A Kissing Preceptor.

C. C. Stratton, recently president of Mills Seminary, has been asked to accept the chancellorship of Willamette university. As alleged, Rev. Stratton left Mills on account of kissing the teachers too frequently, his removal to Salem will be a very interesting one—to Salem girls. Here is the matter in detail: "Four of the teachers in the college, it appears, made complaint that Dr. Stratton was given to kissing them. The doctor explains that as to one of them she was 'largely on the footing of a daughter' and she proffered the kiss in his wife's presence, and he took it. In one of the other cases, he explains, the lady also proffered the kiss. As to the other two cases, it is somewhat vaguely explained that they 'were not displeasing in the circumstances which led up to them.' The fourth lady, however, contradicts this very emphatically. She says that the good doctor embraced her in such a way as to leave no doubt in her mind as to his intentions. And so the kisses came to light and the doctor had to go." Dr. Stratton, though, has plenty of defenders, and it is possible it is a case of jealousy. There is generally some smoke in such matters.

Farewell Social.

The congregation of the Presbyterian church gave a most pleasant social at their church last Monday evening, in honor of Rev. G. H. Watt, who, during his residence in town, has rendered most efficient service to the congregation and Sunday school in the capacity of superintendent. On the eve of his departure he found in the box, the lid of which he desired to give him a souvenir of regard, and purchased a beautiful watch-chain therewith, which was presented to Mr. Watt with due ceremony, during the evening. Refreshments were present, and a most enjoyable time was had, with music, songs and games for the young folks in the basement. Refreshments were served both afternoon and evening, and will be served on Wednesday morning, as a train, and will go east over the Denver and Rio Grande route. In leaving our midst the people take with him the good will of the people, who trust that he will return to Medford as pastor, and is usually sat down to teacher and pupils as that here has been. He has five little children, who reside in Freeport, Ohio, whither he will go from here, after a goodbye visit to his home in San Francisco and other points in California. It is the intention to return to this coast somewhere in the near future.

Departed this Life.

Mrs. Fanny Pelling died at her home in Eagle Point last Wednesday morning. She was a native of Fredericktown, St. Johns, N. B., where she grew to womanhood. She came to Oregon with her father in 1853 and soon thereafter was married to Owen Clark, with whom she lived happily until he met his life by an accident in the mines. Five children blessed their union, of whom four are still living: Emanuel Clark and Thos. P. Clark, of Medford, Mrs. Ed Fleming of Willow Springs, and Emmett Clark, who lived with his mother until her death. In 1859 deceased was married to John Pelling of Eagle Point, with whom she passed the balance of her life, save a very ill with the malady which caused her final discomfort, two months ago, and the best medical skill in the land in Portland failed to afford her relief. She suffered immensely during the last few weeks of her life. Mrs. Pelling was a lady of many strong points of character, highly esteemed by all who knew her, and leaves many warm friends to mourn her loss. The remains were interred in the Catholic cemetery at this place yesterday afternoon, Rev. Father Grace officiating.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited, and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste, and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the springtime, or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.
