Methodist Church Notes.

Formality without the Spirit is putting to sleep many churches in various denominations.

There is a vital connection between morals and religion. Many have not learned this.

President-elect Wilson is already making enemies by omitting the Inaugural Ball. But he has promised to solve the high cost of living!

The liquor interests are distinctly in disfavor in our present legislature. No wonder!

TILLAMOOK HIGH SCHOOL TOO SPEEDY FOR HEBO.

On Saturday evening, January 18th, at the skating rink, the Tillamook High School quintet trimmed the Heboites by a score of 21 to 8.

The High School team outclassed their opponents from start to finish, especially in their team work. At the end of the first half the score stood 14 to 5 in the school's favor. The game was well attended and enjoyed by representatives from Hebo, as well as local enthusiasts. About four minutes before time was up in the second half, the Hebo team put substitute Schultson in Kellow's position at guard, and Tillamook put substitute Bain in DeLilles' position at guard, but nothing was gained from the changes by either team, as time was soon called with the Hebo team at the small end of the score. The lineups of the two teams were:

HEBO.	Field Baskets.	B. from Fouls.	Points.
R. McGinnis (F)	1	1	3
McBurney (F)	0	3	3
Cross, Capt. (C)	1	0	2
Kellow (G)	0	0	0
W. McGinnis (G)	0	0	0
Total points			8
T. H. S.
Elsinger (F)	5	0	10
Stanley, Capt. (F)	2	1	5
Wallace (C)	3	0	6
Stam (G)	0	0	0
Total points			21

Referee, Melchior; Umpire, Moore; Scorekeeper, Jope; Timekeepers, Dawson and Cross; Fouls called on Hebo, 8; T. H. S., 9. Substitutes, Schultson for Kellow, Bain for DeLilles.

The Amazons won from the Suffragettes in the preliminary game, which was played according to boys' rules, which made the game much more interesting for both spectators and players. The lineups:

AMAZONS.	Pts.	SUFF'G'TS.	Pts.
M. Holden (F)	0	S. Coyne (F)	1
R. Burge (F)	8	A. Everson (F)	5
M. Emerson (C)	0	A. Eg'ston (C)	0
M. Coates (G)	0	M. Hare (G)	0
V. Phillips (G)	0	H. Case (G)	0
		Ebinger (Sub G)	0
Total	8	Total	6

The two lower class teams played their forth game of the series, in which the Sophomores won by a score of 19 to 6. This makes two games won by each of the teams. The class that wins the fifth game will then be in danger of an encounter with the first team. The freshmen have already made known the fact that they are of the opinion they will trim the first quintet. But of course these youngsters are very apt to build castles in the air.

Slash of the Dining Hour.

The hour of dining has advanced with the centuries. Froissart mentions waiting on the Duke of Lancaster at 5 in the afternoon after he had supped and was about to go to bed, and the preface of the Hedamenon shows that the queen of Navarre dined at 10 o'clock in the morning. From the Northumberland Household Book dated 1512, we learn that the family rose at 6, breakfasted at 7, dined at 10, supped at 4 and retired for the night at 9. Louis XIV did not dine till 12, while his contemporaries, Cromwell and Charles II, took the meal at 1. In 1766 the hour was advanced to 2, in 1781 we find the Duchess of Northumberland dining at 3, and in 1790 Cowper speaks of 4 o'clock as the fashionable time. After the battle of Waterloo the dinner hour was altered to 6, from which time it has advanced by half hour stages to 8. So that in 400 years the dinner hour had gradually moved through at least ten hours of the day.—London Spectator.

Painting Turkeys' Legs.

Among the many trades which exist, but which are not as a rule filled up in the census papers, are the "fakers" of all kinds, from the manufacturer of antique furniture and brasses to the bird fancier who can pass a sparrow as a canary. Perhaps the most curious form of "faking" is that which deals with turkeys, dead or alive, and which is principally practiced in France. The age of a turkey is told chiefly by its legs and beak. These are filed and treated with a special varnish by the "faker" two or three times a week before the bird is to be sold. It will then, to all appearance, have renewed its youth, and its owner is able to obtain a much higher price. The freshness of the dead birds is also largely told by the color of the legs, and for this too a varnish is used. The varnish is the discovery of a Frenchman, Pierre Chapellier, who seems to have been a really respectable man, as he had taken lessons in the art of varnishing from a master varnisher.—London Telegraph.

Hardworking Dollar.

"I noticed a statement in an eastern paper the other day that has disquieted me a good deal," said a Cleveland man recently. "The item called to my attention the fact that it takes a dollar at the usual rate of interest more than two years to earn a dime. You can see the effect. Every time I spend a dime I think of that tolling dollar spinning away in the dark somewhere. The dime I spend means more than two years of steady application, and yet I let it go as if it were of too small value to be at all considered. Why, it takes a dollar more than a year to earn 5 cents! Think of that when you slip the next nickel across. It really makes me feel uncomfortable. I wish I hadn't read the stupid thing."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Lameness

Sloan's Liniment is a quick and reliable remedy for lameness in horses and other farm animals.

"Sloan's Liniment surpasses anything on earth for lameness in horses and other farm animals. I would not sleep without it in my stable."—MARTIN FOYLE, 432 West 19th St., New York City.

Good for Swelling and Abscess.

Mr. H. M. Gibbs, of Lawrence, Kan., R. F. D., No. 3, writes:—"I had a mare with an abscess on her neck and one bottle of Sloan's Liniment entirely cured her. I keep it on the farm for galls and small swellings and for everything about the stock."

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

is a quick and safe remedy for hog cholera.

Governor of Georgia uses Sloan's Liniment for Hog Cholera.

"I heard then, Brown (what's quite a farmer) say that he had never lost a hog from cholera and that his remedy always was a tablespoonful of Sloan's Liniment to a gallon of slops, dosing the dose as the animal improved. I put both this, Brown and myself were at the Agricultural College building and in the discussion of the ravages of the disease, Gov. Brown gave the remedy named as a sure thing."—"OBSERVER." Silent Wisdom.

Keep still. When trouble is brewing, keep still. Even when slander is getting on his legs, keep still. When your feelings are hurt, keep still—till you recover from your excitement at any rate. Things look differently through an agitated eye.

Dr. Burton relates how once in a commotion he wrote a letter and sent it and wished he had not. "In my later years," he said, "I had another commotion and wrote a long letter, but life had rubbed a little sense into me, and I kept that letter in my pocket against the day when I could look it over without agitation and without tears. I was glad I did. Less and less it seemed necessary to send it. I was not sure it would do any hurt, but in my doubtfulness I leaned to reticence, and eventually it was destroyed." Time works wonders. Wait till you can speak calmly, and then you will not need to speak, maybe.

Candlelight.

In domestic lighting for nearly the first half of the last century candles held undisputed sway. The bell is rung, and Mary brings in candles, a pair of molds in tall brass candlesticks brightly polished, with snuffers on a tray—a sharp beaked snuffers of steel, with jaws that opened and shut with a snap and something sinister in their appearance. There were plated candlesticks and snuffers, too, for occasions of state, with silver branches that suggested the spoils of Jerusalem, but there was also a lamp, a stately edifice of bronze that towered over the family circle at times and shed a generous and genial light when so inclined. But what a demon it was to smoke and to smell! And it would burn, when it condescended to burn at all, nothing but the very finest sperm oil at a fabulous price per gallon.—London Globe.

Old Time Simple Manners.

Richard Evelyn, who died in 1706, laments in his diary the vanishing of "the simple manners that prevailed in his younger days." "Men," he says, "courted and chose their wives for their modesty, frugality, keeping at home, good housewifery and other wonderful virtues then in reputation. The virgins and young ladies of that golden age put their hands to the spindle, nor disdained they the needle; were obsequious and helpful to their parents, instructed in the managery of the family and gave presages of making excellent wives. Their retirements were devout and religious books and their recreations in the distillatory, the knowledge of plants and their virtues, for the comfort of their poor neighbors and use of their family, which wholesome, plain diet and kitchen physic preserved in perfect health."

Some Popular Quotations.

"In spite of Solon's popularity, few people remember that from 'Old Mortality' we have a son of upturned nose and Byron is never thanked for 'fresh and broad can't hear it.' The 'most humorous and most exemplary of British essays' is known to have 'thought twice or thrice things better in France' and 'God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb' but we seldom credit him with 'I saw the lion enter into his soul.' Yet that keen image of grief so often on our lips may also be found in the 'Sentimental Journey.' Gibbon's sponge, lively little read, the immortal 'Jean Gigue' always except, of. Therefore we may be forgiven if the source of 'hard and glove' or 'fool their 300 friends' has slipped our memories. The same may be said of Hogarth's 'To know her was to love her,' Congreve's 'Married in haste and repent at leisure,' Farquhar's 'Over the hills and far away' and Southey's 'Man of intellect.' Sir Philip Sidney, who was poet, philosopher and soldier all here, should share a better fate. How many can tell that it was he who first said in English, 'God helps those who help themselves?'"—Cornhill Magazine.

Flowers Instead of Boots.

M. Max Reinhardt, the famous producer of wordless plays, endured poverty in his youth, and of those lean years many stories are extant.

"Stage in Berlin," said a German actor, Reinhardt, who was playing with me in a touring stock company, turned up at the theater with a magnificent mauve orchid in his buttonhole and on his feet a pair of atrocious boots with their soles tied on by thongs of twine.

"I ventured to take Reinhardt to task.

"'Tut, tut,' I said. 'To wear a costly flower like that, along with such shocking boots.'

"Reinhardt frowned and answered contemptuously:

"'For $5 I could buy a pair of commonplace, machine made boots in any shop in town, but for the same sum I can get at a florist's whom I alone know three of these marvelously beautiful orchids.'"

Funny Blunders.

The following is surely the funniest vote of thanks offered for a long time. The speaker with evidently the best intentions in the world nervously floundered along through various sentences complimentary to the lecturer and finally flickered out feebly thus: "And so I propose a vote of thanks for the lecture to which we have so ably listened." The audience was so wearied that it did not notice the famous remark, and only the lecturer smiled.

It is fit to be placed beside another muddle headed sentence made in conversation to a north London clergyman. A man had been pressing his views energetically on a certain question when suddenly he paused and, looking at the clergyman, said briskly, "And now, sir, what is your humble opinion?"—London Tit-Bits.
