The Hollywood Scene

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press Writer

Editor's note: Vernon Scott is on vacation. Gregory Peck, movieland's handsome leading man, has turned producer-colmunist. He writes about his problems as an "executive."

By GREGORY PECK
Written for United Press

Hollywood—(UP)—I once heard somewhere that put an actor behind a desk in an excutive job and something psychologically dire happens.

His reflexes suddenly tense, his animation dims as a free-souled player of many parts and he becomes steely and enormously aware of himself as a member of the business brass. In other words, fatty tissues moves in on the gypsy spirit.

Well, I am an actor who has elected to become an executive. With my partner, William Wyler, I am producing my first independent motion picture in "The Big Country" for United Artists release. I have stepped behind that desk where supposedly actors shouldn't lurk for reason of intangibly destructive things that happen to the freedom of the histrionic talent.

Results of Action

Now, what has happened to me, as the result of my action?

I feel that becoming an actor-producer has most decidely helped me as an actor before the cameras. I have never before been on such intimate terms with my material.

Hollywood actors aren't always as fortunate as Broadway players who have weeks of intensive rehearsal on a play during which they are able to "inside" their characters and the spoken lines. Because of the haste of movie production, the Hollywoodian is often rushed into scenes before he has had opportunity to become acquainted with them and has to rely on his creative fortitude in the state of hurry.

As a co-producer, I am in the brilliant company of William Wyler, who is acknowledged one of the finest directors in the film industry. Willie, of the two of us, has by far the most exacting assignment, for his concern is the visual presentation, the emotional spark of actor and story.

Works With Writers

My producer chores are mostly working with the writers on the script. We are constantly busy polishing and improving the story, situations, motivations and characterizations. If a role is well-written, it will almost play itself for the actor and that's what Willie and I are striving for—the best possible dramatic writing.

I'm in production for keeps. Although it is hard work, I love it and I don't mind the 14 and 15 hours a day which it demands from me.

EMPLOYMENT UP

Washington—(UP)—Fewer workers were on strike during the first nine months of this year than in any comparable period since the end of World War II, the Labor Department said Monday. Department statistics showed 3,025 strikes idled 1,250,000 workers during the period and that work time lost due to the strikes amounted to 0.16 per cent of all time worked.
