MCMANUS SENT TO JAIL TO THINK IT OVER

Man Refuses to Tell Where He Got the Booze

IT WOULD BE DISHONORABLE

"Your Source of Supply Was Not Legitimate or You Would Tell" -- Wirtz.

Because he refuses to give the officers information regarding the source of his liquor supply, Frank McManus of Bend, is in the county jail. McManus is the first person who has been held in Crook county on such a charge since the dry law went into effect January 1. All other persons who have been arrested with "contraband" in their possession and where there has been no record as to where it came from have given the stereotyped answer that "it was left over from the first of the year." Such replies, say the authorities, are much over worked, especially since "the first of the year" is getting more remote hourly.

District Attorney Wirtz says that McManus is the "go-between" for others who are directing a systematic campaign of bootlegging in Bend, which has been conducted only on a small scale to-date but which has shown symptoms of growth. McManus is the first strangle-hold that the officers have been able to get on the situation, and since he will not inform, must take the consequences of the situ-

The fact of this defeat will instill greater interest and better preparation for next year's events. The boys of the local school lost through lack of training because past meets were easily won.

Frank Brosius was the individual star of the meet and his gameness and ability was the one redeeming feature of Prineville's defeat. He won five firsts, two seconds and the medal for highest number of his school's total.
