THE POSTAL SAVINGS BANK.

Fourteen States and the District of Columbia have together more than 5,000,000 depositors in savings banks, whose deposits aggregate nearly two billions of dollars. But more than half the states have no savings banks at all, and so this great incentive to thrift is lost to the people of more than half the states.

The argument is complete in favor of the postal savings bank proposal which is to be brought forward early in the next session of congress.

A postal savings bank will promote thrift everywhere. It will make a multitude of citizens investors in a national institution. It will therefore stimulate the national spirit, breed patriotism and establish a nearly universal intetest in the integrity and prosperity of the nation and in the soundness of its monetary system.

It will foster the habit of saving—the one thing most lacking in our national character outside of those states that have savings-bank systems.

The machinery of the Post-Office will lend itself readily to the system, and that machinery reaches into the remotest corners of the country as no state machinery can.

We ought to have a postal-savings-bank system at once, providing for every citizen an absolutely secure opportunity to invest his savings at interest. Congress will soon be called upon to consider the matter. Its course should not be subject to any doubt.

WHEAT.

It is admitted by every one that the world's wheat crop is short, the most conservative reports show that the United States must furnish bread stuff for Europe this year. It is also a well known fact that people use more wheat in times of prosperity than in times of adversity, and as we are to have general prosperity, which we hope and believe we will, then is it not reasonable to suppose that we the United States will use more wheat this year in various ways than ever before. Are we not growing in population? Will there not be a larger acreage sown this fall than last. Will not our workingmen consume more bread this year than last. If our government agricultural reports are correct concerning our wheat crops, we are feeding 70 million people on an average of nine million bushels less wheat than we fed 50 millions on 17 years ago. With these things staring us in the face why should wheat be tottering along at about 80 cents in this market? Some may say that a big crop is looked for in Argentine and British India, is it possible that we shall depend on failure of crops in these countries to assure us of good prices here? Is this the kind of prosperity the American farmers must look for? We think not, but if so then our prosperity is of not much consideration, for it has been plainly shown in the past few years where prosperity in the agricultural class, we have none anywhere. Wheat should be selling in this market near the Liverpool mark and it is no argument to say that the farmers are doing well enough at the price received.

An influential farm journal says: If our agricultural people can only get another good crop of field and pastoral products they will get fairly on their feet. It now seems probable that they may do this; but it is difficult to foresee what a year will bring forth. But for the past and immediate future the winter that confronts us the outlook is good. We believe the people may be able to ride the storms that may arise, as well financially as otherwise having survived the more terrible one of the immediate past. They are prepared for the winter at least in good shape and they will take hold in the spring with renewed courage and determination to press on to greater achievements.

The business men of Portland, when they were out on their excursion did a wise thing in calling on their patrons; but they seem to have forgotten Sherman county. They ought to have taken a run up the Columbia Southern.

A special correspondence says Bryan is thinking of retiring from politics. Perhaps he will. But a man of Bryans age, ability and ambitions will never stay retired.

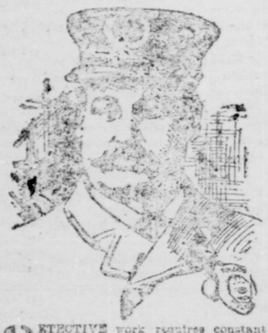
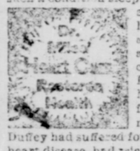
OF TOLEDO, OHIO.

The Great Railway Detective Tells What Dr. Miles' Remedies Have Done For Himself and Wife.



DETECTIVE work requires constant vigilance, steady nerves, a clear head and active brain. "A year ago," writes Capt. Duffey, of 521 Orchard St., Toledo, Ohio, "I overworked myself, was in such a condition sleep was impossible. I was so nervous I could not lie in bed; my arms and limbs twitched and my system seemed completely exhausted. I began using Dr. Miles' Nervine and the fourth bottle restored me to health. Mrs. Duffey had suffered for eighteen years with heart disease, had tried every remedy without avail until she took Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure two years ago. For the past year she has been free from the trouble."



Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on Heart and Nerves sent free to all applicants.

SPOILED THE SPEECHES.

Disastrous Effect of Foolish Questions Upon Congressional Oratory.

There are times when the question or remark of a persistent interrupter will destroy the effect of a speech and discourage the orator almost to the point of breaking down, says the Troy Times. When Bryan, of Nebraska, in the Fifty-third congress, was in the midst of a rhetorical climax, and with arms uplifted was gushing a very familiar line, the house was convulsed by the question of Walker, of Massachusetts: "Who wrote that?" The whole thing was so ridiculous that it was five minutes before Bryan could go on. Here is another: Thomas Bartlett, of Vermont, was renowned for his flights of elaborate rhetorical oratory, and a seat in congress was the special goal of his ambition. When he was elected a story of how he had been silenced by an audience of college boys got around, and on the occasion of the new member's first appearance the house was prepared to receive him in anything but a serious spirit. Rising to indorse a proposition which had just been vigorously attacked he began to declaim impressively: "Sir, were it not for the rules of the house I would pour upon the opponents of this measure the vials of my wrath—" He got no farther. Mr. Polk, of Tennessee, was upon his feet in a moment, moving, with every appearance of eager interest, "that the rules be suspended and the gentleman allowed to pour!" Such a disconcerting burst of laughter followed that the unfortunate orator could only subside wrathfully into silence and his seat.
