The part that fine steels play in a MAXWELL

There is a definite reason for the brilliant performance of a Maxwell car.

Lift the bonnet and you see the simplest of engines. Examine clutch and gears, and you see supreme simplicity.

The definite reason for Maxwell performance and endurance is the fine steels, those steels built to Maxwell's own formulas, that combine quality and rare strength, that defy time and the repairman.

This is the story of the Maxwell, the real cause for brilliant performance and long endurance. These steels do not burden the engine. They make its tasks easier. They flatten out a hill for the engine.

The combination of light weight and great strength—the ideal of Maxwell construction—is thus achieved.

And to obtain that rare combination of strength with quality means costly steels. So you will find that, pound for pound, the steels in a Maxwell equal those in any car built.

That is why the rise of Maxwell has been so marked; why nearly 400,000 have been built; why 100,000 are being constructed this year; why these will fill but 60% of the demand.
