Every East player in the 1965 World Championship team trials had to enter the bidding at the five level or take the coward's course and pass. Some South players opened with four spades; others had opened with three and been raised to four by their partners.

Eight East players took a deep breath and bid five hearts. The other one passed and wound up losing a well deserved 13 International Match Points.

Each West player managed to raise his partner to six and four were allowed to play that nice laydown contract, one actually was doubled by North, which shows that experts make just as bad doubles as anyone else.

The North-South players who let six hearts play gambled that they would defeat that contract which actually did depend on a club finesse.

The hardest luck was that of the East-West pair who first reached six hearts through fine bidding, then found perfect defense to beat six spades four tricks only to wind up losing six hearts anyway. The defense wasn't too difficult but it is worthy of note that two East-West pairs failed to find it.

The defense starts with West opening the nine of clubs. East cashed two club tricks and shifted to his singleton diamond. West took his ace and gave his partner a ruff whereupon East led a third club and thereby insured a trump trick for his partner.
