"Well! Well!"

That's the way you feel after one or two of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets have done their work. You feel well, instead of bilious and constipated; your sick headache, dizziness and indigestion are gone. It's done mildly and easily, too. You don't have to feel worse before you feel better. That is the trouble with the huge, old-fashioned pill. These are small, sugar-coated, easiest to take. One little Pellet's a laxative, three to four are cathartic. They regulate and cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels—quickly, but thoroughly. They're the cheapest pill, sold by druggists, because you only pay for the good you get. They're guaranteed to give satisfaction, every time, or your money is returned. That's the peculiar plan all Dr. Pierce's medicines are sold on.

ELECTRICITY IN SURGERY.

Cancer of Womb Cured Without Pain.

Last Wednesday Mrs. Long of Richwoods came to Dr. Toel to be operated upon for a cancer of the womb. The growth was removed by means of the galvano-caustic battery, not a drop of blood being lost. The operation was entirely painless, Mrs. Long quietly chatting with the Doctor the whole time. Mrs. Long returned home in the afternoon and is getting along very nicely.—Peoria Journal.

Dr. Toel is now located in Portland. The cancer, with hundreds of other cancers and tumors successfully removed by him, can be seen in his office. Dr. Toel has studied four years at the Universities and large Hospitals of Germany, Switzerland and England, and is the only surgeon in the Northwest who operates by electricity without loss of blood.

Misleading Street Car Signs.

A victim of the ingenious system of misdirection by signs upon the street cars has related to me his adventures in making an economical transit across the city. His itinerary consisted of a trip to the New York and New England railroad station, where he was to pick up a gripsack and umbrella left at the parcel room in the morning, and thence to take a train out of town on the Eastern railroad. This was to be done at the small cost of ten cents, by availing himself of the admirable facilities in the way of street car transportation. He tells me that he first boarded a car on which the name of the New England railroad station was prominently displayed, and sat in peaceful confidence until he found himself in the neighborhood of the Maverick bank, when a question put to the conductor drew out the information that the route named on the sign board of the car would not be followed until "some time in the fall."

He took a herdic and thus made his first station. Securing his gripsack he thought himself fortunate in finding a car just passing whose signs told that it was on its way to the "Eastern depot." When some point in the South Cove was reached he learned from the conductor, on inquiry, that if he should get out and walk to the next block he would find a car going in the opposite direction which would take him to his destination. He then hired another herdic and managed to catch his train.—Boston Post.

Paid Off in His Own Coin.

A remarkable case of "diamond cut diamond" occurred in Boston recently, not far from the Providence railroad station. A druggist had fitted up a neat corner store and had established at once a fine trade. One day another druggist entered his store and said: "I want to buy you out. How much will you take?" "I do not want to sell," was the reply. "I expected that answer," said the encroaching person, "and I am prepared for it. Now, if you don't sell out to me I will open a drug store in opposition on the opposite corner. How much will you take?"

The druggist, offended at this species of browbeating, said he would sleep on it and report the next morning. At the appointed hour the aspirant was in the store and a large price was named. The bargain was bound. The druggist who had been thus ousted from a corner which he had fitted up with a view to years of peace and profit sought the owners of the opposite corner which had been held out to him as a threat, secured from them a long lease, worked night and day, and now has a drug store in which any community might take satisfaction and repose confidence. What is more, he is doing a better business than he did in the former locality.—Boston Saturday Gazette.

A la Mother Goose.

The Nawab Vicar ul Omrah recently tendered a breakfast at his magnificent new palace near Hyderabad to the English viceroy of India and his staff.

Whether he borrowed an idea from Mother Goose or his imagination was inspired by the same muse that inspired her we cannot know, but certainly appreciation is due him for making "a true story" of that fascinating rhyme about the "four and twenty blackbirds baked in a pie." It all happened at his breakfast.

"Large, but not suspiciously large, cakes were handed around," writes one of the guests. "As they were opened a little amaduvad, or wax bill, flew chirping out of each and alighted on the flowers and shrubs with which the table was covered or flew about the room.

"There were sixty guests, so that when the pies were opened no less than sixty birds began to sing."

Changes in the "Big Dipper."

One of the most notable examples of the constant and yet almost imperceptible changes taking place in the heavens is to be found in the motion of the seven bright stars collectively known as the big dipper. Huggins, the noted astronomer, is now engaged in proving that five of these stars are moving in the same direction, while the other two are moving in a direction directly opposite. Prof. Flammarion has reduced Huggins' calculations to a system, arranging them upon charts. These ingeniously constructed heavenly outlines show that 100,000 years ago the "Dipper" stars were arranged in the outline of a large and irregular shaped cross; and that 100,000 years hence they will have assumed the form of an elongated diamond, stretching over three or four times the extent of sky now occupied.—St. Louis Republic.

An Ancient Bank Note.

Mr. Barber, an antiquarian of West Chester, Pa., has recently come into the possession of a Chinese bank note of the Fourteenth century. It is a note of the Ming dynasty, made of fibrous paper of a grayish color, covered with Chinese characters. The owner says there are but two other specimens of these early bank notes in existence, one being in the Imperial museum at St. Petersburg, Russia.—St. Louis Republic.

Circus Men Smoke Good Cigars.

I shall probably sell a box of imported cigars the day Forepaugh's circus strikes Lewiston. Forepaugh's and Barnum's men always smoke the best imported cigar they can get when in this city. Two for sixty cents always hits 'em. In the winter, when there are plenty of theatres and operas in the city, we always have a big trade on imported goods with star actors and singers. The Key West trade has been picking up very fast lately. The local trade in these goods is way ahead of the imported business. Key West goods run all the way from $60 to $100 a thousand.—Interview in Lewiston Journal.

Electricity as a Purifier.

It has been discovered that a current of electricity passed through impure water restores it to purity by destroying any living germs with which it may be impregnated. Animalculæ which escape the eye, and which almost elude the microscope, cannot escape the all searching power of the electric flash.—

A SINGULAR SOCIETY.

THE "SHUT INS," WHOSE MEMBERS NEVER SEE EACH OTHER.

A Unique Organization of Invalids Whose 1,800 Members Are Distributed Throughout the World—They Exchange Letters and Photographs—Their Magazine.

New York city is the headquarters of a society whose members and associates, 1,800 in number, are scattered over the five great divisions of the world. It is an association scarcely known beyond the circle of its own members and their individual friends and acquaintances. It is never mentioned in the newspapers. It is governed by no laws or rules. Yet there is nothing secret in its origin, aim or organization for it is organized. It is not a charitable society though it does not despise donations, and its members are willing to help each other to their full extent. Its name will not be found in the directory list of organized associations in this city, or, in fact, in any list whatsoever. Its members never meet together, never see each other, never exchange handshakes or other greeting in propria persona. It has no club house, no rooms for social gatherings. There is no annual dinner, there are no periodic festivities or celebrations as with most societies. The organization alluded to is an altogether unique affair.

This remarkable sisterhood and brotherhood—for it includes persons of both sexes as well as of all ages—is called the Shut In society. Its members consist of men, women and children who are "shut in" by disease from the outside world, of invalids who seldom or never leave their rooms, or perhaps even their beds, and who in some cases have remained for more than a generation in one never changing spot, catching sight of life and nature only through the window.

ORIGIN OF THE NAME

The name of the society was suggested by the words, "And the Lord shut him in," from Genesis xvii, 16, where reference is made to the Creator's inclosure of Noah inside the ark. In a polyglot Bible the marginal texts imply that these words may be taken in an emblematic as well as a practical sense, and that when the former meaning is bestowed they signify a kindly and protective Providence. It is in this sense in which the term "shut in" has been appropriated by the society. The name was bestowed by Mrs J M D. Conklin, of Convent, N J., and the society itself originated in 1877 among the contributors to The Advocate of Guardian, the organ of the American Female Guardian society and Home for the Friendless, in this city. Some of these contributors, secluded by sickness, exchanged letters of sympathy and this formed the basis of an ever widening communion which existed for eight years in an unorganized condition. The society was finally incorporated in August, 1885. Its objects are mainly to relieve the weariness of the sick room by sending and receiving letters and tokens of remembrance, and to testify to the consolation and help derived from religion. To be a sufferer, shut in from the outside world, constitutes one a proper candidate for membership. There are about 500 associate members who are not themselves invalids, but who, being in deep sympathy with chronic sufferers, devote a considerable portion of time to their relief. There is an advisory board of fifteen persons chosen from the society and selected from different parts of the country, their duty being to confer personally or by letter concerning the interests of the association.

THE SOCIETY MAGAZINE.

Mrs Mary L Dickinson is the editor of The Open Window, the organ of the association, a neat twenty page monthly magazine. As a rule, the reading matter betrays only an average order of intellect, while at the same time it remains true that some of the members of this remarkable federation have minds that are as cultivated as their sensibilities are acute. The vast majority are women. The reason for this is that there are more chronic invalids among women than among men, and that the gentler natures of women, thus afflicted, lead them to this sympathetic intercommunion, whereby they form cherished ties with fellow sufferers whom they have never seen and never will see.

Many of the "shut ins" are poor and support themselves. One of them, possessed of some literary ability has secured entrance into not less than twenty seven magazines and newspapers, more than can be said of many talented professional writers in the enjoyment of health and strength. Another, who is compelled to be constantly on her back, has executed some exquisite lace work but so slowly and with such difficulty that it is scarcely an exaggeration to claim that every stitch took an hour. One member is an agent for magazines and journals, a good many get up devotional and birthday boxes, scrap books, crazy quilts, paper flowers, paper boxes, dolls' clothes, etc., etc., occupy the time of some. Interchange of photographs and letters is popular among invalids who read about each other in The Open Window. It is stated that the existence of the Shut In society has a tonic effect upon its members. They constitute a unique phalanx, bound together by the tie of suffering the bondage of a room, yet sparsely spread all over the world. From Sweden to the Sandwich Islands, from the Netherlands to Syria, in India, Burmah, China and Japan the "shut ins" are to be found, as well as in the towns and cities of Great Britain and the United States.

Invalid children who wish to join the association may do so. In fact, especial attention has recently been given to juvenile "shut ins" between the ages of 5 and 12, a lady in Plainfield and one in Boston having them in particular charge. A missionary society has likewise been started, called the Invalids Bienliary.—New York Herald.

The "Torpid Liver" Myth

A silly notion that is widely prevalent is that relative to inaction of the liver. The term "torpid liver" is in every one's mouth, and is held to account for every bad feeling, whether it be to excess in eating or drinking, late hours, lack of muscular exercise, excitement over bad ventures on the market or other forms of dissipation. The liver is quite an important organ, and has much to do with the secondary processes of digestion—those which go on after the stomach and pancreas have done their work—but it is innocent of most of the sins laid at its door. The bile is manufactured in large amounts daily, but we know positively of few uses to which it is put in the body, and of still fewer drugs that are able to increase the daily output. If we were certain that we could, at will, stimulate this huge gland to secrete more bile, it is very uncertain that any benefit would result from arousing it from its torpor."—Boston Budget.

Eels contain as much poison as vipers, according to one studious Italian scientist. After careful investigation he finds that an eel weighing four pounds possesses enough venom to kill ten men. When the fish is cooked, however, the poison loses its power.—Chatter.

A PREVALENT DISEASE.

Ten Symptoms Peculiar to Churchgoing Members on Wet Sundays.

When preachers hanker for a rest the flock can hardly be condemned for doing likewise. With the mercury traveling above the 90 mark the inducements for churchgoing are hardly as strong as when the temperature is more moderate. And when the regular shepherd is taking in ocean or mountain breezes the part of the flock which by necessity is compelled to stay by the stuff can readily find excuses for absence from church when a strange preacher fills the pulpit. What with camp meetings, watering places and hot weather the stay at home preacher meets with slim congregations, as a rule, during dog days.

There are not a few churches in this city of which a large proportion of the membership are absent from the city during the months of July and August. Some churches take advantage of the summer lull to clean and renovate. It has come to be understood that the pastor is to have his rest at this season of the year, and most of the churches stipulate this when the bond is made. In the line of absenteeism from church services the following is suggestive: "The attack comes on suddenly every Sunday; no symptoms are felt on Saturday night; the patient sleeps well and awakes feeling well; eats a hearty breakfast; but about church time the attack comes on and continues until the services are over for the morning."

Then the patient feels easy and eats a hearty dinner. In the afternoon he feels much better and is able to take a walk, talk politics and read the Sunday papers; he eats a hearty supper, but about church time he has another attack and stays at home. He retires early, sleeps well and wakes Monday morning refreshed and able to go to work, and does not have any symptoms of the disease till the following Sunday.

The peculiar features of the disease are as follows: 1. It always attacks members of the church. 2. It never makes its appearance except on the Sabbath. 3. The symptoms vary, but it never interferes with the sleep or appetite. 4. It never lasts more than twenty-four hours. 5. It generally attacks the head of the family. 6. No physician is ever called. 7. It always proves fatal in the end—to the soul. 8. No remedy is known for it except prayer. 9. Religion is the only antidote. 10. It is becoming fearfully prevalent, and is sweeping thousands every year prematurely to destruction."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Proper Way to Study Europe.

Among the renovating forces of my later years I must name three seasons of European travel and sojourn, each of them when I was in special need of rest and relaxation. I returned each time with the feeling that I had thrown off a full half score of the years reckoned as mine. I was between fifty and sixty years of age when I first went abroad, and I have been glad that I first saw Europe so late in life. What a man gets by foreign travel depends on what he carries with him. He finds answers only to the questions which he is prepared to ask, and the longer he lives the more numerous are the interrogations which he has in his mind to put to and concerning the places and objects that he visits. Then, too, the power of enjoyment as to whatever is grand or beautiful grows, or ought to grow, with one's years, and a lake or mountain, a palace or cathedral, a picture or a statue, is more, means more and tells more to a man of 50 than to a man of 25.—Professor A. P. Peabody in Forum.

Lemon Squeezer.

One of the best lemon squeezers ever invented has just been patented. It is designed especially for hotel keepers, and others whose business includes that of making lemon squashes and similar drinks. It is worked by the foot, and can be operated quickly and easily. It consists of a sliding bracket containing a cup for the lemon and a superlying stud for pressing the same, a glass fitting underneath. Pressure is made by the foot on a treadle, to which is attached an iron rod, the other end of which is connected to the sliding squeezer. Care has been taken in the design to avoid all sharp edges, and the cups are made of the hardest ironstone china, and extra thick to avoid all risk of breakage. The cost is stated to be less than that of the screw presses now in use, and the speed with which the squeezer can be manipulated and its simplicity are excellent recommendations.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

A Farm Without a Whip.

There is a beautiful farm just back of Ocean Springs, Miss., owned by Mr. Parker Earle, who, very wisely, allows no man on the place to use a whip on any of the stock. It is said that there is but one old whip on the farm, probably a relic of some other owner, but the old whip is not used, and the farm does well and the animals work with a will and never feel the lash. Kindness can run anything, even a farm.—New Orleans Picayune.

Masonry.

The Order of Freemasonry is said to have been established by Solomon at the time of building his temple. The order has been derived from many sources, but not till about 1717 did the second stage of its history begin in London, which is, in fact, the home of Masonry as now taught. The first lodge in the United States was organized in 1729 and was then under the jurisdiction of the grand lodge of England. The emblem of the order in most common use is the square and the compass worn by members of the Blue lodge. Besides this there are several designs worn by more advanced members, among them a keystone for the Chapter degree and a Maltese cross for the commandery. There are also hundreds of men entitled to wear the Consistory, or thirty-second degree badge. The general design of this emblem is a cross on which rests a crowned double headed eagle, with the figures "32" on a smooth triangle on the breast.—St. Louis Republic.

THE HISTOGENETIC MEDICINES

Bring Health and Happiness to Gladden Many Hearts.

SEATTLE, WASH., December 11, 1890.

Dr. J. Eugene Jordan, Seattle, Wash.—DEAR Sir: One year ago last October my little girl was vaccinated against my wishes. Her arm was inflamed for seven weeks. After that her head broke out in terrible sores, discharging pus and never healing until spring. She had such terrible pain in her head that it drove her almost insane. In August she received a fall which made her much worse, and she was taken with spinal meningitis in its worst form. She grew constantly worse, and the doctors could do nothing for her. She was just about dying, perfectly speechless, almost blind and suffering intense agony. We had given up all hope, and would have been glad to see her die to end her terrible suffering, when, hearing through Mrs. McDougald of Dr. Jordan, we sent for you. When you came, about 9 o'clock in the evening, you said she was as low as a child could possibly be and be alive, but that the Histogenetic Medicines, if used according to directions, would cure her. We began giving her the medicines at 10 o'clock the same evening, and she never had a paroxysm after that. Previous to this the spasms would come on about this time in the evening and continue without intermission until 4 in the morning, during which time we had to hold her in bed to keep her from injuring herself. When the struggle was over, she would lie more like a corpse than a living child. As you said would be the case, the cure was slow, but sure, and she is now perfectly well. I cannot sufficiently express my gratitude to you for what the Histogenetic Medicines have done for our child. I remain very sincerely,

MRS. OWEN DUFFY,
Taylor's Mill, Lake Washington.

After a costly treatment two boxes of BRANDRETH'S PILLS have put me in a better condition than I have been for years."

IF YOU HAD A FRIEND

About to visit some section of country where malarial disease, either in the form of chill and fever or bilious remittent, was particularly rife, what would be about the best advice you could give him? We will tell you—to carry along or procure on arriving that potent medicinal safeguard, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, known throughout malaria-plagued regions, here and in other countries, as the surest means of disarming the miasmatic scourge and robbing it of its fell destructive influence. Not only does it fortify the system by increasing its stamina, but overcomes irregularity of digestion, the liver and the bowels, and counteracts the unfavorable effects of overexertion, bodily and mental exposure in rough weather, or occupation too sedentary or laborious, loss of appetite and excessive nervousness. The functions of alimentation, bilious secretion and sleep have in it a most powerful and reliable auxiliary.

THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.

POISON IN A PIPE.

Few smokers fully realize the danger of smoking new or improperly cured Tobacco. The medical staff of the German army discovered this was a fruitful source of throat disease.

The subsistence department of the U. S. Army have adopted Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut as the Standard Smoking Tobacco for the army.

Beware of Imitations. The genuine "Seal of North Carolina" costs you no more than poisonous imitations.
