M'MINNVILLE TROUPE IN A SPLENDID PLAY

Oldtime Favorites Visit Crescent Theatre Last Friday Night

ALIAS JIMMY VALENTINE A WINNER

Crowded House Hears a Good Production Rendered Like Legitimates

The Crescent Theatre was crowded to the limit last Friday evening, the bill being Alias Jimmy Valentine, a splendid drama, presented by the McMinnville Dramatic Company, among whom are oldtime Hillsboro favorites, Frank Wortman and Dave Doty, both of whom are not strangers here, were greeted with oldtime enthusiasm, while Gilbert Tilbury, a former Hillsboro boy, being in the cast, made the listeners more than ever assume an "at-home" position. The play centers around Jimmy Valentine, a man who has served time for the folly of early youth. He makes good after his release from prison, and becomes an attache of a bank. Just as he has been discovered, and is about to lose his position and suffer disgrace, an accident makes his future. He is in love with a girl whose father is connected with the bank in which Valentine works, and a new safe is being installed. The girl's little sister gets into the new safe, which has a combination yet unknown to the bank employees, and her little brother swings the door shut on her and locks the door. The situation means suffocation, unless the door is opened. After a few minutes of terrible anxiety, Jimmy Valentine, knowing that opening the safe will substantiate the suspicion that he is a crook, throws prudence to the winds in order to save the child's life. He carefully listens as the tumblers turn, and in a few minutes shows his ability as a safe expert by delivering the child. Turning, he saw the detective, and realized that he was identified. Valentine decides to leave, thinking the game was up, but when he bids farewell to Rose the detective intervenes and told him that he thought the girl needed him—to which Rose assents—and all ends happily.

The cast:

Handler, Warden of Sing Sing Prison—Gilbert Tilbury.

Smith, his clerk—Louis Bralv.

Doyle, a Detective—Dave Doty.

Bill Avery, an Old Offender—John Mason.

Mrs. Webster and Mrs. Moore, Of the "Gate of Hope" Society—Amy Graeff and Jennie Tilbury.

Robert Fay, Lieutenant Governor of New York—H. L. Toney.

Rose Lane, his Niece—Inez Stark.

"Blinkey Davis," a Forger—Walter Doty.

Lee Randall, doing ten years for burglary under the name of Jimmy Valentine—Frank Wortman.

Wm. Lane, Rose's Father—H. L. Toney.

"Red" Joclyn, a "Yegg," Valentine's Pal—Louis Bralv.

Bell Boy—Orville Doty.

Bobby, Rose's Brother—Sherman Leroy Wallace.

Kitty, Rose's Sister—Mary Feely.

William, a Bank Clerk—Walter Doty.

Hillsboro appreciates the play, which was one of the best ever presented here.

MISS ARAMINTA WILCOX

Miss Araminta Wilcox, of Portland, passed away at the home of her mother, Mrs. Julia Wilcox, Saturday, January 24, 1914. She was the daughter of Dr. Ralph Wilcox, who took up a donation land claim, at Hillsboro, and on which a portion of the city now stands. She was born, Aug. 31, 1866, and spent much of her life in this city. She leaves to mourn her loss her mother, a brother, John D. Wilcox, of Portland, and a sister, Mrs. George Good, of LaGrande, Ore. She was the sister of the late Mrs. A. C. Archbold, of Hillsboro, and was well known to all the pioneers of this section. Her life had a sweetness of disposition rarely witnessed in people, and she was ever a universal favorite.

The funeral took place, Sunday, in Portland. There are many expressions of regret heard in Hillsboro over her death, and the entire community tenders condolence to the aged mother, who reached her 90th year last Summer.

The German Speaking Society will hold a meeting in Hillsboro, the first Saturday in February—Feb. 7—at the court house, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. All members are earnestly requested to be in attendance, as business of importance will be called at the session.

The Tillamook line was opened this week for freight trains.

The Perfect Street.

I know a street where all is fair;
In splendid lines the houses loom,
And tender fragrance fills the air,
As if red roses were abloom.

No noisy riot mars the scene;
Peace and perfection there abide;
The steps are white, the grass is green;
The lawns are glorious and wide.

It ever will be as it was—
A perfect street, sublimely fair,
That leads to paradise, because
One day she walked beside me there.

"Yep. Hatched out that bed of coxcombs by the fence."—Puck.

The Difference.

When a man's single his money he'll jingle;
He carelessly squanders his rocks;
He buys lovely collars and spends many dollars

His wife takes his money and buys for her honey
A forty cent mud colored shirt.

PLAN FOR STATE AID TO FARMERS

A Proposal To Prepare Small Tracts and Sell To Settlers at Actual Cost

The press and thinking men and women of the country have been giving much attention to a solution of the great economic question of inducing rural settlement, and perfecting some plan for farm credits. That some method must be devised by which the farming population may be increased and farm life made more attractive and profitable, is universally conceded. President Wilson and his three predecessors have appointed commissions to investigate but, as yet, no method has been presented.

Hon. John Manning, of Portland, in a recent speech before the Arleta Social Center, presented a plan for inducing the settlement and cultivation of rural lands from which, as a basis, he hopes to evolve a perfect plan which will result in great good to the people of the State. To promote this he invites every man and woman, to send him a card or letter approving or disapproving the plan and offering criticism and advice.

After enumerating the necessity for some action and the importance of properly solving this question, Mr. Manning tells of the operation of the English Land Act in Ireland, Governmental aid to the farmer in Canada, and recites the wondrous success of James J. Hill in inducing the settlement of lands along the lines of the Great Northern. He cites the fact that the head of a family with $1,000 or $1,500 capital cannot undertake the assumption of such a load as high farming land prices compel. Their capital does not hold out if they attempt to make a farm from the cheaper logged-off or burnt over lands, neither can they prepare to irrigate the fertile lands of Eastern Oregon.

Mr. Manning proposes the passage of such legislation as will enable the State to put all the tillable State lands into a condition ready for cultivation and occupancy—the clearing of logged-off or wild lands, irrigating or draining where necessary. The State to dispose of these lands in from 20 to 100 acre tracts to the actual bona fide settler at a price not to exceed the actual cost to the State in addition to a fair valuation for the land, the State to loan such settler enough money to build a suitable house, barn, fences, etc., and to purchase implements and stock, taking as security therefor a mortgage for 15 or 18 years, payable in small yearly payments at the same rate of interest the State pays for the money, say 4 or 5 per cent.

Mr. Manning also favors extending the privilege of borrowing this State money, or money from the help fund at this low rate of interest to all farmers and rural owners with the necessary safeguard that the money would be used for farm development; the State to issue 20-year bonds to be sold as the work of reclaiming the land progresses and the money is needed.

The State by this plan, would get a return of every dollar invested, with the interest thereon, in 15 or 18 years and would be able to meet the bonds thus issued when due, and without the loss of a single dollar to the State.

Mr. Manning also has a plan for a simpler method of marketing stock and farm produce. The gentleman cites instances under the present method of where the actual consumer has paid as high as 500 per cent more than was paid to the farmer or producer. He firmly believes that his "Back to the Soil" plan would make Oregon a State which could boast of a people of wealth producers and not alone of wage earners.
