons and misses alike. Mrs. Ford, too, is showing a lively interest, and the two are among the most accomplished of dancers.

Classes are in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin B. Lovett, who conduct dancing classes under Mr. Ford's auspices at Dearborn. This quartet—Mr. and Mrs. Lovett and Mr. and Mrs. Ford—work zealously at each meeting to illustrate the old dances; reviving them for the more elderly pupils, introducing them to the young people.

Old Time Music Provided

The Ford orchestra is a strange contrast to the blatant, derbied cornet, the bleating saxophone and the assertive tympani of the modern "jazz" band. There are no crashing cymbals, no rippling and syncopated pianoforte. The orchestra consists of a Hungarian cymbalon, a dulcimer, a great horn like a tuba, a violin and a guitar—a quaint quintet that provides a fitting background for the modest steps danced to its music.

The music, too, is reminiscent. Here and there come melodies recognizable to those whose memories dip back into the nineties. "Nellie Gray" is there, as are many of Stephen Foster's strains. Young faces remain impassive as these melodies sing forth, but old and young alike respond to the gleeful "Ta-ra-ra-ra Boom de Ay."

The intricate steps of the native dances are given much attention. The old-fashioned waltz finds many exponents who need little more than a brushing back of memory to make them proficient. The "Varsovienne" of Warsaw, which seems like a triple step, has become popular.

Other dances include the older round dances, the square dances, the redowa waltz, the valeta waltz, the heel-and-toe polka, the seaside polka, and several types of the schottische and gavotte.

Fewer Cattle Are On Feed

Winter feeding will apparently not be overdone this year, the observers of the foundation believe. Shipments of cattle to the country from 12 leading markets in the 16 weeks ending October 17, and the same period a year ago as reported by the department of agriculture, were respectively 1,167,581 and 1,269,790. The observer's estimate that there are only 27 per cent as many cattle on feed now as a year ago.

ARTICLE No. 4

Is it more difficult to play the dummy hand against two opponents or for the two opponents to play against the declarer? That question has been the cause of much discussion but to the writer there seems only one answer. It is much more difficult for the opponents of the declarer. The latter can see his twenty-six cards and should know the best way of combining them to the best advantage. He is not in the dark as are his opponents, for they must guess as to the other's holding and they are just as apt to guess wrong as right. Also, in the opening lead, the opponents of the declarer are at a disadvantage. If partner has not bid, what should be the opening lead? This is a question that puzzles the experts at times but the average player can greatly overcome this difficulty by the careful study of a good table of leads. In playing against the declarer, try to convey as much information as possible to your partner by use of conventional leads and discards. Watch your partner's play and that of the declarer very closely. Try not only to make every play of your own convey information to your partner, but try also to learn something from every play of your partner and of the declarer.

The following hand looks easy but unless the proper lead is made, the game is lost:

Hearts — Q, J, 8
Clubs — 7, 4, 2
Diamonds — K, 10, 7, 4, 2
Spades — J, 4

The dealer bid one spade and all passed. What is the correct opening lead with the above hand? The correct lead is the queen of hearts. Any other lead with this hand would have lost game. The player who held it opened the four of diamonds, a very bad lead. Never open a suit containing the king against a suit bid, if there is any other possible lead. It is nearly always a trick loser.

The writer has occasionally mentioned the Law of Symmetry in these articles. This Law is, in effect, a theory that there is a symmetrical relation existing between the distribution of the four suits in any one of the hands and the distribution of any one of the four suits among the four hands. This symmetrical relation is well exemplified by the distribution of the following hand which came up recently in actual play:

	Hearts — Q Clubs — K, J, 7, 4 Diamonds — A, 8, 7, 6, 2 Spades — 5, 4, 3
Hearts — J, 9, 6 Clubs — Q, 10, 8, 6, 5 Diamonds — Q, J, 9, 5 Spades — 7	: Y : : A B : : Z :	Hearts — K, 10, 7, 5, 3 Clubs — 2 Diamonds — K, 10, 3 Spades — J, 9, 8, 2
	Hearts — A, 8, 4, 2 Clubs — A, 9, 3 Diamonds — 4 Spades — A, K, Q, 10, 6

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one spade. All passed and A opened the six of clubs. Z won the trick with the nine of clubs and proceeded to look the hand over. What would you figure as to probable distribution and correct play of the hand? Z should note that his own hand and Y's were divided 5-4-3-1. He also noted that A opened the six of clubs and that B played the deuce. If B had held two clubs, he would have started an echo to show his partner that he could trump the third round of clubs so his play of the deuce indicated a singleton. Z, therefore, figured that the clubs were divided 5-4-3-1. He holds five spades and his dummy three so that if A also held a singleton, it must be in spades. Therefore the spades must be divided 5-4-3-1. His heart and diamond holding and that of the dummy also indicated a possibility that these suits were divided 5-4-3-1. Z, therefore, decided to play accordingly. At the second trick he led the ace of hearts and then a low heart trumping in dummy. He then led a low club which B trumped. On this trick Z played his ace of clubs so that he could finesse the king jack later. No matter what B now plays Z must make a small slam. Figure it out. The hand is remarkable in that after the first lead the distribution of all four suits can be so accurately determined. It is also a remarkable illustration of the Law of Symmetry. All of the four suits and all of the four hands have the same distribution, 5-4-3-1. It is the first time that the writer ever has noted such a unique hand.

Answer to Problem No. 2

	Hearts — Q Clubs — Q, 9 Diamonds — A, 8 Spades — 8, 5
Hearts — J, 10 Clubs — 10 Diamonds — K, Q Spades — Q, 9	: Y : : A B : : Z :	Hearts — 8 Clubs — 7, 6, 3, 2 Diamonds — 10 Spades — 10
	Hearts — 9, 5 Clubs — J Diamonds — 7, 5 Spades — K, J

There are no trumps and Z is in the lead. How can YZ win all the tricks against any defense? Z should lead the jack of clubs and win the trick in Y's hand with the queen. Y should then lead the nine of clubs on which Z should discard the five of diamonds. A is now up against a discard. If he discards a heart, Y will play the queen of hearts and lead a spade so that Z's nine of hearts will be good. If A discards a diamond, both of Y's diamonds will be good. If A discards a spade, both of Z's spades will be good. Any of the three discards, therefore, will lay A's hand open to a loss of a trick. Suppose he discards a heart, Y plays the queen and then plays the five of spades. Z wins the trick and leads the nine of hearts. What can A now discard but a spade or a diamond? If the former, Z's spade is good; if the latter, Y's diamonds are good so that YZ must win the balance of the tricks.
