IOWAN PREDICTS AN EARLY PANIC

CONGRESSMAN GREEN SAYS DEMOCRATS ARE PREPARING TO MEET ONE WITH THEIR CURRENCY MEASURE

United Press Service

WASHINGTON, May 6.—"I can readily foresee a panic in this country," said Congressman Green of Iowa, during today's tariff discussion.

"I can see that the democrats forsee it, too," he continued, "on account of the currency reform bill they intend to introduce."

After Green's speech, Sharpe of Ohio offered an amendment taking wool from the free list and imposing a 20 per cent tax. This was defeated by a viva voce vote.

SPORTSMEN TO CLOSING WATERS

hunting and fishing here will make the country look ridiculous with the best shooting grounds cut off.

"The Upper Lake was never very popular with the hunters, because it is much colder there than in the vicinity of the Lower Lake, and the birds do not daily long around the Upper Lake after the season opens. They soon leave for the Lower Lake, and according to the ruling just sent by Mr. Lewis, Klamath sportsmen will not be allowed to shoot them."

"Another ridiculous thing about this ruling," continued Chambers, "is that the farmer or other man owning land within the limits set for the bird reserve cannot shoot on even his own property. Most of the men I have talked with believe this ruling is detrimental, and a meeting will soon be held to make a protest against it."

Other sportsmen of the city and county are of the same opinion as Mr. Chambers. They are much incensed at the ruling that would deprive Klamath county hunters of their favorite hunting grounds, and believe the matter should be taken up with the Washington office of the Biological survey.
