Communist Activities for Overthrow Cited

How the Communist party operates and what it stands for were told members of the Hillsboro Parent-Teachers' association by Meryl R. Bacon of Portland police department in a talk before the local group at the David Hill school Tuesday night. For six months Bacon was a member of the Communist party to gain evidence against the organization and obtained valuable information.

His speech was in opposition to repeal of the criminal syndicalism law. The statute is designed to prevent unlawful or violent acts in obtaining industrial or political changes. Full-fledged members of the Communist party are professional revolutionists devoting their full time to bringing about a revolution, Bacon said. The only time off is that necessary for subsistence, according to party literature.

Extensive quotations were read from original documents of the Communist party by Bacon, who was secretary of the International Labor Defence as well as secretary of the Friends of the Soviet Union. Both are Communist organizations, the speaker said. He attended some of the advanced schools for the training of party workers.

Two-thirds of the earnings of Soviet workers in Russia go to the state to be used in building up surpluses for export. These export items are dumped in other countries to add to unemployment there and build up unrest in preparation for a revolution. The U. S. S. R. sells for cash and buys on the longest credit terms obtainable with the idea of renouncing all international debts when the time is ripe, Bacon said.

There are only 300 dues-paying Communists in Portland, but about 10,000 other persons belong to organizations sponsored by the Communists, he added. The latter embrace a large number of groups whose purpose is gradually to bend the members toward communism, the speaker declared.

Refreshments were served following the meeting. Entertainment included a dance by Collene MacDowell, a piano solo by Ann Peters, and group singing led by Miss Maurine Moore, with Mrs. Lyman Howe as accompanist.

Miss Boncquet Bride Thursday

The wedding of Miss Urbana Boncquet, daughter of Mrs. Theresa Pyck Boncquet of Cornelius, to Cornelius Susbauer of Verboort was solemnized in Saint Anthony's church, Forest Grove, Thursday, January 3, at 9 a. m.

The Reverend H. E. Boesch received the vows, blessed the union and celebrated the nuptial mass "Deus Israel Conjungat Vos." It was served by Charles W. Frank and Richard Hendricks, vested in Stephanie Dalmaties and Noel straps.

The bride wore a dark brown silk dress trimmed in ecru lace with a small brown hat to match. The bridesmaid, Miss Edna Susbauer of Roy, was groomed in blue tweed ensemble suit with blue felt hat to match. Charles Vanderzanden of Roy acted as best man.

The bridal procession was headed by Helen Jean Evansen, ring bearer, daintily dressed in pink crepe de Chine, trimmed with a blue satin sash, and wearing a large blue ribbon in her hair. The Vow Altar was profusely decorated with white carnations, red ilex berries and green ferns. The musical program was under the direction of Miss Mary Catherine Susbauer, organist of St. Alexander's church, Cornelius. At the end of the nuptial rite the pastor presented the newly wedded couple with a 12 by 18 inch artiste marriage diploma—Ad Perpetuam Rei Memoriam—emphasizing as he solemnly conferred the diploma, that the silk ribbons, two in number, binding together the diploma, were to remind them that marriage was a bilateral contract, which Christ Our Lord while here on earth raised to the dignity of a sacrament, binding them together for life. "What therefore God hath bound together, let no man put asunder."—Mat XIX, 6. Referring to the gold background on the inscription portion of the diploma, on which their names are written with indelible ink, the pastor reminded the newly wedded couple of the duty of preserving their mutual love as incorruptible as gold, the metal that never corrodes.

Following a short wedding trip Portlandwards Mr. and Mrs. Susbauer will make their home in Verboort.

Exit the Chiseler

Many of the policies of the National Recovery Administration program aim at remedying cut-throat competition, through broad Code regulations which now govern the entire printing and publishing industry.

Recovery under the NRA calls for individual sacrifice in a co-operative endeavor to restore business. It was designed to establish fair competition and increase purchasing power.

And with the advent of this new competition there passes from the picture the unscrupulous person, lately referred to as the Chiseler.

Too many of our merchants have done business with and been gipped by this parasite in the printing field. But the strict enforcement of wage regulations, hours of labor, and of quality specifications will put an end to his unfair practices. Public insistence upon high trade ethics and high standards of quality will also aid in serving an honest efficient business structure.

It is reasonable to expect more intelligent and skillful service from the Argus, whose personnel is devoting their entire lives to the local field of newspaper publishing and commercial printing, than from one who does not understand your business problems. The Argus can serve your best interests.

We operate under the sign of the Blue Eagle of fair dealing.
