HUNDRED FARMERS ASK HIGH SCHOOL VOTE

Twelve Grades Instead of Only Eight, as Now

WOULD DRAW PEOPLE TO COUNTY

A Free High School for Rich and Poor Alike

One hundred farmers of Washington county have petitioned the county court to submit the question of a county high school to the voters of the county, at the next June election. The establishment of a county high school would attract more immigration to our borders than any other enterprise, and at the same time make the boys and girls, rich and poor, independent of outside schools. It has been a success wherever tried, and many counties much poorer than Washington are now maintaining such schools, and are pleased with them. The expense of a county high school would be borne by a general tax upon the whole county, whereas, as at present, the tax is borne by the district where grades above the 8th grade are established. There are more than 24 four-year high schools in Oregon, while Washington county, with its $16,000,000 worth of assessable property, has not one such high school. With such an institution within her borders, Washington county could educate her own school teachers, and not be forced to send to outside counties, where such high schools are in operation, to get them. County pride should give Washington county a high school.

EXPERIMENT STATION

A. P. Stover, Government Irrigation Engineer, has returned to Oregon from Washington, D. C., and will prosecute experiment work in this state, during the coming summer. His plan is to demonstrate by experiments the value of summer irrigation in the Willamette Valley, and he has made arrangements to conduct work of that nature on the old Dudley farm, north of Hillsboro, now owned by the Bagleys. Geo. R. Bagley has been experimenting somewhat on his own account, along the above lines, and is a strong supporter of summer irrigation in this valley. Mr. Bagley has just received from Washington eight pounds of the celebrated Arabian alfalfa, which he will sow on the Dudley ranch this spring. The season for this kind of alfalfa is longer than for other kinds. It is earlier in spring and lasts longer in the fall than any other variety known. A crop can be grown in 20 to 24 days, while the other kinds take 30 days to mature for cutting. The experiments at the Dudley farm will be watched with interest. Mr. Stover has two or three other experiment stations in the valley.

Mr. Berman, a Corvallis drug gist, was in town Tuesday.

Rev. A Robinson, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Tualatin Plains, will preach his farewell sermon at the Plains church next Sunday morning, and at Reedville in the evening. He expects to close his work April 1st, winding up a nine years' pastorate, the longest service since the days of Rev. Geo. Ross, the pioneer minister of that church. During his pastorate the church building has been enlarged, and the membership increased from 42 to 130 communicants. He took up the Reedville work 7 years ago, and the church there is nearly out of debt. Many people, both on the plains and at Reedville, will sincerely regret to see Rev Robinson quit his work in this vicinity, where he has made many friends.

MARE AND COLT STOLEN LAST NIGHT

Richard Linton, on the old Jackson Place, is Loser

THE ANIMAL WAS WORTH $150

Many think Organized Gang of Horse Thieves in Valley

Last night, at what time it is not known, a horse thief, took a fine black mare and colt, belonging to Richard Linton, who lives on the old Wm. Jackson, now owned by Ed. Lyons, east of town. Tracks of the two animals, leading from the barn to the road, were seen, and also footprints of the thief. A stranger, looking for work, was around the Linton premises Wednesday, and as he is not in evidence in the neighborhood, is suspicioned of being the man. Sheriff Connell was notified early this morning by phone, and at once phoned and wired other towns and communities a description of the animals.

This forenoon he phoned in to Deputy Kane that he was following the tracks of the animals, but as the thief probably had a good start, he may get away. Many people believe that there is an organized gang of horse thieves operating in this valley.

A halter and bridle were also taken by the thief.

REBEKAH CONVENTION

A district convention, comprising the Forest Grove, Gaston and Hillsboro Rebekah lodges, was held in this city Saturday, March 21. In the absence of Mrs. Nellie Campbell, of Forest Rebekah Lodge, chairman, Mrs. R. H. Greer, vice chairman, presided, calling to order at 10:30 a. m.

At the afternoon session the Forest Rebekah lodge put on the floor work and initiated a candidate, which was very creditably done. Thirty delegates were present from Forest Grove, and eight from Gaston. An invitation from the Rebekah lodge of Gaston, to meet at that place next year, was accepted.

Officers elected for the following year were: Mrs. Eliza J. Russell, Gaston, chairman; Mrs. Belle Sears, Forest Grove, vice chairman; Mrs. Lizzie Wilkes, Hillsboro, secretary. Appointed officers were: Mrs. Alice Parsons, warden; Mrs. Mary Humphreys, conductress; Mary Ward, I. G.; Anna Dickson, O. G.; Jane Spence, chaplain.
