LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 5.—(Special.)—Walter McCredie was so surprised at the finish of today's game that he nearly choked. Sailing along like a yacht on a glassy sea, with one run to the good, two men out and the big crowd already jamming up the exits like a flock of scared sheep, Mac's dream of victory was suddenly shattered, when bang, bang, bang, three hits soared out over the lot and two men came in with the runs necessary to win the third straight for the Angels, 2 to 1.

It was so sudden that but few knew what was happening. In fact, half the crowd didn't see the finish. They supposed the game was over when Koerner, the second man out in the ninth, was nipped stealing, and beat it for the cars. Hereafter, every mother's son of them will wait until the groundkeeper puts them out before leaving.

Kahler "Blows" Suddenly.

Kahler will probably be blamed for "blowing" and losing the game. He had been pitching nice ball up to the ninth and, though hit seven times, none of them did the Angels a bit of good. In the seventh he was staked to a one-run lead, when Hillyard tripled and scored on Derrick's single, the only time the Angels were able to double their hits on Ryan. In the ninth Kahler seemed better than ever. Wolter had flied to Carlisle and Koerner, who singled, was caught stealing second. The game sure did look easy.

But up came Babe Ellis, who whanged the first ball pitched for a double. Terry was next. Lately Seeb has been weak with the stick and no one expected anything from him. However, like Ellis, he poked the first offering for a single, scored Babe with the tieing run and sneaked to second on the throwin.

Boles, next up, was implored to "kill it." Taking more time, he looked over a couple and slammed the next one far into left for a single, scoring Seeb with the winning run. The thought of yanking Kahler probably never occurred to Mac, and even if it did he didn't have time to do it, as the Angels worked fast when they once got him going. It was a fine exhibition of pulling a game out of the fire. Score:

"Pep" Young, ex-Sacramento, failed to hit for the Tigers in either game. He scored a run in each game, messed one out of 15 fielding chances at second and figured in three double plays.

Bill Steen, ex-Beaver, was knocked out of the box in a third of an inning by the Athletics in the first game and lasted only a shade longer when he went in unsuccessfully as a relief hurler in the next. In the first he gave four hits and hit one man before Detroit got him out in the first inning. In the next game he gave two hits and a walk in a fraction of an inning.

CANDIDATES IN NEW ROLES

They Make Excellent Bluffers to Catch Dangerously Demented.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., July 28.—Poor Director Frank Guth, of this city, and William H. S. Kuhns, steward of the Lehigh County Home, saved themselves from destruction by a maniac by means of quick-witted diplomacy.

A report reached town that John Zimmerman, a farmer at Steinsville, had gone wrong mentally and was patrolling his farm armed to the teeth, threatening death to anyone who approached. The constable of the township declined to go along to the farm.

Then Kuhns said to Director Guth: "Go up to him and represent yourself as a candidate, holding out your card and a campaign cigar."

Guth yelled to Zimmerman if he could solicit his vote. Zimmerman fell for the cigar and then the two officers took from him his shotgun and revolver and hurried him to the Rittersville Hospital.

Weather Blamed for Fight.

CLEVELAND, July 30.—Three men and a 2-year-old boy were injured in a general fight in which knives, bottles and furniture were weapons. The three men disclaimed any unfriendly feeling toward each other after they were arrested on a charge of creating a disturbance, and told the police the gloomy weather caused the fight.

M'GRAW'S LOYALTY SELDOM MISPLACED

Most of Players Piloted in Crisis of Career Become Noted Stars.

MANY KEPT FROM BUSHERS

Fred Merkle, After Being Blamed by Fans for Loss of Championship and After Battle of Seasons, Comes Into His Own.

BY CHRISTY MATHEWSON.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(Special.)—McGraw sticks to his men with a loyalty surpassing that of any other leader in the game, if his players stick to him. I can name two and perhaps three members of the Giants who are stars today, but who would be in the "bushes" now if it had not been for McGraw and his faith in them.

In 1908 Fred Merkle was a recruit who had just joined the Giants. Many followers of the game believed he was responsible for the club losing the pennant in that turbulent season, but not John McGraw. He never did blame Merkle and never will. He says that the man who made the mistake was "Hank" O'Day. However, Fred faced a toug situation with the baseball population of New York on his back after the Giants lost the playoff game which decided the championship.

Christy Mathewson.

If the club had won that contest the fans would have forgotten the next day about Merkle's failure in connection with second base, but because we were defeated and the experts pointed out that we would have been the champions if Merkle had touched second in the previous contest, that burnt the Merkle incident into the brains of the fans. Baseball followers are just that way. After the defeat Fred went to McGraw and I heard the conversation.

Merkle Wins Place as Star.

"You might as well turn me loose," he declared. "They'll never let me make good in this town now."

"I'll let you go when I don't think you are worth anything to this ball club," answered McGraw, "but don't worry about that until you hear from me. You stick here and make them forget it."

Merkle faced several bad seasons and it was a battle to stick in the face of the beefing fans which would have broken the heart of a weaker man. But this year he has come into his own and is "making them forget it," as McGraw told him to do. He is playing the greatest baseball of any first baseman in the league and is clearly demonstrating that he is entitled to his place in the sun.

The Giants' first baseman will be one of the leading stickers of the league this season sure. With this improvement in Fred I don't see why the Giants haven't a grand chance to come through still and win that flag.

Rube Marquard is another man McGraw has stuck to through ...ick and thin, and in spite of the knocks of the fans. Without McGraw's loyalty Rube never would have held on in the big show through those trying times. For two years the fans were firing all sorts of adverse criticism at Marquard, and also at McGraw for keeping him.

McGraw's Sticking Rewarded.

McGraw stuck by, as he always does when he believes he is right, and the net result is that without Marquard's pitching I don't believe the club would have won the championship either in 1911 or in 1912. His work in the box with his string of straight victories in 1912 was a big factor in that race, while his sudden swing into big league form in 1911 made it possible for the Giants to breeze through on a whirlwind finish.

Snodgrass is another player who has been forced to stand the verbal jabs of the fans and to whom McGraw has loyally stuck. Mac things Snow is a valuable big leaguer and he is right.

There were periods in the careers of all these three men when their releases by McGraw would have meant sinking from the big league for good, I believe.

Larry McLean was the big disappointment of McGraw's system, for he stuck to the big fellow when everyone else was ready to turn him loose. He knew McLean was a great ball player as long as he would keep himself in condition, and it is as hard for Mac to pass up a man who has the ability to play big league baseball as it is for an actor to refrain from talking about himself.

On other clubs there have been players turned back with only a short trial who would have been stars if they had been retained a little longer. I am sure Cincinnati has made more of these mistakes than any other club. Both Coveleskie and Dubuc were once pitchers with the Reds, but neither was thought strong enough to stick in the big league. They are stars of the Detroit staff now in the American league, where the batters are quite as hard to fool as those in the National—quite as tough. Detroit had Jimmy Archer once and Speaker might have been with the Boston Red Sox had not McGraw tried to grab him from Mike Finn after the Red Sox had farmed him out.

COAST CONFERENCE PLANNED

Colleges of Oregon, Washington and California May Form Union.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 5.—Jimmy Schaefer, coach of the University of California, said here today that he was planning a football conference of coast colleges, modeled on the "big nine" of the Middle West. Schaefer has written to the athletic authorities of Oregon Agricultural College and the University of Washington and has conferred with those of the University of Southern California.

With these in line, the California coach said he would add Stanford and Santa Clara, provided they changed from Rugby to the American game. This, he said, they were almost certain to do in 1916 when it is planned to have the conference go into effect.

Organization of the conference would confine the members to games among themselves, eliminating all contests with athletic clubs.

The second game was a pitchers' battle between Fisher and Lowdermilk, the visitors' pitcher weakening in the eighth, when the Yankees scored two runs. Scores:

INDIANS LOSE UPHILL GAME

Tacoma Leads 11-0 to Sixth, but Contest Ends, 11 to 10.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 5.—Tacoma won from Spokane today by a score of 11 to 10. The Indians easily outhit their rivals, but wildness of Liefer and Wicker, coupled with ragged fielding, lost the game for the tribe. With Tacoma 11 runs in front the Indians started after Kaufman and battered him off the slab with four in the sixth and five in the seventh. A rally was started in the ninth and, with runners on second and third, Neighbors went in to hit for Noyes. Neighbors singled, scoring Brennegan, but Kippert was nailed at the plate with the run which would have tied up the game. Score:
