Plastic Engines Can Push Payloads

Washington (Science Service)–Plastic rocket engines can push satellite payloads deep into space.

Advantages of glass-reinforced plastic as a material for the fabrication of rocket motors were described here to the American Rocket Society by three Hercules Powder Company engineers. A. H. Kitzmiller Jr., C. C. DeHaven and R. E. Young reported that the material has a strength-to-weight ratio better than aluminum, alloy steel and titanium. It also has low thermal conductivity, is easy to fabricate, has high corrosion resistance and a "low material cost."

Called Spiralloy, the material consists of multiple strands of continuous glass fibers drawn from spools and fed through an epoxy resin cup before being wound on a mandrel. After winding is complete, the rocket case is cured.

Matchmaker Was Groom's Victim

York, Pa.—A bridegroom with an uneasy conscience admitted he wrote bad checks against the girl who introduced him to his wife and who was maid of honor at their wedding.

He said one of the checks was used to pay for his wedding suit. He was arrested after he went to a bank and offered to make restitution, $455.

Held on a charge of forgery, the groom said, "All during the ceremony I couldn't get my mind off those checks. I haven't had a good night's sleep since."

SAVING SOULS

Hartford, Conn. –UPI– No one accuses the local group of the Connecticut Association of Boards of Education of throwing its money around. Two years ago it was given $25. It still has $17.74 of it.

Bus Driver Finds $2,000 in Bonds

Corbin, Ky. — Halting his bus, L. R. Billings retrieved a $1,000 U.S. Savings Bond blowing across an intersection here.

About two miles and 15 minutes later, as he returned from the end of his route, Billings spotted and retrieved another $1,000 Savings Bond.

The owner, Mrs. C. H. Saunders, said the bonds were among papers spilled from her purse by her 2-year-old daughter, and missed in the scramble to pick up the contents.
