Phony Cutie Cons Swain Into Expensive Romance

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Five months ago I fell for a girl who works in an all-night cafe. She is better looking than Elizabeth Taylor. I was never allowed to see her to the door of her apartment because she said she lived with her brother and he didn't want her to go with men she met at work.

Two weeks ago I found out she has no brother. She has a light housekeeping arrangement with an unemployed ball player.

I've given this girl $300 to pay back bills. I sent her to a chiropodist to get her feet put in shape. I sent her to my dentist to get her teeth fixed. I even offered to pay for her French lessons when she told me she was nutty over the language.

I've asked her to marry me but she says she cannot marry out of her faith. I have never known her to go to church so I asked about her religion. She said "I am a Seven-Day Adventurist."

I know she is a little phony but I love her anyway. I think with love and a few of the nicer things in life I could make something out of her. How about it?—BIG DADDY

Dear Dad: Dozens of girls would give a left lung for a man who is as kind and generous (and as solvent) as you. Set your sights higher, Buddy Boy, and quit measuring a girl's worth by her looks. Those hidden assets are what count.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 15 and a freshman in high school.

Last night Tony (not his real name) called me for the first time. I had been hoping Tony would call me because I'd been admiring him for a long time.

We weren't on the phone more than two minutes when my two younger brothers got into an argument. My mother came running out of the kitchen into the hall (where the phone is) and she screamed right into the phone, using some very vulgar language.

Tony heard every word and asked who was screaming like that. I lied and said it was the cleaning woman.

After I rang off I went into the kitchen and asked my mother if she would please not shout such foul language into the phone again. She called me "Princess Margaret" and said she will talk any way she wants to. What do you suggest? — SHAMED OUT

Dear Shamed: I know of no way to protect yourself against a mother who doesn't care what she says, when she says it, or to whom.

I don't believe children should apologize for parents nor do I think it was fair to blame the cleaning lady. If you have another similar experience, simply say, "I'm sorry, my mother lost her temper and I can't do anything about it."

Dear Ann Landers: I've just received an invitation to a money shower and I am really burning. Isn't this bad taste, even though the person who invited me is my aunt and says only relatives and close friends are being asked?

I am enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for an immediate personal reply, but I hope you will print my letter in the paper for the benefit of other readers who may be similarly afflicted. — THE CAMEL'S BACK

Dear Back: Money showers are an ancient custom which originated in Europe. In my view the custom should have been left in Europe.
