PATRONIZE HOME INDUSTRY.

OREGON CITY, SEPT. 30, 1898.

WE'RE FOR CORBETT.

If we must have a U. S. senator elected right now; if he must be a republican and if we can't wait a few days until the time arrives for the regular session but must, at a great expense, feed the Salem hog and elect somebody to draw a senatorial salary, then, in the name of the g. o. p. and under the seal of the great state of Oregon give us H. Moneybags Corbett.

He is the logical candidate. The republican party is old, decrepit, fossilized; so is Corbett. He is an ideal republican candidate. He is a goldbug. He is a national banker. He has a young wife, who would really enjoy attending to senatorial duties at Washington. True, he has lost his voice, but he can have it "extended in the records." He has been stricken with palsy, and shakes like an aspen leaf but he could, in a pinch, wink at the president of the senate, while Joe Simon could dish out whatever patronage fell into the old fossil's basket. He is a large taxpayer—sold lots on the installment plan and took them back under the gold standard after the purchasers had built houses on them. And, above all, he has a sack—a long? fat sack—the patent factor in republican politics and the joy and pride of the average republican legislator.

By all means give us Corbett, the prototype of the Hanaized republican party—the statesman—the financier—the logical colleague for Mark Hanna and the friend of labor.

Corbett wants it, poor old Corbett. By all means let the republican party of Oregon go down to its grave with senator Corbett at the helm.

THE UNION MEMBERS.

The 24 union members of the present special session have started out well. The experience of the last session will be a safe guide to them. If this "overwhelmingly republican" legislature refuse to bleed the state unmercifully and give worse than nothing in return for their salaries it will be the first one to do so for many years.

The people have, however, given them one more chance. Upon them rests the responsibility; let them bear that responsibility. The union members elect have a grand opportunity to put them on trial. That the unionists will assist in every good measure and introduce and force to an issue needed remedial legislation, we do not doubt. In such a course alone lies the future success and influence to the anti-goldbug forces of Oregon.

HORACE WHITE, editor of the New York Evening Post, in a vain attempt to defend the gold standard at the money conference at Omaha said that the reason of this plethora of gold was easy to understand. The large crops of the past two years, coinciding with the partial failures abroad, had turned the balance of trade in our favor. Accordingly we had imported $111,000,000 of gold during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1898.

Yes, that is very easy to understand. This is what the silver advocates have been claiming all the time, and the gold monetarists will have to prove that they are responsible for good crops in this country and the famine in India and other foreign countries to substantiate their claims of being responsible for the dollar a bushel wheat last spring. What is the matter now? Wheat is quoted in the Chicago market at from 60 to 65 cents and in the Portland market from 40 to 46 cents. The republicans are still in power. Give us some more McKinley prosperity.

THE Oregonian and Telegram are sure that H. W. Corbett will be elected United States senator on the first ballot. Quite likely they are right, all indications pointing to that result. Graham, Glass, the gold democrats who is secretary of the republican state committee, has toured the state and interviewed members of the legislature in a metallic tone of voice that carries conviction with it, so it said. At any rate Corbett stock is raising, and probably will continue to do so as long as his barrel remains on tap. The state is pretty sure to be represented in the highest lawmaking body in the land by an infirm old fossil with one foot in the grave, who will lend valuable assistance to an almost helpless invalid who is already there. Or again is a great state, barring its politics.

SENATOR BROWNELL, of Clackamas, has the honor of introducing the first bill in the senate of the 20th legislature. It is a bill to abolish the railroad commission. Watch it pass—into the pigeon-hole.

HERE comes an Astoria paper and objects to the peace commissioners receiving $25,000 a piece while common soldiers receive only $13 a month. Really it would seem as if the peace commissioners should be so patriotic in a case like this that they would accept nothing at all but their expenses. In fact that is all they should receive in a mission of this character, one that rises above politics and recompense.

"County warrants are above par in nearly all the counties of the state; because they bear eight per cent. interest, which is too much. The rate ought to be reduced to five or at most six per cent., which would save the taxpayers a good many dollars each year."—Independent.

Now let come legislator secure the passage of such a bill and his act will be sanctioned by every citizen of our state.

A DRUNKEN soldier killing a San Francisco clerk suggests that soldiers should not be allowed to get drunk. In fact should not be allowed to touch liquor at all. The government should set a strict example in this respect. The policy of allowing volunteers to take their pay and go out into the streets of a big city and spend it in dissipation is a very poor one and not at all creditable to any one.

The war tax has increased the price of our printing paper 20 per cent. We have not increased our subscription price, but as we have to pay cash for material and labor, it is necessary for us to ask our subscribers who are delinquent to send in what is due. This is not a newspaper dun, but a plain matter of business that anyone can understand.

The present "overwhelmingly republican" legislature forgot to "point with pride" to the past "overwhelmingly republican" legislatures. But why should they; the people of Oregon seem to enjoy their biennial steels. The g. o. p. is now committed to gold, and plenty of it—for the push.

If the populists middle of the road convention at Cincinnati had nominated a candidate for the presidency who is even as far advanced in reform questions as W. J. Bryan is there might be some reasonable grounds for asking the support of true populists.—Ontario News.

If reformers would agree to make a united stand against the common enemy on the questions on which all are agreed and leave for future battles the questions on which they are not all agreed with the cause of the people would advance with marvelous rapidity.

How the republican party of Oregon do hate little Joe Simon. That's why they elect him president of the senate.

Both the Oregon City and Parkplace schools began their fall terms Monday. In the Oregon City schools 560 pupils were enrolled the first day, 182 more than on the first day last year.
