To the Democracy.

The late unpleasantness is now over; the smoke of the battle has passed away and the result of the fight within our own ranks is a complete rout in the State, and partial defeat in this and several other Democratic counties. The Republican party, our common enemy, profiting by past experience, marshalled their hosts in solid phalanx and moved on to an easy victory. They are now gloating over their victory and reveling in the spoils of their conquest. Let us also now learn wisdom by our sad defeat, cease our internal bickerings and rally to the support of Democratic principles, and as Paul said "Laying aside every weight let us run with patience the race set before us," fight only the common enemy and victory will perch upon our banners in November, and Oregon will be redeemed from Republican rule and will be among the Democratic States in the Presidential contest next Fall. Organize, organize, is now the watchword, and while the Republicans are resting easy in a confident belief in future as well as past victory let us renew the attack and we must, can and will rout them "horse foot and dragoon." Bitter feelings were in many instances engendered in our late county contest among good and faithful Democrats, but those feelings should no longer remain and should in no instance cause us to forget our obligations to the good old Democratic party and desert our principles. "Let the dead past bury its dead," let by gones be by gones, and we will yet win. A Democratic President will not only be elected this Fall but will be inaugurated next March, and we want Oregon placed where she belongs—among the Democratic States. There will be nothing to prevent a straight party vote this Fall, and if every Democrat in the county will do his duty and get everyone of his Democratic neighbors to come out to the polls on election day, we will give the majority that our valley friends expect us to give and that we can and should give. In view of the importance of the election we call upon Democrats everywhere to organize and harmonize and put every shoulder to the wheel and work with "might and main" for victory.

INDIAN RESERVATION.

About two months ago an effort was made by Pendleton citizens to induce Government to throw off so much of the reserve as lies between Pendleton and the bluff south. It was understood that the Indians would relinquish whatever right they had to the land and allow the town to be built out on to the flat. A survey was made and the thing was represented to the Interior Department and word came back that if the Indians were willing, the land, to the amount of a half section, might be taken for town purposes. Now we are probably in a worse fix than ever—the Indians claiming about half the present town, and a long line of red tape to be followed to the end, which will last, as everybody knows, till a Democratic President is elected and the present Indian policy done away with.

It has seemed to be the aim of the last two administrations to take all rights from the whites and give to the Poor Le's—more than their share—and the people of Umatilla county, and Pendleton in particular, are getting heartily sick of it, and it will be a most surprising thing if the people of this county don't throw off all allegiance to the Republican party and vote almost solidly for the Democratic nominee for President, which will mean the opening up of this whole reservation to settlement by whites.

A BILL just passed by the Senate, (Gov Whitaker's bill), to reduce the price of land within the limits of railroad grants to $1 25 an acre, is a move in the right direction. The Pacific Railroad Companies, says an eastern exchange, have fed up millions of acres of the best lands in the West, holding them for better prices. When they accepted these grants they would have been very glad to take the equivalent in money at rate of $1 25 an acre. The grants were made on the theory that it was good public policy, and the people should have some show to get the lands at a reasonable price.

What a pity the people of this State did not return Mr. Whiteaker to Congress. Republican papers claimed, during the canvass, that Whiteaker had done nothing. Those settlers on the public lands who were thus deceived will, now see, when it is too late, the truth of our assertions, made at the time, that Whiteaker had been an efficient worker.

The people of Pendleton met at the court house a short time ago and passed a resolution calling a mass meeting at the court house on the 10th day of July to consider the question of dividing the county. Since then it has been suggested that a convention be called and each precint be represented in the convention in proportion to the number of votes cast for members of Congress at the last election, giving one delegate for each 50 votes so cast, and one for each fraction over 20 votes, and giving Blalock precinct, that held no election, 2 votes. This will give Blalock 2, Cottonwood 1, Milton 6, Mountain 1, Weston 6, Centerville 4, Greasewood 4, Pendleton 7, Meadows 2, Umatilla 2, Lower Butter Creek 1, Leos 1, Lower Willow Creek 1, Heppner 5, Upper Butter Creek 1, Alta 3; total, 47. It is also recommended that each precinct send a full representation and that no proxies be allowed, though that matter can be arranged when the convention meets.

Tilden Withdraws.

CINCINNATI, June 21—2:30 A. M.—The New York delegation held a late session tonight, and toward its close, Wm. Peckham read a letter from Samuel J. Tilden, declining "renomination and re-election." His letter, which is long, reviews his entire political career, and much of it is devoted to bitter talk about the events preceding Hayes' inauguration.

THE CANN CASE.—The jury in the case of T. H. Cann and H. C. Owens, in the third judicial district, returned a verdict yesterday in favor of Col. Cann for $700. It is generally understood that the jury for a long time stood eight to four in favor of allowing Col. Cann the full amount of $2000 claimed.—Ex.

Seymour declines to be nominated for President.

The Chicago Platform.

Since the close of the war the Republican party, in all its National conventions, has indulged in unlimited boasting of past achievements, and generally maintained profound silence as to its plans and purposes for the future. Ignoring its steady and persistent aggressions upon the Constitution, the maladministration and corruption which have been the distinguishing characteristics of much of its governmental work, the class legislation, the reckless extravagance and the degredation of public morals, which have been its most conspicuous fruits, it has sketched the record of its earlier years and demanded continuance in power as a reward for the alleged performances of its youth.

Even if this party's report of its own deeds were honest, if it had achieved all it claims to have done, if it had been as great and good in its adolescence as now, in its age, it declares itself to have been—even if all this were admitted and undeniable, it would not by any means follow that its demand for continued confidence and support should be honored. Piety in youth does not atone for a wicked old age. There might be excellent reasons for condemning and retiring a party in 1880 that had done the country good service fifteen or twenty years earlier.

But the report which this party, through its National convention, has given of itself, is not honest. It lays claim to the performance of acts which it did not perform. It monopolizes all the patriotism and statesmanship of the country. It seeks to be credited, as a party, for work performed by the patriotic people irrespective of party. The Chicago manifesto starts out with the monstrous falsehood that the Republican party suppressed the rebellion. There was not a delegate in the convention who did not know, when this assertion was made, that but for the co-operation of the great mass of Northern Democrats, the efforts of Mr Lincoln's administration would have been utterly futile. Democratic Governors of Democratic States and the Democratic masses throughout the North were as much relied upon as their Republican neighbors to carry on the war to a successful conclusion.

And this reliance was not misplaced. In the rank and file of the Union army there were more Democrats than Republicans, and in every emergency the Democratic party of the North stood by the old flag from the inception of the struggle until peace was restored. Even Mr. Grant went into the war a Democrat, and there was not a particle of evidence on record that he changed his politics till many months after the war had ended. His first decided leaning toward the Republican party was at the time when, as a member of Mr Johnson's Cabinet, he was proven guilty of falsehood by the solemn assertion of all the eminent men who were associated with him in that Cabinet.

Equally false and absurd is the claim the Republican party abolished slavery. It did nothing of the kind. It distinctly declared that it did not propose or intend to abolish slavery. It repudiated any intention of such a purpose as a calumny. Slavery met its inevitable death as a result, not a purpose of the war, and whatever credit may be due for that achievement belongs as much to the majority of Democrats who carried muskets in the ranks, as to Mr. Lincoln, or the Cabinet, or Congress.

The Chicago platform makers point with pride to the financial record of their party. That record consists, in part, of flooding the country with irredeemable paper money that sank so low that it took $2 85 of it to buy a dollar. For this depreciated paper the Republican party gave bonds, payable in the same kind of currency, and, after the war was over, pushed a resolution through Congress pledging the faith of the Nation to pay the Nation's bonds in specie. That was one of the great crimes of the age. It was a measureless infamy, a cold blooded, heartless robbery of the masses to enrich the bondholders. Our denunciation of this crime is in accordance with the utterances of many leading statesmen of the Radical faith. Even John Sherman believed and said that the bonds were payable in paper, and he was in harmony with many abler Republicans than himself. But this robbery was not the full extent of the wickedness perpetrated by the Republicans at the dictation of the bondholders. Having doubled the National debt by changing it from paper to specie, they next proceeded to destroy half the means of payment by demonetizing silver, thus again doubling the debt.

As to the matter of credit for resumption, there ought to be no reason for further discussion. The Republican party could never have resumed without the occurrence of a series of natural events, which made Europe send us gold for food. And even with this aid there could have been no resumption but for the immense reduction in our annual expenditures effected by the Democratic party, as soon as it got control of the House. These are admitted facts among such members of all parties as are accustomed to speake the truth.

Most of the series of declarations constituting the Chicago platform are meaningless generalities, to vague and nebulous for discussion. They state no issue, they declare no purpose, they are such commonplace as no one will care to challenge. Samples of this class are found in the educational and religious sections of the document.

The allusion to polygamy is simply nonsensical. The marrying of more than one wife or husband is a felony under the laws of the United States, and it is no more necessary for a convention to denounce polygamy than larceny, robbery or forgery.

The Chinese immigration resolution is so indefinite as to possess no significance or value. No man can tell what it means. In fact it was artfully designed not to mean anything. It is a piece of truckling that will not help the party. The people of the Pacific slope are not to be fooled or trifled with in this matter. The Cincinnati convention will have courage enough to take hold of this question and speak with sufficient clearness to be comprehended.

The indorsement of Mr. Hayes' administration is not wise. There are many indefensible acts which no party can afford to ignore. The alleged purity of the Administration is a myth. It has been in many respects, as corrupt in its career as it was in its conception. We have heretofore shown some of the crimes which this indorsement covers. Others will be brought up for inspection as the campaign goes on.—Washington Post

Fight with the Indians—Six of the Red Devils Killed.

WEISER BRIDGE, Idaho, June 5, 1880.—Dr. Slater came down from the Upper Weiser to day and brings further news from the party who have been on the trail of the renegade hostiles. I did not see the gentleman myself, to learn the particulars, but he says they came upon the red devils in a canyon near the Heath mining district, eight in number. They made five good Indians by sending them to the happy hunting grounds. The other three were surrounded in the head of the canyon, and their only show of escape was to desert their ponies and take to the snow.—Idaho an

It is time Lieut. Farrow and his Cayuse Indians were in the Mountains again.

THE following telegram, reported to have been sent to Mr. Garfield, just after his nomination, speaks for itself:

We are having our daily winds with some very pleasant weather.

Professor Arnold is taking the census of the people over here.

Mr. W. F. Forwood sold his house and lot to Wm. Kirk last week; consideration $500. Mr F sold a house and lot for $1200 a few months ago to J. Sperry. He expects to build the third time.

Mr Huleson is erecting a large warehouse at the mill for the purpose of storing grain.

Mrs. F. A. Logan Robinson is here in the interest of magnetic healing. She gave an interesting lecture last evening.

OPTINE.

NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPETITION.—The House Pacific Railway committee have agreed upon the plan of a bill to extend the land grant of the Northern Pacific Company. Its main features are: (1) An extension of time for the completion of the road for six years from July 4, 1880. (2) When enough money shall be realized by the company from sales of land to complete and equip the road and telegraph line, the remainder of the grant to revert to the United States. (3) Settlers to be allowed to purchase half a section each from the company and no more. (4) The officers of the company to be under supervisory control of the Secretary of the Interior, who may examine them under oath touching the sales of land and cost of construction of the road.

At the Democratic convention, Cincinnati, Susan B. Anthony, Matilda Joslyn Gage and Tillie D. Burke, of New York; S. A. Spencer, of Washington, D. C.; Elizabeth A. Merriweather, of Tennessee; and others of the women's suffrage association, are there to present their claims for the ballot to the Democratic party. They have established headquarters in one of the rooms at Music Hall.

METHODISM.—At the last Methodist conference, held in Cincinnati, the committee on itinerancy, by a vote of twenty-eight to twenty, decided to report that women already have all the rights and privileges in the Methodist Church that are good for them, and that it is not expedient to make any change in the book of discipline that would open the door for their ordination to the ministry.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.—A special dispatch from Kalama yesterday states that a young man named Charles Miller, aged about 22 years, was caught under a falling tree near Ologua Station on the N. P. R. R. Wednesday afternoon and instantly killed. He was employed in felling timber and getting caught under the descending trunk was horribly mangled.—Oregonian.

JOHN A. SUTTER, the discoverer of gold in California died at Washington last week. He formerly owned a large grant of land in California. Sacramento city now stands upon a portion of his old possessions. By reverses of fortune he died poor. In 1850 there seemed to be no end to his wealth, but to-day it is all in other hands.

AINSWORTH.—This new town at the mouth of Snake river claims to have the largest steam saw mill in the upper country, the capacity of the mill being 80000 feet daily. The power is obtained from a 120 horse power engine.

Heavy floods in Dakota and Minnesota—the country is represented to be literally under water—nothing like it was ever known. Great damage to crops is anticipated.
