EYES OF THE LAW

NEWCASTLE, Del., March 25 (AP)—Patrolman Francis J. Hewlett, Newcastle's one-man night police force, can lay claim to having "the eyes of the law."

Seated at his desk, he telephoned Delaware state police headquarters five miles away.

"Listen," he said, "two guys just broke into a grocery store right across the street. They can see me, so if I make a move they'll scram."

For 10 minutes Hewlett, "stayed put." Then two state troopers rushed into the grocery. The burglars ran out the back way—right into the arms of two policemen covering that end of the building.
