Jury acquits man charged with assault

Charles Stroudt was found not guilty of assault in the third degree Friday at a circuit court session here.

A jury of three men and three women reversed a decision of Justice of the Peace Charles O'Connor earlier this year in which he had found Stroudt guilty of assault by striking Lloyd LaGrone in the head with a steel bit, April 3.

In justice court, Stroudt was fined $250 and placed on probation. Stroudt appealed the case.

The jury listened to testimony for three hours, then took 15 minutes to return its verdict. Both Stroudt and LaGrone were employed by a sub-contractor at the Kinzua mill at the time of the altercation.

20% of our customers make 80% of the calls to Directory Assistance.

This message is for them.

You may not realize it but Directory Assistance is a part of everyone's phone bill. You pay for it. And the cost of providing this service will rise in the future.

The reason is simple enough. The volume of calls to Directory Assistance has been expanding at an alarming rate, costing several thousand extra dollars every day. And most calls are unnecessary because most are for numbers already listed in the phone book.

Whenever possible, check your phone book first. Then, if you still can't find a number or if it's a new listing, feel free to call. That is why the service is provided in the first place.

You can help hold telephone costs down by eliminating your unnecessary calls to Directory Assistance.

That would eliminate something else, too: the need for this message.
