PLAGUE IS FEARED

Epidemic Among Cattle Viewed in Serious Aspect.

STOCKYARDS MAY CLOSE

Proposed Quarantine Depends on Future Developments—Immediate Effect May Be to Reduce Price of Meat.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—The gravity of the epidemic of hoof and mouth disease affecting cattle in the Middle West was driven home to cattlemen today by Dr. S. E. Hennet, of the Bureau of Animal Industry, who answered the protests of certain interests by asserting that the slaughter of suspected animals would be cheap at a cost of $10,000,000 compared with the incalculable loss which a general spread of the malady would incur.

No way of fighting the plague effectively is known except the annihilation of affected and suspected animals.

Representatives of the Federal Government were in favor of closing the Chicago stockyards, the largest in the world, and an order to that effect was rescinded only after the heaviest pressure had been brought to bear. The danger of such action is not yet over. In fact, Governor Dunne, in conference with state and Federal Government representatives and meat packers, vetoed a renewed proposal to close the yards. The status of the quarantine, therefore, depends on future developments.

Among the packers today it was said that the immediate situation should make for lower prices, as it was thought that cattle growers, rather than risk disease among their herds, would rush their livestock to market where it must be immediately killed.

BAKER MAYOR MAY QUIT

COMMISSIONERS ALSO PLAN TO RESIGN OVER SALARY CUTS.

Officials Elected Say That in Stepping Out They Do Not Intend to Let Enemies Get Offices.

BAKER, Or., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—Wholesale reduction of salaries for the Mayor and Commissioners, which was voted at the municipal election yesterday by a vote of 974 to 914, probably will result in Baker having a new set of officials before the first of the year, according to Mayor Palmer and Commissioners Henry and Finley.

The election resulted in the re-election of Mayor Palmer and Commissioner Henry and the retention by a sweeping majority of the commission form of government. Salaries were reduced from $2500 for Mayor to $1500, and $2000 to $1200 for Commissioners.

"I will almost surely qualify for the office to which I have been elected," said Mr. Henry today.

"That means that I will have a voice in choosing my successor, should I then resign. There may, however, arise a contingency so that I will not even qualify on December 8."

"Whether I will refuse to qualify or whether I will first qualify and then resign later I have not fully decided," said Mr. Palmer.

"This much I am sure of, the persons who have been fighting good government in Baker will have no say in the appointment of my successor."

"It is folly for the people to expect the same service for $1200 a year that they would get for $2000 a year," said Commissioner Finley.

"The vote reducing salaries seems to be an expression of lack of confidence in the ability of the present city officers. There seems to be little else to do but resign."

The city officials were all positive in declarations that in the event of their resignation, which they professed to believe were made necessary, the affairs of the city would not be turned over to those persons whom they profess to believe had certain reasons to wish their removal.

MILWAUKIE RACE LIKELY

Republican-Democratic Nominee for Mayor May Have Opponent.

MILWAUKIE, Or., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—Herman Loeding, who received the Republican and Democratic nominations for Mayor at the primary election held Monday, has been a resident of Milwaukie for a little more than 10 years. He is a property owner and has been active in the affairs of the pioneer town. He has been a member of the Council for more than a year.

Mr. Loeding was one of the men who helped procure the 5-cent fare to Portland, having served as secretary of the Citizens' Association, which carried the measure to a successful conclusion.

Mention has been made of ex-Mayor William Shindler as a possible opponent at the city election, December 15. Also, it was said, the Good Government Club may nominate a complete city ticket.

POWER SITE FIGHT ENDS

Great Shoshone Company Gets $5500 for Flume Right of Way.

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 3.—(Special.)—The Idaho Power & Light Company has been successful in its legal fight with the Great Shoshone & Twin Falls Water Power Company for control of the power site rights along the Malad River, according to a decision that has been handed down by Judge Frank S. Dietrich, of the Federal Court.

The Idaho Power & Light Company built a flume across land owned by the Great Shoshone Company. The latter company averred that the right of way for the flume was valued at from $100,000 to $400,000. Judge Dietrich allowed $5500 for the right of way.

FEWER TRAINS ARE LATE

Railroad Commission Finds Great Improvement Since 1913.

SALEM, Or., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—The number of delayed trains in Oregon in September, according to figures compiled by the State Railroad Commission, was more than 1000 less than in the corresponding month of 1913.

On a percentage basis, 85.67 per cent of the passenger trains in the state were on time last September, the last month for which figures are available, compared with only 70.2 per cent on time in September, 1913.

Comparison of the months of July and August with the same months in 1913 likewise shows improved service.

!!!EXTRA!!!

Cock-a-doodle-do!

AFTER THE BATTLE.

With characteristic enterprise, the Crawfish presents the first complete election returns in issue.

The returns indicate one thing, and that is that a large number of people take politics seriously.

When people cease to take politics seriously, or when they take them a little more so, a great many politicians will be compelled to go to work.

As usual, the weather bureau deceived us. It did not rain in Portland yesterday, and a great many people took their umbrellas to the polls and forgot them.

This is an outrage and shquld be investigated.

REAL ENTERPRISE.

In accord with time-honored custom, The Crawfish prints as a symbol of victory the picture of a crowing rooster. Observe also that we recognize the part the women have taken in this great campaign by printing the picture of a triumphant hen.

Silence Is Golden.

Sanfield MacDonald, Progressive candidate for State Labor Commissioner, felt sure at 6 o'clock yesterday that he was elected. "Between 5 and 6 I met 200 people and they all had voted for me," he said. Today he thinks there must have been a large "silent vote."

To the Poor Indian.

One of the candiates for a county office wrote to an Indian politician on the Siletz to look after his interest there and to help him all he could. The Redman wrote back that he could not work without tools.—Lincoln Co. Leader.

Bill Takes Train.

Bill Hanley left for Burns last night. "There is times when a man ought to be home among the folks that really loves him," Bill told us as he took the train.

POST-MORTEM INTERVIEWS

The silent vote, on which I was counting, was a whole lot silenter some places than I expected.—Clarke Leiter.

I seen my duty and I done it.—William Trufant Foster.

Somebody has deceived me.—Will U'Ren.

No one knows what politics is like until they try them.

I tried two years ago.—Alf E. Clark.

Do your Christmas shopping early.—Paul Wessinger.

It pays to advertise, and I am worrying so that I have a nervous toothache.—Painless Parker.

I did my worst.—O. West.

I ran for office once down in Jackson County. — Joe Hammersly.

This is awful. — A. Walt Lafferty.

Here's to you! — J. E. Wheeler.

Oh, Mercedes.

Miss Mercedes Greenfield, who plays tingling little tunes on the cash register at Meves' restaurant, didn't vote for O. P. Hoff, Republican nominee for State Labor Commissioner, because she didn't like his mustache. She said that she might have voted for him if he had worn it close cropped, but that she never could stand a drooping mustache, anyway.

ELKS HAVE JUBILEE

Herd of 1500 Gathers From Oregon and Washington.

SEATTLE GIVES PLACQUE

Senator Chamberlain Speaks of His Membership and Acquaintance With Early Lodge—Jokes and Quips Vie With Returns.

The Silver Jubilee of the Portland Elks' Lodge, No. 142, was the greatest gathering of the order since 1912, when the National grand lodge was held in Portland. The 1500 Elks gathered in Elks' Hall proclaimed loudly the success of the meeting, which was one entirely of entertainment.

The Elks came from all over Oregon and Washington, many lodges attending in a body. Among the most prominent members were Senator Chamberlain, Exalted Ruler White, of Seattle Elks' Lodge No. 92; Past Exalted Ruler Hodgson, and Secretary Bain, of the same lodge.

The Seattle lodge, through its highest officer, presented the Portland Lodge with a silver placque inscribed with a beautiful tribute to its brother lodge. K. K. Kubli responded for the Portland lodge.

D. Solis Cohen spoke briefly, welcoming the visiting lodges.

Senator Chamberlain Speaks.

Senator Chamberlain, who remained until 11 o'clock, made a brief nonpolitical speech, in which he referred to his acquaintance with many of the charter Elks, and regretting that he had not been in the Portland lodge for two years on account of his absence from Portland. He joined in 1891 as 164 member. He was followed by P. H. D'Arcy, representing the Salem Lodge, who made a brief address.

In the programme various members were hit by quips made by professional entertainers, but took their dose good naturedly. Hennesy's patriotic poem, accompanied by the Elks' band, was a great favorite. In reading the returns each candidate had his supporters, but the "wet" and "dry" question was the most interesting to the audience. Telegrams of congratulation were read from George L. Hutchin, San Diego, and M. B. Goldstein, San Francisco.

The general programme included: Band selections by the Portland Elks' band; Ad Club quartet, Hugo Lutgens, of Pantages, monologue; Frank Hennessy in original songs; Mr. and Mrs. Carville, of Multnomah Hotel, songs; Pinkerton Day, songs; the Colonial Minstrels, of Pantages; the Hawaiian Troubadours, from the Manufacturers' and Land Products Show, in songs, instrumental music and dances; Harry Thompson, of Empress Theater, monologue; Miss Hogan, in songs and readings.

Election returns were read and refreshments were served.

Henry Griffin was chairman of the committee, Sig. Wertheimer had charge of the entertainment programme and other members of the committee were John Kelly, Dr. C. R. Cornelius, T. B. McDevitt, Thomas Dowling and James Berger.

Every Elk was presented with a souvenir tin can suitably inscribed for the occasion.

The 30 living charter members are: Dr. Charles W. Cornelius, John E. Kelly, Charles F. Sliter, Elmer W. Quimby, M. Enoch, G. W. Spears, Henry D. Griffin, James A. Berger, Hym Wolf, Henry Haussman, W. J. Ramsey, M. B. Goldstein, Frank W. Baites, John A. Wattson, F. W. Lutkemeir, Charles F. Traung, James W. Casey, John Ruconich, O. H. Crabb, Charles L. Brown, Robert Jennings, John D. Manciet, W. W. Wright, Sol Shapirer, John T. Williams, E. J. Winters, John J. Williams, X. N. Steeves, Harry C. Hipple and E. H. Hanneman.

CABARET SKITS ARE GIVEN

Hood River Commercial Club Has Unique Entertainment.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—With 185 members present, the Hood River Commercial Club last night held a cabaret banquet. George M. Hyland, of the Oregon Panama Fair Commission, was the chief speaker. During the dinner, however, "stunts" by local citizens gifted with histrionic ability were constantly in progress. Clarence F. Gilber and Arthur Clarke, merchants, sat at a table, representing a fat Dutch maiden and her beau. J. M. Culbertson, a real estate man, hereafter will be known as "Topsy" Culbertson.

Stewart Kimball and A. W. Peters, two young orchardists, participated in a cabaret skit. John Goldsbury, of the upper valley, gave a Chinese monologue.

The "Kitchen Quartette," composed of Carl H. Vaughan, Louis A. Henderson, R. F. Marquis and Estee Brosius, dressed as French chefs, gave a number of old-time melodies. J. A. Epping and Otto T. Wedemeyer, both well-known singers, sang several songs.

Tomorrow night repheaentatives from nearly every church in Eugene, representatives of the Commercial Club, the Fortnightly Club, the University and the Bible University, and other organizations will meet at the Commercial Club to outline a plan to turn the annual Christmas giving to Europe instead of at home.

COLUMBIA RECALL PUZZLES

New Officers Act on Stipulation and Vote Issues Still Pend.

ST. HELENS, Or., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—The recall question of officers in Columbia County is far from being settled. The new officers are acting only on a stipulation arrived at pending the adjustment of the various questions. A demurrer to quo warranto proceedings in the Supreme Court was overruled last week. An answer was filed setting up illegality of ballots used at the special election.

Prior to bringing the Supreme Court suit a mandamus action was brought in the Circuit Court. This was continued by Judge Aiken until the matter was decided by the Supreme Court.

ROBBERS ATTACK CHURCH

Attempt Made at Eugene to Blow Vault in Basement Wall.

EUGENE, Or., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—An unsuccessful attempt was made to "blow" the vault in the Methodist Church last night. A charge of nitroglycerine was exploded in the wall, apparently supposed to surround the vault, and holes for other charges were borded in the wall. Mats, old clothes and other articles used to deaden the sound of the explosion were found about the place.

The attempt is the second effort to rob this church in the past 18 months. A year ago last Spring burglars obtained some $20 in Sunday school money.

So far as is known nothing was taken last night, but the church was ransacked.

The explosion blew out a portion of the wall.

CLUB HAS NEW "STUNTS"

CONCORDIA MEMBERS THROW DULL CARE TO WINDS FOR NIGHT.

Merchants Surrender to Committee's Orders, Play Pranks and Have Rollicking Time.

The entertainment committee of the Concordia Club is an industrious body of three men—Isador Koshland, Milton Friedenrich and Edward Neustadter. It has been credited with several "stunts" quite out of the ordinary but it "pulled the biggest one of the season" last night at the club, when it had the merchant princes of Portland, sitting a-straddle of boxes, benches or in fact anything that could be found, with a sandwich in each hand, having more fun than a 'busload of kids at an old-fashioned barbecue.

It was a smoker that brought out the best attendance of any function which the club has staged this Fall. Upon entering, coats promptly were stripped and that all might do the food justice, aprons and white hats were donned.

The only thing missing in the menu was potatoes au Ireland. But there was everything else.

Will Lipman was there and the only reason he was not heard was that he had Heinie Metzger next to him and Metzger can talk as much as Lipman with proper provocation.

Phil Lowengart likewise occupied a seat, but as the function only lasted six hours he was too busy eating to have time to discuss the smoker. Fred Rothschild and I. Lowengart had places near Mr. Lowengart and gave him hearty competition.

Sol Baum was there and was the only one who did not have a good time. He spent half the night trying to get a photographer to take the proceedings and the other half in lamenting the fact that he could not picture it on the screen of the Peoples Theater.

Charles F. Berg was on the job but he also did not do the evening justice because he had to hold himself in reserve for about three other functions, one of them being the Ad Club melee of the Commercial Club.

Just a few of those gathered in the ring of boxes and barrels were: Mason Ehrman, Max S. Hirsch, Ben Neustadter, H. W. Metzger, M. Markowitz, Sol Blumauer, H. J. Ottenheimer, L. Hirsch and Nathan Straus.
