Argentine Troops Mop Up Rebels

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI)—Rebel navy leaders ordered warships back to base today as government troops mopped up die-hard stragglers winding up Argentina's latest military crisis.

The navy's submarine establishment at Mar del Plata and its surrounding shore installations surrendered without firing a shot and navy rebel chieftain Fleet Adm. Eladio Vazquez ordered the battle fleet to return to moorings at Puerto Belgrano.

Vazquez' order apparently averted an all-out attack on rebel-held Puerto Belgrano by a mass of government forces moving toward the port 300 miles south of Buenos Aires.

A motorized engineers group which rebelled at Bariloche surrendered under threat of attack. The capture of Mar del Plata found the base deserted. Most of its troops apparently fled to sea.

At least 25 men had been killed and 50 others wounded in two days of scattered resistance by rebel die hards. Most of the fighting was limited to air strafing and bombing. There was little hand combat.

A broadcast from a hidden radio station spoke of continued resistance by the "Patagonian Revolutionary Command," suggesting the rebels might intend to hole up in the bleak southern territory of Patagonia.

A tank-led rebel troop column numbering about 700 men left the city of Junin Wednesday night for an unannounced destination.

A score of rebel officers had fled to Uruguay or Chile, and it appeared that effective resistance had ceased. Some rebellious army units were still holding out, however, and anti-Peronist gunmen roamed the streets of Buenos Aires Wednesday night.

Peafowl were introduced to Greece by Alexander the Great after his epic campaigns to India.

"He's enrolled at Winsocki, class of '85, and there's a reserved space in my company's parking lot waiting for him the same year!"

Kennedy Defends New Frontier Plan By Backward Look At Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy today seemed to have found a happy slugging ground with the Republicans: the domestic economy of today as compared with latter years of the Eisenhower administration.

Barring an economic downturn, the President apparently intends to stay on the same track for months to come and possibly into the sensitive 1964 election year. The track is simple: for those who would follow GOP urging to cut the new frontier budget for fiscal 1964, cast a backward look at the economy of 1958-60.

The Chief Executive at his conference Wednesday shot sparks over an otherwise routine meeting with reporters when asked about budget cuts proposed by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Kennedy relieved his counterattack to some extent by picturing the Eisenhower recommendations as echoes from a Republican budget director, Maurice Stans. But since Eisenhower stood by the Stans figures, Kennedy said the proposed cuts would pitch America into a recession and slow efforts to overtake Russia in space.

Eisenhower recently supported the Stans theory that $13 billion could be cut from the new Kennedy budget. Asked by reporters for his reaction, Kennedy fired back that while Stans was budget director (and in plain inference, while Eisenhower was president), the country had two recessions, a high unemployment rate, largest peacetime deficit and largest outflow of gold.

"That is not a record we plan to duplicate if we can help it," the President said to reporters and a nationwide radio-television audience.

Other news conference highlights:

—He estimated the number of Soviet troops in Cuba at between 12,000 and 13,000, from a high of about 22,000 last fall. Soviet withdrawals from Cuba in March were estimated at about 4,000. The President promised the United States would keep a continuing and close watch on the situation.

—He conceded the possibility of Cuban refugee hit-and-run raids on Soviet installations and ships being mounted from the long Florida coastline, but said this government discouraged such action because it might give Cuban Premier Fidel Castro greater support from the Russians and lead to dangerously stepped-up conflict.

—The President thought Defense Department investigators made a mistake in proposing use of lie detectors to track down officials who gave out a private memorandum involving the TFX fighter plane contract. Furthermore, Kennedy made it plain that he would oppose use of the polygraph in future internal government inquiries about news sources.

—He defended Congress against what a reporter called "a very low record of accomplishments." The President was confident the House and Senate would start moving on major legislation in the weeks ahead.

Parking Lot Costs Jobs

PORTLAND (UPI) — A dispute over whether a parking lot should be public or private brought a threat from a firm to move its business out of the state Wednesday.

County commissioners denied a bid by Arcoa, Inc., the U-Haul Trailer System, to buy a county-owned parking lot at the east end of the Morrison Street Bridge.

"They've just lost 300 jobs," said R. R. Wrublik, vice president of the firm.
