Truce Plan Change Eyed

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Authoritative sources said Tuesday the U. S. has decided to modify the truce proposals it put forward at Panmunjom to bring them more into line with the wishes of its Allies.

They said the precise modifications have not yet been decided. It is expected, however, that the U. S. will agree to permit the final disposition of Red prisoners who don't want to go home to be decided by a political conference.

But the U. S. will insist, these sources say, that a definite time limit be placed on the length of the conference.

Agreement to the conference marks a shift back towards the U. N. resolution on prisoners, sponsored by India, which the U. S. supported in December.

The sources here said representatives of the 16 countries with troops in Korea were scheduled to meet at the State Department Tuesday in Washington, where the problem of changes in truce terms will be threshed out.
