Annual 4-H Club Leaders' Confab Here Saturday

'Food for Defense' Program Discussed

Farmers in Washington county may have an opportunity to increase their income for next year, they were told at eleven community meetings last week. Held specifically for the purpose of informing local producers of the details of the "Food for Defense" program, the meetings were attended by nearly 300 local farmers, according to William F. Cyrus, county agent.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard's statements concerning the quantities of needed food supplies were pointed out to local producers and these needs converted into estimated percentages of increase that could reasonably be expected in Washington county. Products in which we now have a national or world surplus are not in Secretary Wickard's list for increased production. Tose products for which increases are desired are those most needed by our lend-lease allies and are more necessary to improve the American dietary standard.

Products Listed

Milk, eggs, poultry, pork and lard, meat, and vegetables are crops grown locally that are specifically mentioned for lceal increased production. So far as local increases that are reasonable and economically advisable are concerned, the increases in production have probably taken place to a large extent.

Undoubtedly the number of cows that will be milked on Washington county farms on January 1, 1942, will be appreciably larger than the number milked on our farms on January 1, 1941. The desired increased production of approximately 13 million pounds of milk locally is accounted for in the production from a cow increase of 6 per cent., or approximately 1000 dairy cows. This number will not produce the 12 per cent more milk but the additional production can be obtained from the number of cows already milked by an average increase per cow of at least one quart of milk per day during the lactation period.

Dairymen Speak

Local dairymen indicate they believe such an increase not impossible and also indicate that they believe, for at least the time being it would perhaps be to the economic advantage of local dairymen to obtain this increased production where it can be done without new capital outlay for equipment and stock.

While stressing possibilities in these probable increased demands, County Agent Cyrus called attention to the fact that this is not the time to go in debt for expansion of the farm business. "Through improved feeding, where there is opportunity for improvement and feed is available, together with careful management, it would appear to be advisable from the financial standpoint to step up production if it is possible," he said. Farmers, the same as other businessmen or manufacturers, are not expected to produce products at unprofitable prices. Under recently approved legislation, minimum prices for agricultural products may be set at a figure of 85 per cent. of parity. That is not necessarily a profitable price in all cases but it represents an improvement over anything heretofore existing.

Slugs Bother

CHEHALEM MOUNTAIN—Slugs in the grain and other green crops here are becoming more plentiful and bait is being put in several fields with good results. Much seeding was done during the good weather last week, while other farmers began digging their late potatoes. A few finished harvesting them this week.

Full Program Planned for Club Delegates

The third annual 4-H Club Leaders' conference will be held Saturday, November 15, beginning at 10 a. m., at the Hillsboro chamber of commerce rooms, according to Palmer Torvend, assistant county agent. The committee has been busy arranging for an interesting and well-rounded program for both new and experienced leaders.

At 7 p. m., the annual banquet and installation of officers, with Rex. Putnam, state school superintendent, as speaker, will be held. Others on this program will be L. J. Allen, assistant state club leader, and several 4-H Club members with musical numbers.

Luncheon Set

A pot-luck luncheon is being arranged for the noon hour with Mrs. Silas Bechen and Mrs. Fred Courtwright in charge.

The complete program for the conference is as follows:

General assembly, 10 a. m.

Greetings to the conference, Mrs. E. Ray Miller, Hillsboro.

Time and good club work; Ideas for Achievement Day programs, Palmer Torvend, assistant county agent.

Recreation for club members, Kathleen McCrae, home demonstration agent.

How to obtain parent interest; Methods of presenting 4-H Club project material, Wayne D. Harding, county club agent, Salem.

Value of club members competing at fairs; To what extent can completion of club work be compulsory, L. J. Allen, assistant state club leader.

Parent-School co-operation, Mrs. Gladys White, Sherwood.

Value of Local Leaders' Organization, Mrs. Carmalite Weddle, Local Leader, Marion county.

Model 4-H club meeting, Mrs. Harriett Ford's club, Hillsboro.

Pot-luck lunch, 12 noon.

Question box, with Mrs. Weddle, Harding, and Allen assisting, 1 p. m.

The group will be divided into the home economics leaders under the direction of Miss McCrae, and the agricultural leaders under the direction of Torvend. Project information, Planning a year's program of work, and demonstrations will be discussed in each of these two groups, 1:45 p. m.

Adjournment is planned for 3:15 in order to give the leaders an opportunity to get back in time for the annual banquet at 7 p. m.

Harold Parmele Grange Master

DIXIE MOUNTAIN — The Dixie Mountain Grange met Friday evening, electing the following officers: Harold Parmele, master; T. N. Nelson, overseer; Bernice Singer, lecturer; Fred Singer, steward; Carl Tannock, assistant steward; Mrs. Ralph Kay, lady assistant steward; Mrs. John Gibson, chaplain; Fred Dudley, treasurer; Nellie Grant, secretary; Selmar Hendrickson, gate keeper; Mrs. A. Production Honor Roll Posted For Washington County Cows

Star, five-year-old registered cow owned by John Aydelott, produced 649.1 pounds of butterfat to head the list of Washington county honor roll cows with lactation periods ending in September, according to the current report of the county herd improvement association.

Heading the list in pounds of milk was an animal in the Arthur Connell herd which had a total of 14,733. The Aydelott cow produced 11,126 pounds of milk to rate high on the list in that classification.

71 Herds

A total of 71 herds in Washington county were tested in September by Marvin Adams, Russell Olsen, and Ray Retzlaff. They tested 2159 cows and found a 23.6 average butterfat. Five-hundred and eighty-five were over the 40-pound mark. The average in pounds of milk production was 603.

Thirty-seven cows were culled or removed from Washington county herds for the following reasons: sterility 7, udder trouble 6, low production 20, sale for dairy purposes 4.

Averages Given

The Oregon dairy herd improvement program's report of total testing done in all counties listed a total of 19,377 cows. The state average in pounds of milk was 620 per animal and for butterfat it was 30.7. A total of 743 herds were tested and 4,165 cows were over the 30.7 mark in butterfat.

Listed as a new member of the Washington county dairy herd improvement association was Allan B. Cathey of Hillsboro. Cathey owns 10 cows.
