Kings Meant To Force Aces

By OSWALD JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

South arrived at four hearts on what is usually described as "Poppa-Momma" bidding, but there was nothing "Poppa - Momma" about this play.

Most people would have wound up down one and complaining about losing both diamond finesses, but Sonny Moyse, the editor of Bridge World magazine, played the hand as if he wanted to use it in an article.

Actually there was nothing complicated about the play. Sonny played a low club from dummy at trick one. East won with the jack and led the five of spades and right here is where Sonny came up with a play to distinguish the men from the boys.

He covered the five with his king. West won with the ace and returned the jack. Sonny played dummy's queen and, when East followed with the four spot, Sonny's worries were over. He drew trumps and lost a club finesse to East's king, but East did not have a spade to lead and eventually Sonny got rid of his last spade on the long club in dummy.

Sonny's play would not have succeeded against a 6-1 spade break, but neither would the play of a low spade provided West came up with the correct defensive play.

During the great Indian mutiny of 1854, only the Sepoy tribes remained loyal to the British Crown because they had "sworn by their salt," a binding oath.

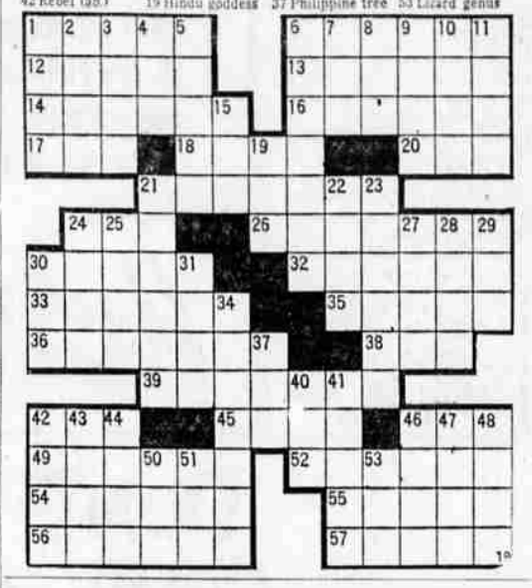
Answer to Previous Puzzle



Boy's Body Still Unclaimed

MEDFORD (UPI)—Only a few queries have been received by local police agencies regarding the identity of a small boy whose body was found last week in the Keene Creek reservoir east of Ashland.

Jackson County Dist. Atty. Alan B. Holmes said the Oregon State Crime Laboratory in Portland is still trying to establish cause of death.

The body, which was wrapped in a blanket and tied with an electric cord, was badly decomposed. Police believe the body had been in the water not more than 10 months.

The child's feet have been sent to the FBI laboratory in Washington, D.C., where attempts are being made to obtain footprints. Holmes said there is a slim possibility that footprints might be identified through hospital records, although many hospitals do not keep such records, or are not always accurate enough to establish identity.

OLD BALLOONS AND FAR AWAY

SANDOVAL, Ill. — Officials of this Southern Illinois town's centennial committee were surprised to learn some of the helium-filled balloons released during the centennial celebration in 1959 were found bobbing in a Florida surf 1,200 miles away in May, 1962.

The mystery was solved when a fisherman explained he was using the discarded balloons to test a fishing technique during a Florida vacation.

The U.S. is the world's largest exporter of farm products. Exports for 1961-62 were enough to fill over one million freight cars, or 4,500 cargo ships.

Single Women Not Always 'Willing'

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: When will otherwise intelligent people learn that a single woman, living alone, is not necessarily desperate, wretched and crazy to snag a man?

As a young divorcee I'm furious with "big hearted" friends and relatives who hand out my name and telephone number without permission. And I shudder when well-meaning clods introduce me as "available, unattached" and "foot-loose and fancy free." In other words—"willing, ready and eager." These clucks never consider the possibility that I just might have friends of my own, or perhaps a plan or two.

My job is interesting. I enjoy the world of books and music. I'm my own cook and housekeeper, in addition to holding a full-time job. There's no time to be lonely. I resent the creeps who call and assume I'm thrilled to hear a male voice from the outside world.—SELF-SUFFICIENT

Dear Self-Sufficient: It's good to know that some solo females are content and "self-sufficient." I hope you realize how fortunate you are.

Most bachelor girls, divorcees and widows would be delighted to hear a male voice from the outside world. I know, because they tell me.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I differ on a vital issue. Each of us feels the other is dead wrong, so there is no chance of a compromise. We've agreed to write this letter together and accept your decision.

Jay listens in on my conversations on the extension phone. He frequently goes through my purse. He opens letters addressed to me if he gets to the mail first. I resent this and have told him so.

He says I am off base, that marriage should mean total sharing, that there should be no secrets. He insists that when people have nothing to hide they do not resent being "listened in on"—or having their mail read first. He has said repeatedly. "I wouldn't mind at all if you did the same thing to me."

Well, I never would because I wasn't brought up that way. I can't eavesdrop, or look in someone else's wallet, or read their mail. I'd feel like a sneak thief.

Please settle this in the column. Thank you. — DIFFERENT WORLDS

Dear Worlds: Intercepting mail, listening in on phone conversations and going through a purse is not "sharing"—it's spying.

A solid marriage is built on confidence and trust. Snooping and eavesdropping suffocate the sense of mutual confidence that is essential to a healthy relationship.

Dear Ann Landers: Compared with some of the problems people write to you about mine is nothing, but I notice that sometimes you print letters from people who are just annoyed. Well, that's me.

I have lost my third good fountain pen since Christmas simply because I let someone use it "for a minute."

Is it possible that people carry off fountain pens accidentally? It's hard to believe a person doesn't realize the pen isn't his when he puts it in his pocket—or in her purse.

Is there some way I can hang on to my next fountain pen—short of refusing to let anyone borrow it? I hate to say no to such a simple request but I can't afford these losses.—NO PLUMA

Dear No: The solution is so simple I'll bet you'll wonder why you never thought of it yourself.

When you lend your fountain pen keep the cap. No one would put a pen in a pocket or purse with the cap off. (Obviously, this advice won't work for ball points without caps.)

If alcohol is robbing you or someone you love of health and dignity, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For the Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems.

Cardiac Station Opened

PORTLAND (UPI) — The first Cardiac Telemetry Station on the West Coast and one of the first in the world was opened at St. Vincent Hospital here Wednesday.

The station uses new "dynamic electro-cardiographic" equipment which is available at only five institutions in the world, including Cape Canaveral and the World Health Organization in Switzerland.

The new equipment makes it possible to obtain by tape recording complete uninterrupted records of heart actions of active patients continuously over long periods of time and without supervision.

Such information has previously been unobtainable.

The equipment will be used in research projects aimed at earlier diagnosis of heart disease and prevention of crippling and fatal heart attacks.

Experts say that such research studies may have a tremendous impact on the nation's health.

The equipment consists of a portable tape recorder carried over the patient's shoulder. It records his heart action on magnetic tape for as long as 10 hours, in all types of activity.

Electronic scanners can screen the entire 10 hours of tape in 10 minutes.

Previously electrocardiographic equipment could record heart beats only while the patient was at rest and only for short periods of time.

GOOD OLD 32ND

TUCSON, Ariz. — The Tucson City Council is convinced that 16 residents of the southern Arizona city have no romance in their hearts.

The council changed the name of East 32nd Street to Valentine Lane. The 16 residents protested and demanded the oldname be returned.
