"It's Like Finding Money"
says the Good Judge

When you take a little chew of this real quality tobacco, and the good tobacco taste begins to come.

You'll find it keeps coming, too. The rich tobacco taste lasts and lasts. You don't have to take a fresh chew so often. Any man who uses the Real Tobacco Chew will tell you that.

LEAD HEN TO TRAP NEST, THEN INDUCE HER TO LAY

How the Poultry Raiser Can Overcome Nature of Fowl to Deposit Eggs in "Cash Registers" and Not in Scheduled Places—Trap Nesting Valuable.

If you have ever led a horse down a long and tortuous lane to water and then had the animal repeatedly refuse to drink, you are in a position to appreciate the predicament of the poultry raiser who equips his poultry house with trap nests and then finds that some of the pullets will not use these ingenious devices. That latent instinct of the female fowl to deposit her eggs in secluded, remote spots, preferably in a nest which she personally constructs, may cause trouble to the chicken raiser who attempts to accustom the pullets to the artificial trap nest.

Usually as soon as the pullets are removed to winter quarters where trap nests are used the trouble begins, as none of the young females may lay their eggs on the floor in the straw and litter, in the corners of the building, and often upon and under the dropping boards. In remedying such misdemeanor on the part of the pullets, it is first essential to see that enough trap nests are provided. Usually the equipment should include one trap nest for each four pullets or hens in the flock. Having remedied any deficiency in the way of nest equipment, the poultryman should next resort to handling as a means of curing the fowls of their undesirable habit of laying their eggs anywhere and everywhere about the house. The owner or attendant should enter the house frequently throughout the day, and as often as he finds one of the pullets nesting in a secluded spot he should pick the bird up and place her in a trap nest. After he does this several times the pullet becomes accustomed to the artificial nests and seeks them intuitively when she is ready to lay eggs.

Make the Nests Cozy.

Of course, it is essential to make the nests as attractive and cozy as possible, and this is accomplished by providing them with plenty of clean litter, as often as a new supply of straw is needed. Furthermore, in particularly objectionable cases it pays to clean all the litter from the floor of the house, in order to break the hens of laying promiscuously wherever they desire. By removing the straw and bedding, the floor of the house is not so attractive as a nesting spot for the hens and pullets, and hence they are forced to seek the trap nests.

The purpose of trap nesting the flock is to ascertain which hens lay, either for determining what record they make or for identifying their eggs during the hatching season, so that pedigree records are possible. Trap nesting requires considerable amount of attention, but is a valuable aid in developing a flock of poultry along lines of breeding for egg production.

COW TESTING EXPLAINED.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Dec. 4.—One of the largest and most progressive cow testing associations in the United States is the organization now in operation in Tillamook county. During the several years of its existence the money spent for testing cows has brought in return more than any other investment. At the Farmers week to be held at the Oregon Agricultural college December 29,-January 3, Prof. E. I. Westover will show how any group of dairy farmers can get together and form such an organization. His lectures will indicate the great benefits to be derived from such an association, managed by the farmers in a cooperative way. He will give actual illustrations of how farmers in the state have enormously increased their profits by detecting the "boarder" cow and sending her to the block.

Founded on J. M. Barrie's famous play "The Admirable Crichton." Adapted for the screen by Jeanie Macpherson

CECIL B. DE MILLE has produced a considerable number of the biggest motion picture successes in the history of the screen.

If you saw his productions, "Don't Change Your Husband," "For Better, For Worse," and "Old Wives for New," you cannot forget them: every one a great human drama, every one a great Paramount Artcraft Picture.

In "Male and Female" you see the luxurious civilization of the stateliest homes of modern England—you see a sumptuous English yacht wrecked on a South Sea Island and its titled occupants flung ashore by the sea and forced to struggle for existence under Swiss Family Robinson conditions—and later you see the same characters moving amid the barbaric splendor of a court in ancient Babylon!

Are You Seeing Paramount Artcraft Pictures?

America's finest motion picture theatres, big and small, are showing Paramount Artcraft Pictures, week in, week out. Here are some of the recent productions. Make sure your theatre shows them: Marguerite Clark in "Widow by Proxy," Elsie Ferguson in "The Witness for the Defense," Wallace Reid in "The Valley of the Giants"; George Loane Tucker's Production—"The Miracle Man." Also, the Thomas H. Ince Productions: Enid Bennett in "Stepping Out" and Charles Ray in "The Egg Crate Wallop"; the Paramount-Arbuckle Comedies, the Paramount-Mack Sennett Comedies, and the Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel Pictures.
