The Future Farmers operating the ice cream concession in the Horticulture building were the envy of all boys during the fair. The FFs not only dished out ice cream to the public, but they also found time to eat between sales.

If boyish enthusiasm is any forecast of the future, the growing generation will be tractor operators. The tractor exhibits attracted throngs of boys who displayed as much interest and possibly more, than the young men and older generations.

Something should be done to provide more seating capacity at the Shute park auditorium. The size makes it an ideal gathering place for large crowds, but the standing position assumed by most of the audience fails to leave that feeling of satisfaction necessary to entire goodwill.

O. B. Kraus, superintendent of schools of the county, piloted the Bethany band from place to place Friday night in a series of serenades. On occasion, it is said, O. B. can even take his place with the rest of the musicians.

James Wells, president of the Hillsboro Men's Breakfast club, and master of ceremonies at the speakers' stand Friday afternoon, finally was compelled to admit that while there were a number of civic clubs in Hillsboro, the representatives thereof apparently were missing when he was introducing the list of notables.

Top hands of the range country and the show ring will compete for rich prizes in the Rodeo and Horse show at Pacific International Exposition in Portland.

While the educational side of the 26th annual Pacific International Livestock Exposition to be held in Portland October 3-10 will be bigger than ever, the entertainment side will likewise establish new records in clean, exciting fun, according to O. M. Plummer, general manager of the big show.

"We've signed up most of the champion buckaroos, ropers and bull-doggers of the Rodeo world, to pit their skill against the most notorious outlaw horses and toughest steers to be found in the range country," said Plummer.

"This year's Rodeo, coming as it does at the close of the big western shows, will have the benefit of all the top performers, who come to Portland for the finals to compete for the grand championship cowboy prize of the world."

For the Horse Show, too, there is a wealth of early entries representing the finest horses in the country and some of the best known riders and drivers of the national show rings. Highlight of the horse show will be an exhibition by a team of picked United States Army cavalry officers, who are rated as the best riders in the country. They will demonstrate the jumping course executed by contestants in the Olympic games in Berlin this year. Their appearance in Portland has been arranged through cooperation of the War Department and the army cavalry school at Fort Riley.

Added color for the mammoth exposition hall, whose roof covers 11 acres, will be provided by a new and striking decorative scheme, originated and installed by the chief decorator for the San Diego exposition.

Work of the boys and girls of the Pacific Northwest, as exemplified in 4-H Club work and Smith-Hughes vocational training, will again have a prominent place in the exhibits, as will also the products of industry and products of the soil.

Nineteen complete shows within one mammoth show constitute the 1936 exposition. These include dairy cattle, beef, swine, fat stock, draft horses, sheep, goats, dogs, poultry and pet stock, wool and mohair, dairy products, wild life, fruit, grain, and vegetables.

Portland has completed plans for entertaining the largest attendance of visitors in the history of the exposition, basing this estimate on advance inquiries already received and the record-smashing attendance at this year's Rose Festival.

Tuesday afternoon, Coach B. M. Goodman and his assistant, Reece Hathhorn, called the football squad together for a preliminary session. Forty outfits were issued, Goodman said, and prospects of a live team seem bright. Most of last year's men who were not graduated or disqualified, reported for the preliminary practice.

A shortage of books developed when the new rental plan for text books was placed in operation and efforts were being made Wednesday night to make up the deficiency through Portland book stores. The shortage was due to an unexpected demand for the rental books, coming, Barnes said, from nearly every student in the school.

Last fall, students turned in their books which were purchased by the school and the student given credit on his rentals this year for the amount allowed.

Thirty-five of the 104 Washington county schools opened Monday, according to O. B. Kraus, county superintendent. More will open next Monday morning and the remainder are scheduled to begin September 21.
