SHALL TREES STAND IN SIDEWALK-STRIP

SION THIS AFTERNOON TO DECIDE MATTER.

Council will meet in special session farmers says this good weather is this — Saturday — afternoon, at 4 to counterbalance "high taxes." o'clock,, to consider the proposition of cutting the trees on the C. E. Babcock lot, on Washington street.

Washington street is being improved at this time and along with other property the street and sidewalk in front of the old Babcock home is coming in for its share of the changes going on in the street. And in front of this old home, in the sidewalk strip, are six or eight handsome old tree being trees that were planted by C. E. Babcock some fifty years ago.

In the first place these trees are handsome as handsome goes. In the second place they are an ornament to the property and to the street and its surroundings. The fact that they are on the sidewalk line does not detract from their beauty and does not n any degree detract from the beauty that they reflect on the home lot or

The question for settlement is: Shall these trees be let stand, and the sidewalk be built around them, or shall they be cut down and the roots pulled up, making a bald place in that part of the street and city?

Because of the beauty of these trees, and the reflex of beauty to the neighborhood, a meeting of Council has been called to discuss and consider the feasibility of permitting these rees to stand and the building of the sidewalk around them. Council will meet at 4 o'clock this afternoon and the friends of the trees promise to be present and plead for the life and grandeur of these noble specimens of the forest.

STATE NEEDS THE ROADS AND CONVICTS NEED THE EXER-CISE OUT OF DOORS.

SALEM, Or., March 24.—At a con-ference held in the governor's office members of the county court of Marion county, and the executive committee of the board of trade, plans were dissystem of macadamized roads connect ing the city with the state institutions Convict labor is to be utilized.

Governor West called the conference with the idea that united effort can perhaps accomplish much towards bringing about the desired end. The roads leading to many of the institutions are in a bad shape. The state county and city are all mutually interested and the governor believes the city and county should be willing to cooperate with the state in the mat-

No extensive plan of boulevards is planned but merely good, substantial serviceable roads that will be of use to everybody in the vicinity. They will also serve as a model and a nu-cleus around which the movement for good roads can gain strength for effort in other parts of the state.

The number of convicts at the penitentiary is growing rapidly. As the legislature did not make adequate provision for such an unexpected increase the problem of their retention is get ting to be a large one.. If the county and city will provide the funds the governor thinks the state can legally provide the labor from the penitentlary. It will be a benefit both to the state and a God-send to the convicts to be allowed to labor in the open during the summer months.
