DAILY DEMOCRAT.

QUITE COMMON IN LINN.—A friend writes to the Journal as follows: About three weeks ago, while plowing among our blackberries, I found a China pheasant's nest containing fourteen eggs. My little girl took them and put them under her pet hen, which had just began setting, and she now has thirteen of the cutest little turkeys imaginable. They are gentler as any chickens; love rice; talk China; and are already practicing with straws to learn how to carry "dunnage," on a pole. We shall try to raise them in the ways of American civilization.—Journal.
