Dr. Graham to Take Part in Conference

Ashland – Dr. Alva Graham, director of graduate studies, will represent Southern Oregon college at the Association of Higher Education meeting in Chicago, March 1-4. The conference theme is, "The Race Against Time: New Perspectives and Imperatives in Higher Education."

Dr. Graham will participate in discussion of the following topics: What should be the direction of graduate education? What are the changing characteristics of the undergraduate, and what do these changes mean for programs of general education? How can the college better interpret its objectives to the public? What are the new and effective methods of improving instruction?

Of concern to conferees will be the implications for American higher education drawn from the roles of higher education Europe, Russia, and elsewhere, Dr. Graham reported.

The Pan-American Coffee Bureau has found that the average American home got 64.6 cups from a pound of roasted coffee in 1957 compared with 45.9 cups in 1949.

The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Clinic

People Ask

Every month hundreds of people ask me to answer their particular question in this column. I am sorry, but I cannot do this. I prefer to write about the topics which I think are timely or important. I prefer to write, not about very rare disease that will not interest many readers, but about the common disease and medical problems which interest almost everyone.

Dr Alvarez

Occasionally, I will write a column based on some of the many requests I get for information. I have an idea that it will interest thousands of my readers to see what the medical problems are that are distressing many of their neighbors. For instance, many distracted parents want to know if they should mortgage their little property to take their child with a muscular dystrophy (muscles so weak the boy can hardly get up off the floor) to a big medical center in New York, or Baltimore, or Rochester, Minnesota.

I have to tell these people that any hereditary disease, such as a muscular dystrophy which runs in a family, is not curable because we doctors do not yet know enough about the chemistry of muscles and nerves so that we can give the exact chemical that the child needs but cannot make for himself. I hope that soon – any day – the researches of great chemists like my old friends, Dr. Sfzent - Gyorgi, will give us the drug we need. In the meantime, the sorrow-stricken parents should not be traveling about wasting the money which perhaps should be kept for the education of a couple of strong and brilliant children they may have.

He's Probably Right

The point I wish all my correspondents would not is that when an expert at, let us say, the Mayo Clinic, diagnoses a muscular dystrophy, and says that as yet there is no good treatment for it, the chances are great that he is right, and will be useless to take the child to other great medical centers. Or, when the doctor at Mayo's says that the adult with muscles that tire out quickly has myasthenia gravis, and gives him the best of the currently-used drugs for this disease and helps him, there is mighty little chance that an expert in New York will have a new and better drug that the Mayo Clinic man hasn't yet heard of. Today, information in medicine is disseminated quickly.

It is true that, occasionally, even an expert will be mistaken as to the diagnosis of a rare disease, and then perhaps another expert will be able to do more for the patient; but for one case in which it eventually paid the parents of a hereditarily handicapped or defective child to keep taking him from clinic to clinic, I imagine there are 500 cases in which it did not pay.

Usually, when it is some hereditary nervous disease which is producing imbecility or blindness or deafness or progressive paralysis, there is nothing we doctors can do. We cannot get into the brain and there rebuild mechanisms which either never developed, or else, after development, were destroyed in some way.

Morse Proposes Machinery for Labor Disputes

Washington – Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) has introduced a bill designed to provide what he called "needed machinery to aid in the settlement of labor - management disputes that threaten the national welfare."

In particular, Morse urged that the subject matter be studied by the non-governmental panel recently appointed to study the Taft-Hartley law and advise the Senate Labor Committee on needed changes in the Act.

"In 1949," said Morse, "when a labor dispute–a shipping strike – was raging in Hawaii, I said in the Senate, and I quote, that :'under the Taft-Hartley law we have the most ineffective procedure in that respect that I think can be provided . . . The American people are still being led to believe in the myth that the emergency disputes section of the Taft-Hartley law has done some good. As a matter of fact, it has done inestimable harm. It has caused great delay and it has failed to settle cases.'

"This legislation is aimed at keeping the parties bargaining; it provides a continuing procedure under which the President and Congress keep surveillance of emergency disputes; both executive seizure and injunctions are permissable under my bill, with a congressional veto on such action.

"These and its other provisions are designed to put the premium upon continued bargaining between the disputing parties.

"Now is the time, in my opinion, to rewrite the totally inadequate emergency disputes section of the Taft-Hartley Act. We should do it now, when no emergency threatens, and the problem can be considered dispassionately.

Salem–UPI–Ex-Gov. Oswald West had a typical brief reply to a suggestion from the State Board of Control that a building at MacLaren school for boys at Woodburn be named after him. The 85-year-old West told Board Secretary William Ryan in a note: "Please forget it."

Bill To Regulate Tattoo Age Offered

Salem –UPI– Rep. George Van Hoomissen (D-Portland) has introduced a bill under which tattooing of persons under 21 would be prohibited.

Hoomissen said he had seen dozens of teen-age Navy reservists get tatooed while intoxicated. In many cases, he said, they put on the name of their girl friends.

The legislator said this produces problems when they change girl friends.
