RSDAY, JANUARY 24, 1901.

n congress on the 18th, Represen-ve Tongue introduced a bill to the Klamath Indians $533,270 the lands erroneously excluded n their reservation, and appended rovision which profects the state its lieu selection of lands for sec-ons 16 and 36 in this area, which ve already been relinquished.

Game and Forestry Warden Quim-'s biennial report to Gov. Geer ys that the Indian agents of the U. government in Oregon permit the dians to kill game out of season d encourage them to violate the w. He makes but one exception to his sweeping declaration, viz: Col. Applegate, the agent of the Klamath eservation.

Gov. Geer has made formal claim in behalf of the state of Oregon for 117,000 acres of swamp land lying near Klamath lake and included in the Klamath Indian reservation. It is the state's contention that since the swamp land grant was made prior to the creation of the reservation, the title to the swamp land has vested in the state. This land probably includes the Big Klamath marsh, Sycan marsh and the marsh from Modoc Point to north of the mouth of Williamson river.—Oregonian.

The dispatches in Monday's dailies gave up hope of the recovery of Queen Victoria and indicated that her life could be prolonged only a few days at most. The Queen is believed to be overcome by paralysis. Queen Victoria was born May 24, 1819, and was proclaimed ruler of Great Britain June 21, 1837. From that time to the present, she has been instrumental in shaping the English goverment, and she goes down to death with the distinction of having been the wisest and most judicious and humane sovereign that country has ever had. Socially, politically and commercially, her influence has elevated European standards immeasurably.

BILLS IN THE LEGISLATURE.

In the legislature some of the more important bills introduced are the following:

A bill providing for an expression by electors for their choice for U. S. senator.

Creating a state board of equalization.

For the election of precinct assessors.

For a general and uniform system in the public schools.

An act relating to assessment and taxation of personal property.

An act to exempt from attachment and garnishee, a debtor's wages for thirty days.

An act providing for the uniform and general taxation of railroad, telegraph and express companies.

An act to establish state and county boards of health.

An act for the taxation of dogs. Money derived from this source is to be expended in reimbursing farmers whose sheep have been killed or maimed by dogs.

An act regulating the business of life insurance companies.

An act making taxes a lien on real property after tax levy is made and until entire amount is discharged.

An act regulating transportation of freight and passengers by railroads and other transportation companies.

An act that peddlers shall procure county licenses in the counties where they sell their goods.

An act relative to construction of telephone, telegraph and electric lines.

An act to provide for the establishment of public school libraries.

An act to protect sheep husbandry.

An act making all streets and alleys in incorporated towns, public highways.

An act regulating hours of labor.

An act to re-district the state. Under this, Klamath, Lake, Harney and Malheur counties will compose the 9th senatorial district. (The present 9th district comprises Klamath, Lake, Crook and Wasco.) Under the proposed law, the 21st representative district will be composed of Klamath and Lake counties. The 21st representative district now contains Wasco, Crook, Klamath and Lake.

The Oregon Statesman of Friday says that the lower house is literally swamped with bills—125 have been introduced, read and sent to the printer—and still the deluge keeps up. From every quarter come the bills, while several representatives have a half dozen to a dozen to their credit. Many of these proposed laws come from the "reform members," and as they are in a number of cases ton of them will never get beyond certain pigeon holes—the death of a bill in committee is an easy and painless one.

In some instances members introduce bills "by request," interested parties securing the services of members for the purpose of getting private measures before the house. In the cases of these measures there is usually no one to push them and many of the "by request" bills die an ignoble death. As a result of the rush of bills during the first week the chief clerk's desk is swamped, as is the state printer, but the accumulation will be cleared away by Monday, and after that, it is not likely that so great a rush will again be experienced in the house.

THE PERPLEXING LEONIDES.

Astronomers Prepare to Photograph Heavenly Display That May Not Appear.

Yale astronomers are preparing to photograph what Leonides appear in the heavens this fall. Last year at this time the most extensive preparations were made to photograph the meteroric display, but the cloudy skies and the fact that but few leonids appeared threw the astronomers into a state of great perplexity. Since then the reason for the non-appearance of the meteorites has not been discovered. Dr. Frederick L. Chase, of the Yale observatory, says:

"There is just as much reason to expect the leonids at this time as last year. Astronomers have not yet been able to discover why it is that with the usual regularity with which the leonids come every 33 years the shower last year failed to appear. There are two possible explanations of this. Since the last great shower in 1866 Jupiter has passed quite close to the portion of the orbit containing the meteors due in 1899, and has, according to calculations, so perturbed the path as to make them cross the line of the earth's orbit several hundred thousand miles inside the orbit—that is, nearer the sun—so that the earth may not have passed through the swarm. At the same time the stream will take but four or five hours in passing any way, and if it comes before the radiant is above the horizon it will not be seen at all.

"The second possible explanation is that there was a dearth of meteors in that portion of the swarm encountered by the earth in 1899, and there is no reason to-day to think that they are evenly distributed. It is possible, however, to believe that the portion of the stream due at the intersection of the earth's orbit this year, has not yet been perturbed by Jupiter in the same way as last year."

TO CONDUCT A DAIRY FARM.

Former Well-Known Newspaper Woman Buys Herd of Jerseys.

Mrs. Antoinette Van Hoesen Wakeman, formerly a well-known newspaper woman in Chicago, has put a herd of grade Jersey and Jersey-Holstein cows on her farm, near Hastings, Minn., and made the first shipment of milk to the Crescent Creamery company, of St. Paul.

Mrs. Wakeman believes that Hastings is admirably situated to become a point for the shipping of milk to the Twin Cities. She proposes to devote her place, which is less than a mile from the courthouse, exclusively to dairy products and fruit, and has built a barn, and proposes to have her herd and milk cared for on the lines indicated by Prof. T. L. Haecker, of the agricultural experiment station of the state university. Mrs. Wakeman has arranged to ship from 20 to 30 gallons of milk daily.

Although this is a somewhat unusual innovation for a woman in this part of the country, "personally conducted" farms are a profitable fad of eastern women. Mrs. Richard Watson Gilder, whose husband is the editor of the Century, has a farm of 250 acres, where she lives nine months out of every year, and makes most profitable. Abram Hewitt's daughters are also enthusiastic and successful scientific farmers, and many other well-known women are devoting themselves to similar agricultural undertakings.

SPIRITED COMPETITION.

New Firms Seek to Secure Contracts for the Building of Warships.

The monopoly of constructing warships of the largest type, hitherto enjoyed by three concerns in this country, promises to be invaded by four or five firms, which have expressed a great desire to make proposals for the construction of the vessels, bids for which will be opened on December 6. The three firms which have always bid upon this work are the Union iron works, of San Francisco; the Cramp Building and Dry Dock company, of Philadelphia, and the Newport News (Va.) Shipbuilding company. It now appears that these firms will have as rivals the Fore River Shipbuilding company, of Weymouth, Mass.; Townsend & Downey, of New York; the New York Shipbuilding company, of New York city; the Trigg Engine and Shipbuilding company, of Richmond, Va., and the Risdon iron works, of San Francisco. The appearance of the latter firm in the list of competitors is something of a surprise. It will make it interesting for the Union iron works, which has had no competitors in the race for naval contracts covering large ships on the Pacific coast.

Lightning Rod Miles in Length.

Bavaria has a most curious claim to notoriety, which is that it possesses the longest lightning conductor in the world. It rises some yards above the top of the meteorological station on the Zugspitze, the highest point in the German empire, and runs down the side of the mountain to the bottom of Hollenthal, where there is running ...

WEBSTER'S COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY

TRAGEDY OF A LIFE.

Sailor Deserted by Friends Dies Alone on a Barren Island.

His Skeleton Found in His Bunk with a Diary by His Side in Which He Had Recorded His Terrible Experiences.

On Unimak island, which guards one of the entrances to the Behring sea, a rude mound of rocks marks the last resting place of Charles William Anderson, sailor, fisherman and hunter.

Anderson starved to death on the bleak and barren island waiting for friends who deserted him. He died on June 19, 1899, and his skeleton in his bunk and his diary beside it were found by two hunters who were driven on the island during a storm.

The diary was addressed to Andrew Groswold, of Unga, who arrived at San Francisco a few days ago with his friend's last writings.

Several vessels passed by his island prison, the pathetic record reads, but none saw Anderson's flag of distress. Once a vessel was becalmed close to the shore and he tried to reach it, but he had not the strength left to launch his little boat. His legs had failed him and he could only pull himself along by his elbows.

He deliberated on shooting his dog, Dempsey, but he could not screw up courage to slay his faithful friend. "He brought seals to me through the breakers," he wrote, "and I fed him as long as I could." Finally the dog disappeared.

The diary records the terrible sufferings of Anderson from thirst and his expeditions after fresh water. The last entry says:

"Monday, June 19.—Now I must go for water again. I am more afraid this time than before. But with God's help I may come back again. I would not like to die outside. But God's will be done."

He had his wish, for he returned and died in his bunk.

THRONE OR WEDDING.

Bill to Enable Wilhelmina to Marry and Yet Remain Queen.

In order to hold the throne the Dutch sovereign cannot marry without the consent of her parliament. She may marry otherwise, but in that case would inexorably have to renounce the throne. Therefore two bills are about to be put before the states general, the first giving the parliamentary consent to Queen Wilhelmina's marriage to Duke Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, and the second granting full naturalization to the duke, as well as deciding upon his future title. Temporarily this title is that of prince consort. Preparations for the wedding are being hurried along.

The most soothing, healing and antiseptic application ever devised is DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It relieves at once and cures piles, sores, eczema and skin diseases. Beware of imitations. J. L. Padgett & Sons.

A LIBRARY IN TWO BOOKS.—It has been said that the Bible and WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY constitute a good library; and while this seems to be a strong statement it is in a great degree true, for these two books constitute a source of knowledge that no single intellect can exhaust in a lifetime, and a fountain head from which all can drink and daily grow wiser and better. At any rate these books form the best foundation for every library, and in reading, as in building, a good foundation is essential. They are also authoritative guides, each in its sphere, the one, that the heart and life may not offend against God, and the other, that the tongue and pen may not offend against man.

"The Baltimore Belle Who Made the Most Brilliant Match of Any Girl in America," is the title of an article in the Ladies' Home Journal for January. "Housekeeping in a Millionaire's Family." "The 'Little Women' Play," adapted from Miss Alcott's charming story, for stage presentation, and illustrated by Reginald B. Birch, and two pictorial pages, "A Winter Service at Church," by W. L. Taylor, and "The Town Meeting," by A. B. ... which the Journal begins the twentieth century. "The Forehandedness of Lucinda Smith," by "Josiah Allen's Wife," Elizabeth Stuart Phelp's "The Successors of Mary the First," "The Story of a Young Man," by Clifford Howard, and another "Blue River Bear Story," by Charles Major, are also among the many excellent things presented in the January Journal. Two articles show plans and details for "A Country House of Moderate Cost" and "A Southern Farmhouse to Cost $3000." Edward Bok writes of "The Two Centuries and This Magazine"—the Journal. There is also a double page, "Through Picturesque America," giving eleven views of the magnificent scenery of Washington and Oregon. Practical articles show the fashions in woman's wear, and touch upon almost every subject for the home. By the Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar a year; ten cents a copy.
