Mr. Fielden, one of the grand jurors, [illegible]

Sec. 3. Petit jurors should be held in the prec[illegible] of January, the fourth in February and August, the third in March and September, Wednesday the fourth in April and December; Lane the first in May and October; Polk the second in May and October; Benton the third in May and November; Douglas the fourth in May and November; Jackson the first in February, May, August and November.

Sec. 4. When any person shall be detained in prison, or recently charged with a criminal offence, the judge of the district, and in case of necessity, whenever or where suddenly, then any other judge may appoint and hold a district court for the examination and trial of such prisoner, at which time a grand jury may be called, who shall have concurred from the judge ten days notice of holding such court for their trial; and such notice may be given by summons of per[illegible]

Sec. 5. The judges of districts may hear and decide all causes and motions at law and in equity, arising or pending in their respective districts which may require the supervision of a jury, taking from the jurors from their notice of the time and place of holding, and at the request of both parties may hear jury trials, and try the expenses in cases of nonsuit.

Sec. 6. The judges may exchange districts and hold courts for each other at pleasure, and when a vacancy shall happen, or a judge shall be sick or absent, or otherwise unable to attend, it shall be the duty of the other judges to supply the place, so far as the same can be done without omitting any regular court in their own districts.

The county of Tualatin shall be attached to the county of Yamhill for judicial purposes, and the county of Linn shall be attached to Clackamas for judicial purposes.

Sec. 8. This act to take effect from and after its passage.

Passed Council and House of Representatives, Dec. 20, 1853.
