Heesackers Write of Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Toni Heesacker, who are on an extended trip, have written to your correspondent from West Plains, Mo., about the places visited. They say in part: We have gone over 4293 miles so far and are at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Meyers. We went through central Oregon to Lakeview, Alturas, Cal., and south to Marysville, over Donner's Pass to Reno, Nev. From there to Virginia City, the liveliest little ghost town on earth, and then to Carson City, the smallest capital in the U. S. We saw the old mint building, which is now a museum and very interesting. Passed Lake Tahoe to Placerville, Cal., an old mining town. Went over highway 120 for Yosemite, but there was too much snow, so drove over 49 to Mariposa and Yosemite, where there are approximately 10 waterfalls at this time of year. There was some snow, but not enough to spoil the scenery in the lower park. The upper park was not open yet. Went on south to the Mojave desert, which was beautiful with Yucia and Beavertail cacti movely. On to Las Vegas, Nevada, and Boulder Dam and then the Grand Canyon in Arizona. Then on to El Paso, Texas, and on to the Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico. There are four and a half miles of caverns to walk through with three guides and over 350 in our party. From there on up through northern Texas and Oklahoma and on to West Plains, Mo. While here we drove out to Bronson, Mo., then down to Pyatt, Ark., and back to West Plains.

Local Delegates Attend KC Meet

Frank Waibel and Phillip Landauer were the Hillsboro delegates to the state Knights of Columbus convention Sunday and Monday in Salem.

More than 300 delegates from over the state attended the sessions, which were presided over by Syvester J. Smith, St. Paul grand knight of the order.

will go to 1000 at the opening of school next fall, Poynter stated.

The per-pupil cost of elementary education in Hillsboro compares well with the state average, the superintendent concluded, and the general economic status in the district justifies expenditures for education up to the state average.

A driver's license examiner will be in Hillsboro at the city hall Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

average, the superintendent stated.

The increase in the amount budgeted for teacher salaries in the new budget was brought by the need for adding two teachers for next year, one in the first grade and another in the eighth grade, Poynter said.

Maintenance Upped

Plant operation will cost more next year because of the added expense of maintaining new buildings, Poynter explained. The maintenance and repairs item was raised with the idea of doing a better job on the school grounds than has been done in the past.

At least four members of the custodial staff will spend about 16 hours a day on driving and maintenance of busses next year, the superintendent stated, since the practice of having men teachers drive busses has been found to have too many drawbacks for its continuance.

Enrollment Rises

While the budget of this district is showing an increase, the enrollment also has grown rapidly in recent years, the superintendent pointed out. The local elementary schools had the largest increase in history last year, with 128 new pupils enrolled and indications are that the 945 enrollment total of this year
