The sheriff at Corvallis raided the "Corvallis Social and Athletic Club" last Wednesday and arrested two principals of the organization. A number of persons were drinking beer at the bar, and others were playing cards. The parties arrested were put under $300 bail. A government license was found in the establishment.

Yesterday's report from New Orleans give the total number of yellow fever cases as 1,878; new cases, 46 and total number of deaths from the scourge at 271. Among the latest victims are Dr. J. T. Wolf and Dr. L. A. Meraux. Two cases are reported from Vicksburg, and depopulation of the city has commenced and traffic is suspended.

County Clerk Godman has issued 125 fire permits up to last night. Considerable dissatisfaction is expressed by farmers with the wording of the law, as under its present reading it is almost impossible to set a date for burning, for the reason that the time for setting the fire must be not less than ten days from the date of issuing the permit, and then only on three consecutive days, which must be named in the permit. They claim that it is impossible for them to foretell what the weather will be ten days ahead, and it is not always convenient then to name three days in which to do the burning. People applying for permits must give description of land and the number of acres of slashing to be burned.

An Oyster Bay telegram of the 30th says: Whistle softly, we are getting into the thin timber, but are not yet out of the woods." This admonition represents accurately President Roosevelt's view of the situation at Portsmouth. Peace is in sight, but is not yet an accomplished fact. Profoundly as he is gratified at the results already achieved by the plenipotentiaries, the President realizes fully that the most important work remains yet to be done. Until more is accomplished it is scarcely the part of wisdom, he thinks, to do more than "whistle softly." It is probable that the president may make a formal expression concerning the work accomplished at Portsmouth by the Russian and Japanese envoys, but the intimation today was that he would not make such a statement in any event until he had been assured of the success of the conference.

The Oregonian of yesterday morning says of the federal grand jury now in session in Portland: The federal grand jury will have a new lease of life and will continue to exist and delve even after Tuesday, September 5, which has been the popular date set for its ending. It seems there are other crimes and misdemeanors in the state of Oregon which need investigation besides the fradulent land transactions, and in order that these cases may be attended to the grand jury will be turned over on September 5 as an instrument of vengeance to Deputy District Attorney W. W. Banks, who has a dozen or more cases to be investigated.

Some of the cases to be presented by Mr. Banks are of sensational character and others of a good deal of importance. The list runs from raising a $1 bill to $100, another case of making counterfeit moulds and money to a very brutal charge of rape, the statutory penalty for which, under the federal law, is death or life imprisonment. The jury will be occupied with these cases for the greater part of the coming week.

The fate of Willard N. Jones and his associates in the Siletz case is about ready to be made known to the public, judging from the witnesses who have been before the jury and the indications and rumors about the federal building. All of the old soldiers who have been waiting for their turn to explain their acquisition of timber claims under the guidance of Mr. Jones have been given a chance to tell their stories, and yesterday afternoon saw the closing of the investigations, so it is thought, unless Mr. Henev has a few other witnesses who were not in attendance at the court house.

The Williamson case will be the next up and yesterday afternoon the corrider was filled with men and women from Prineville and vicinity waiting for their call to appear before the jury with their testimony. It is expected that the investigation into the Williamson case will be commenced this morning, or at the latest during the afternoon, and it will occupy the greater part of the rest of the week.

In Favor of McBride.

A flood of telegrams is pouring in on President Roosevelt from attorneys of Oregon urging the appointment of Judge Thomas A. McBride as United States district judge. Within the past few days Judge McBride's friends have been making an active campaign to secure indorsements of his candidacy from members of the bar in this city and in other parts of the state. It is said that the lawyers of Judge McBride's judicial district are almost unanimous in urging his appointment. The canvass for indorsements in this city has also met with a large response. His friends have found that many of the attorneys of Portland had previously given their indorsement to other candidates, but even in such cases they have usually been willing to telegraph the president commending his as well qualified for the federal bench. Other attorneys who had not previously indorsed any candidate have sent telegrams urging his as their first choice for the office. The signatures of nearly 100 lawyers of this city have been secured to telegrams sent in Judge McBride's behalf.

No hint as to the president's intentions has been received, but it is believed that Senator Fulton is confident of the appointment of Judge McBride. The culmination of the negotiations for peace between Russia and Japan will leave the president free to take up other matters, and one of the first to engage his attention will probably be the vacancy on the federal bench in this state. —Portland Journal.

Crop Report.

The past week was cooler than the previous one in the western section, while in the eastern section the nights were cool, with moderately warm days. A few small showers occurred in the northwest Sunday and Monday, but they were insufficient to wet the ground to any great depth, and rain is still needed everywhere for late crops and for pastures.

The grain harvest is drawing to a close and threshing is well along. Fall wheat and barley continue to yield well but the berry of spring wheat and oats shriveled during the late hot weather and the yields are disappointing. Pasturage is getting very short and stock is losing flesh. Corn and hops are making satisfactory advancement. Late potatoes are at a standstill and need rain badly.

Apples are generally smaller in size than usual and the crop promises to be below the average in quantity. Prunes are beginning to ripen.

Monday is Labor Day.

Salem, Aug. 28.—Governor Chamberlain today issued the following proclamation:

"Whereas, the first Monday in September of each year has been designated by law as a legal holiday to be known as Labor day, now therefore, I, George E. Chamberlain, governor of Oregon, make public proclamation of fact that Monday, the fourth day of September, 1905, be set apart as a legal holiday to rest from ordinary labors. The present friendly relations between labor and capital in our splendid commonwealth should be maintained in order for a continuance of the prosperity which our people enjoy.

To assist in prolonging this much desider condition, I earnestly pray that there may be a general suspension of all business on that day, thus set apart, and that employer and employe will meet in social and friendly intercourse, thereby coming into closer touch and relationship each with the other and becoming better acquainted with the industrial life and condition of the whole people.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state to be affixed thereto.

Done at the capital of Salem, this 28th day of August, A. D. 1905.

(Sig.) GEORGE E. CHAMBERLAIN,
Governor.

Proofs of Prosperity.

It is a productive year for "The Oregon Country." On the whole the most productive and prosperous year it has ever known. Of some few productive industries the output may fall short a little of that of last year; but on the whole the results will be much greater.

"The Oregon Country" is the whole region that flies the American flag north of the forty-second parallel and west of the Rocky Mountain. Every part of it is doing well. Every part of it feels the impulse of new and vigorous movement. It is turning out, in the aggregate, far greater amounts of all products than at any other time.

Oregon is getting ahead, and Washington is getting ahead, and Idaho is getting ahead, and Alaska, that was not a part of the original Oregon Country, but has since been annexed, is getting ahead. In this whole region of the Pacific Northwest, settlers are arriving in rapidly increasing numbers. We shall receive this year three hundred thousand to take up permanent residence with us. They are clearing lands, they are building homes and planting fruits, and rearing cattle, and growing wheat and mining gold and lifting coal, and shearing sheep and catching fish, and sawing lumber and pushing railroad extension.

And the new movement is stiring the sluggish blood of the "old settler." It is an inspiration to him and a guide. It teaches him how. The effect of it is seen in every part of the Pacific Northwest; not less in those parts of older settlement which were long in isolation.

We shall see in the Oregon Country, and especially in Old Oregon, more growth in the next two years than we have seen in the past thirty. Proofs of the movement are visible everywhere.—Oregon Mist.

Sometimes the lack of the milk of human kindness prompts one to wonder if the old cow is not dry!

A man may put his property in his wife's name, but he must take care of his reputation himself!
