FSCC will Buy More Prunes Here

The Federal Surplus Commodities corporation announces that it will purchase from prune growers in western Oregon and Washington an additional 2500 tons of natural-condition dried prunes. Actual deliveries will be made during the period beginning March 11, 1940, and endng April 15, 1940.

The price and size of the new purchase will remain the same as in the previous purchase program. The grade requirements for natural-condition dried prunes will be the same as at present except that five per cent additional tolerance will be allowed for scab. This is principally for the benefit of localities where excessive scab is a factor.

Forms Distributed

The F. S. C. C. is mailing offer forms and purchase announcements to all growers who participated in the first program. Any grower who did not file an application under the previous program may obtain information and proper forms from his county agent. Offers must be filed on or before March 9, 1940, and deliveries will commence as soon as possible after that date.

The F. S. C. C. is just completing final deliveries on the purchase of 5000 tons of natural-condition dried prunes. The new purchase will make a total of 7500 tons of surplus prunes which will be purchased by the F. S. C. C. from growers in Western Washington and Oregon. All prunes purchased by the F. S. C. C. are distributed to state welfare administrations throughout the United States and its possessions for distribution to the needy and unemployed.

Sturgis Talks

Sturgis discussed fundamental issues which will divide the republican and democratic parties in the forthcoming elections and outlined briefly the comparative merits and demerits of the New Deal administration.

Leon S. Davis, chairman of the republican central committee, declared that lack of efficient administration has made a failure of the Rooseveltian government. Even the good legislation has been so poorly administered, he said, that it has not achieved good effects. He charged the Young Republicans with the task of meeting the nation's problems.

Others who spoke briefly were President John Hare and William Hare, prominent republican leader in Washington county. In attendance were Elesa Scott Keeney, Oregon Young Republican national committeewoman, Portland, and Paul E. Keeney, active in state Young Republican circles.

Outlook for Field Crops, Vegetables Said Improved

The outlook for spring sown field crops and vegetables in general is somewhat better than a year ago, according to extensive information and data contained in the annual outlook review of this important group of farm commodities just published for distribution in Oregon by the agricultural extension service. The principal basis for some improvement in the market outlook is the prospect of more moderate supplies of the products.

Domestic demand for farm products is expected to continue on a relatively high level during the 1940-41 marketing season, if the war in Europe continues another year or more, but foreign demand has been curtailed owing to the war, and farm costs are expected to be somewhat higher in 1940 than in 1939.

No Shortage Seen

Despite prospects for a wheat crop scarcely large enough for domestic needs, no shortage of wheat is expected owing to heavy stocks of wheat carried over. On the whole, present conditions indicate that reserves will still be well above average on July 1 1941, but probably around two-thirds as large as on July 1, 1940.

Ample supplies of feed grains and hay are expected for the 1940-41 feeding season in the country as a whole. The pig crop of 1940 is expected to be much larger than in 1938 but probably somewhat smaller than the record crop in 1939. Milk cow numbers are expected to increase as the number of heifers is greater than required for replacements, and moderate increase may occur in beef cattle and sheep if feed and range conditions are near average this year.

Increases Expected

Present prospects indicate increased production of potatoes, flaxseed and beans. The Oregon forage crop seed industry is expected to continue to expand with considerable increase in winter field peas, hairy vetch and chewings fescue grass seed, particularly.

The truck crop outlook is better than a year ago as surplus stocks and canned vegetables from the heavy pack of 1938 have been reduced to more nearly normal proportions than a year ago. Production of vegetables for manufacture in 1940 is somewhat uncertain, however.

Acreage of all commercial truck crops for marketing fresh is expected to be slightly larger than in 1939, although producers of late celery and onions may not follow the general trend. Late onion production in 1939 was especially heavy owing to high yields and a larger acreage than usual.

Zone Change Recommended By Commission

Reclassification of a small strip of property just east of the Hillsboro baseball park from residential listing to local business zone was advised in a recommendation to the city council passed by the planning board at a meeting in the city hall last Wednesday night.

The council will pass on the recommendation at its regular meeting Tuesday night and if the proposal is approved, will set a hearing date for possible objectors. The piece is described as lying between the baseball park and the east city limits and north of the state highway and south of an easterly extension of the north line of the baseball park.

Other action taken by the planning board included recommendation that the city council dedicate as a park area all the property lying between the old Tenth avenue highway and the highway as now constructed and approval of an offer by the local Garden club to plant the area with trees and shrubbery.
