Chinese Girls To Enter School At Laurelwood

By Mrs. William Jensen

LAURELWOOD — Fred Wilber, principal of Laurelwood Church school, spoke at the Academy church service at 11 a.m., October 1, and told the interesting story of the adoption of his Chinese sister while his parents, Elder and Mrs. Edwin Himes Wilber, were missionaries in China. The Wilbers were pioneer missionaries, going to China in 1902, and remaining until 1914 when Mr. Wilber died and was buried at Pakhoi, China, and Mrs. Wilber and children returned to the United States. The little Chinese girl was the sixth girl in her family, and was rejected by her mother and was to be sold for 15 cents at a servant market, but another missionary, J. N. Anderson, bought her. Then their Chinese nurse wanted her for her own, and promised to keep her and give her an education. However she did not keep her word and sold the baby girl for $5 at a servant market in Hongkong, then other servants at Missionary Anderson's home told their mistress, who then hurried to the market with Mrs. Wilber, and they bought the three-weeks-old baby back for $5 and Mrs. Wilber kept her for her own, and five years later, while in the United States on furlough, the Wilbers had adoption papers made out in San Francisco. Elder Wilber gave many talks on the needs of China and would hold up the little Chinese girl before his audiences to illustrate while telling her story. In this way many thousands of dollars were gathered for missions for China. After their return to China little Oilene Wilber began her education. She studied in Shanghai and Canton and became a very efficient stenographer and bookkeeper, also an accomplished pianist and choir leader. She married a Christian Chinese and had two little girls, later her husband gave up Christianity and left her to raise the girls alone. She was driven out of her home during the second world war, then she thought of her adoption papers, and took them to the Counsel who advised her to hurry and board the last boat leaving for Hong Kong. Here she was employed as treasurer of the S.D.A. South China Mission until recently, and she decided to come to America in order to give her little girls a better opportunity for education. So Mrs. Oilene Wilber Liu and daughters, Rena and Juanita, are now enroute on the S.S. Gordon, and are expected to arrive about October 9. The girls will attend Laurelwood Academy as sophomore and junior students and live with their mother next door to the Wilbers on the Ida Wade place in Laurelwood. Mrs. Edwin H. Wilber, now 77 years old, of Deer Island, Oregon, is in Laurelwood, helping prepare the place for her Chinese daughter and two girls to live. She will remain with them for the school year.

Students to Have Vacation

Pupils of the Laurelwood church school will have a long week-end October 8 when instructors will all attend the combined teachers Institute for teachers of elementary and intermediate grades in the Oregon, Washington, and British Columbia S.D.A. Conferences. The Institute will be held at Gladstone Park, Gladstone, Ore., October 9, 10, and 11. Principal speakers will be Ed Matthers of the S.D.A. General Conference, Elder J. T. Porter of North Union Conference, Elder George Belleau of Oregon Conference, and several instructors from the Normal department at Walla Walla college.

Mrs. G. B. McAdams had her house painted by J. N. Strever of Laurelwood. Mrs. McAdams has 13 acres of filberts, and started harvesting them Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gibbon left for a two or three weeks visit Sunday. In Portland they will visit their son and family, the Ellery Gibbons. In College Place, Wash., they will visit their daughter, Lorene and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Blake and their two-week-old boy, Darrel William Blake. Mr. Blake, who is an industrial arts student at Walla Walla college, has two other sons, Merlin and Gaylord.
