Always Love.

Because Love's sigh is but a sigh,
Doth it the less Love's heart disclose?
Because the rose must fade and die,
Is it the less the lovely rose?
Because black night must shroud the day,
Shall the brave sun no more be gay?

Because chill autumn frights the birds,
Shall we distrust that spring will come?
Because sweet words are only words,
Shall Love forevermore be dumb?
Because our bliss is fleeting bliss,
Shall we who love forbear to kiss?

Because those eyes of gentle mirth
Must sometime cease my heart to thrill;
Because the sweetest voice on earth
Sooner or later must be still;
Because its idol is unsure,
Shall my strong love the less endure?

Ah no! let lovers breathe their sighs,
And roses bloom, and music sound,
And passion burn on lips and eyes,
And Pleasure's merry world go round;
Let golden sunshine flood the sky,
And let me love, or let me die!

A DRAW BRIDGE ACROSS THE WILLAMETTE.—A scheme is on foot in this city says the Oregonian of Saturday, to construct a draw-bridge across the Willamette, connecting this shore with the high land at East Portland. We were, yesterday shown a draft of the proposed structure, together with a profile view of the river bottom, surveyed from the foot of Stark street. The survey was made by Mr. T. R. Brook, Civil Engineer, San Francisco. The drawings show a length of 1,464 feet, with six spans, including the pivot draw. The estimates and specifications are, for cubic yards of masonry, 5,464; cubic yards of stone filling, 20,889; 400 piles; 1,917,888 feet of lumber, board measure; cost, $149,042 88. This sum, it is stated, is the price at which a responsible firm of San Francisco is willing to take a contract. We are not at liberty to state at present, what steps have been taken or what may soon be done in the matter; but we can say that decisive measures will be adopted as soon as some preliminary affairs shall be settled. The bridge proposed is precisely such an one except as to length, as the Yolo bridge at Sacramento. That has seven piers built on piling, very heavily timbered; four spans of 147 feet each in the clear of piers; one pivot draw of 168 feet 9 inches in length; total length of bridge 804 feet; the roadways are 19 feet in the clear. The cost for spans was $78 per foot; cost of draw, $97 per foot. It was built several years ago, when material and labor were much higher than now. Mr. H. R. Leonard, civil engineer and bridge builder, of Sacramento, estimates that he can build a good wooden bridge now of the same width for $160 per foot. At that price the proposed bridge here, would cost $87,840; but the cost of material and labor being less here than in California; it is quite probable that a much less sum, say $60,000, may be made to complete the bridge. It is to be ardently hoped that the enterprise will be undertaken and carried to completion at an early day.

GARDEN SEEDS.—It is proposed that the American Institute Club co-operate to have foreign garden seeds admitted free of duty. Plain farmers will be astonished to learn that our people are such a miserable set of wretches that we import tuns of garden seeds every year from Europe. Seedsmen tell us that we get better seeds than are grown here; but when we ask them to name the kinds, they mention flower seeds, and perhaps peas. To a great extent the seeds distributed by the Agricultural Department are imported, as though we were colonists and had only commenced farming. A farmer's 18 year old boy, in talking with his old daddy about what crops they would raise, said they had better not sow any of this or any of that, because they could buy it cheaper. "Very good," says the old man, "but what are you going to pay with." The young chap had not thought so far, and was silent. In Barnum's old Museum there used to be a letter hung in a frame, from George Washington to his gardener, who had requested him to send him some garden seeds. George did not like the idea at all, but he sent some, and concluded in nearly these words: "This will be the last time; and I want you to understand that I cannot be eternally buying you garden seeds."

LEARNING HOW TO DO IT.—The Oregonians have had a hard experience in learning how to prepiar their products for shipment, and many articles of really superior quality have been oftentimes driven out of the California markets, for no other reason than that they were not in fit shape to offer for sale. Good bacon, for instance, has often gone begging buyers at reduced prices, where California bacon no better really, but nicely prepared, has sold at good figures. All this is being remedied in these latter days. Our people are learning, at last says the Oregonian, that appearances in the California markets, go for about as much as genuine merit, and are acting accordingly. We are led to make these remarks from noticing of late, packages of bacon, half Barrels of dried apples, salmon and many other articles, put up in very neat and inviting style, for shipment to San Francisco. Oregonians have many things yet to learn before they can go into every market on terms of equality with all other localities; but they are notably improving, and evidently on the road to knowing "how to do it."

TREATMENT OF POULTRY.—Secure your breed for what you want it. If for winter eggs get the Brahma; if for amount of eggs in summer, or during the year, get the Spanish. Some breeds will lay more, but smaller eggs; but none will give as much weight in the aggregate as the Black Spanish. There are other good breeds. Suit according to your notion or want. But make it comfortable for your fowls. They want to be happy, cheerful; to have enough to eat, with out gorging themselves; for a fat hen will not lay, at least, so well. Have good places to lay as well as to roost. Do not admit a disturbing element among them. Have a cock with them. Have warm quarters. Have water ready. Have ashes to wallow in. Give access to gravel, to burnt bone, to animal food; and vegetables, such as onions, cabbage, &c. Mix a little ground pepper with their food, two or three times a week. Put it in a preparation of cornmeal or sour milk. Do not exclude the pepper in winter. These little things are all aids, and only aids. A good breed well kept, and comfortably treated, will lay without all these accessories. Use, however, as many means as may be, or all if possible, and good will result.

STEAMED PUDDING.—One cup of new milk; one cup of molasses, one cup of fine chopped suet: one cup of raisins or currants; one-half teaspoonful of soda; a little salt, and flour to make it like soft gingerbread; steam three hours; eat with sauce.

Shipping in Bulk.

Speaking of a much needed reformer in the grain trade, the Alta says: We are informed that parties, have it in contemplation to build grain warehouses in this city, provided with elevators similar to those used at the grain marts in Chicago and Buffalo, for loading and unloading cargoes of wheat and barley in bulk. It is to be hoped nothing may interfere to prevent the realization of this project. The saving to the farmers and grain-dealers will be immense when we once reach the point of shipping all our grain exports in bulk. The surplus wheat of 1866 was, say 4,500,000 hundred and twenty pound sacks. The cost of each sack to the farmers was about twenty-two cents, or a total of $990,000. This was a dead loss to the farmers. It will be at least a fourth greater, or $1,237,500 for the present year. When wheat is worth $2 per hundred the farmers can stand this discount, but when it comes down to $1½ or $1 1-5—Western rates in a full harvest—they cannot stand it. All the grain of the West, and of Russia, is shipped in bulk. We must adopt the same plan or we cannot count upon successful and regular competition in the markets of Europe and the Eastern States. It will require a remodelling of our river steamers which do the bulk of the interior carrying-trade; but the saving in sacks for a single year, and in the cost of handling the grain, would more than build the necessary warehouses and new vessels. We had just as well do this thing now as postpone it. Sooner or later it must be done. Grain is our staple In less than a decade our average surplus wheat crop will be from thirty to forty millions of bushels; worth as many millions of dollars, and we can't afford to discount from twelve to fifteen per cent. of this amount each year in a waste of sacks.

PROPAGATION OF ROOT PLANTS.—Root plants are freely grown from small pieces of roots cut from the parent plant. We think few amateurs are aware how easily they may increase their stock of raspberries, blackberries, or of seedling pears, apples, quinces, &c., by simple pieces of the roots. Early in spring, dig the earth away carefully from around the tree or plant that you wish to propagate; then, with a sharp knife, cut from the roots pieces of from an inch to three inches long; take them to a piece of well prepared ground, raked smooth on top; lay them on it, at distances of from three to six inches apart; cover with an inch deep of clean sand, and then about two inches of peat muck, or light rotten leaf mold. Nearly every piece of root will grow, and in the fall present you good strong plants.

THE FIRST IN THE MARKET.—Since the acquisition by our Government of Russian America, the attention of many of our people has been attracted that way, and several of our acquaintances have expressed a determination to migrate thitherward during the summer. We notice, however, that while many are thinking and talking, Messrs. Allen & Lewis are acting. A lot of goods, consisting of flour, dried fruit, soap, wrapping paper, etc., from their house, was placed on board the Fidelitar yesterday says the Oregonian of saturday, marked "P O D, Sitka." This will probably be the first shipment of goods to reach Sitka from any point in the United States, since the territory changed owners.

A GREAT PLOUGH.—The great Fowler steam plow has been in successful use in England for the last ten years, and is capable, in all kinds of weather, of going thoroughly over an acre of ground every hour of the day. The plow, which is at New Orleans, was constructed at a cost of about £2,500 sterling, and was sent over here for the purpose of being tested on the immense plantations on the banks of the Mississippi.

OYSTER SOUP.—Two quarts of water, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one of butter, three eggs one pint of milk; boil the oysters in the water a few minutes, then moisten the flour with a little cold milk, and add to it, together with the butter, milk and beaten eggs; salt and pepper to taste; stir gently all the time it is boiling; then toast two slices of bread and cut in small pieces, put them into your tureen and pour the soup over them. It requires but little boiling.

MINUTE PUDDING.—Mix five tablespoonfuls of flour with half a pint of cold sweet milk, a very little salt, one-fourth of a nutmeg; stir it into a pint and a half of boiling sweet milk; boil one minute, stirring constantly; set it off from the fire until it gets lukewarm; add three beaten eggs; stir until it boils, and eat with cream and sugar.

REMEDY FOR MOLES.—Cut apples or potatoes in pieces about the size of a pea and roll them in strychnine or arsenic. Then make several small holes where the moles run, and drop one or more pieces in each hole. In a short time the moles will disappear. Another exchange says that a few seeds of castor bean, scattered about their haunts, will destroy ground moles.

TEST FOR WOOL.—The quality of wool is tested by taking a lock from the sheep's back, and placing it on a surface representing an inch in length. If the spirals count from thirty to thirty-three in that space, the wool is equal to the finest "Electoral" or Saxony wool. The staple is inferior accordingly as it takes a lesser number to fill up the same space.

COCOANUT-CAKE.—Whip the whites of ten eggs, grate two nice cocoanuts, and add them; sift one pound of white sugar into half a pound of sifted flour; stir this well; add a little rose-water to flavor; pour into pans, and bake three-fourths of an hour.

CUP-CAKE.—Cream half a cup of butter and four cups of sugar by beating; stir in five well-beaten eggs; dissolve one teaspoonful of soda in a cup of good milk or cream, and six cups of sifted flour; stir all together, and bake in tins.

PLAIN SWEET CAKES.—Take a half pound of butter, three-quarters of a pound of sugar, a little mace, and five eggs; then beat lightly, adding to it one pound of flour. Cut it into small cakes.

POOR MAN'S CAKE.—Three cups of flour; two cups of sugar; one-half cup of butter; two eggs; two teaspoonfuls of cream tartar; one of soda; one of salt.

MUFFINS.—Two eggs, two cups of milk, three and a half cups of flour, a small piece of butter, one teaspoonful of soda some salt and a half cup of sugar.

GINGER CAKES.—One cup of sour milk, two cups of sugar, half a cup of butter, seven cups of flour, half a teaspoonful of soda, ginger to suit the taste.
