Oregon Notes.

Nearly all of Havana's large business is now with the United States.

Fifteen carloads of Bartlett pears have been shipped from Medford this season, netting the growers $1 per box.

James Harlan, formerly United States senator, and for a short time secretary of the interior, died Friday, at his home at Des Moines.

Since last seeing our Eastern shores Dewey extended our Western shores 7000 miles. It was a long jump, but it was a great battle.

Eight hundred boxes of apples were shipped from Myrtle Point last week by the enterprising firm of A. H. Black & Sons, to San Francisco, by way of Marshfield.

A Salem hop man has figured that the yield of hops in the valley this year will be 85,000 or 90,000 bales, and that the average will be 1017 pounds per acre. The total cost of marketing hops this year is put at 6 cents.

The battle-flag of Terry's Texas Rangers, captured by an Indiana regiment during the war of the rebellion, was Friday returned to the remnant of the Rangers by Governor Mount, of Indiana, and party at Dallas, Tex.

Since prunes have been made part of army ration, and such large quantities are required, and since they can be raised better and cheaper here than anywhere, the prune industry in Oregon ought to gain something of an impetus during the present year.

Hon. E. S. Platts, of Sixes River, was in town Saturday, and brought us the largest tomato ever seen in Port Orford. It was sound, smooth, without a blemish, and measured a foot and a half in circumference.—Port Orford Tribune.

In 1877 the Transvaal was practically bankrupt. Gold mining soon after became a paying industry, and in 1889 the direct receipts of the treasury from gold mines were $8,996,070. Members of the Volksraad now receive a salary of $6000, or 20 per cent more than the pay of an American congressman.

On October 10, a convention will meet at Peoria to discuss the construction of a ship canal between the Mississippi and Lake Michigan, by way of the Illinois River. One point certain to be made prominent at the meeting is the enormous increase of late of the lake transportation of freight. This goes eastward because there is no waterway connecting with the Mississippi River.

The assessment roll of Jackson county for 1899, just returned by the assessor, shows a total reduction under the roll of 1898 of $900,000, of which amount $650,000 is a reduction in the assessment of railroad property. The remaining $250,000 is the total reduction for the balance Jackson county. The valuation of the roadbed of the railroad company is reduced from $10,000 to $4500 per mile, and the railroad lands are assessed at about 60 cents per acre, a reduction of nearly one-half.

President McKinley's brother, Abner, has been doing the Far West on a pleasure trip. He won't be interviewed on politics. In a recent talk with a Seattle reporter he is noted as follows: "From the mere fact of my relationship to the president undue weight is given to any statement I may make. Now I am not a politician and never have been. I have never held a political office, have never been a candidate for one and never expect to be. I am a lawyer, pure and simple, and have practiced my profession for eighteen years in New York city, although I still hold my residence in Ohio. I don't know that I want you to state this, but the truth is, I have often allowed elections to go by without returning to Ohio to vote, being detained by business in New York."

The Booth-Kelly Lumber Company some time since leased the Coburg saw mill, with the option to purchase. Last week W. E. Brown and wife deeded by quit claim the mill and all rights and privileges owned or vested, to construct, enlarge, maintain and operate a mill race running to the mill; all of the J. C. Goodale saw mill property at Coburg, together with the saw mill, planing mill, blacksmith shop and offices situated on the premises, together with all tools, implements and machinery now on hand; also office safe, all supplies on hand for mills and shops; also all logging tools, ropes and supplies on hand, to the Booth-Kelly Lumber Company, for the sum of $15000. The mill has been remodled and an electric plant is being placed in to permit the mill to run night and day. It is expected that it will saw 100,000 feet of lumber when it starts up per day.

A Skagway Romance.

The following from a Skagway paper is about a young man in Albany a few months ago on a visit with his sister, Mrs. A. R. McCoy:

Mr. W. A. Wrenn, of Joseph, Oregon, who has been in Dawson for some time, came out recently to meet Miss Mabel Barnard at Skagway, for the purpose of marrying her. On his way out he was taken ill and on reaching the gateway city was taken to Bishop Rowe hospital where he has been confined for six weeks with typhoid fever. A few days after his admission to the hospital, Miss Barnard arrived on the scene, and has since been administering to his wants awaiting his recovery. Last night the happy couple were made one in the parlor of the Golden North hotel by Judge Sehlbrede. "All is well that ends well."

Father and Son Marry Sisters.

Justice Thomas McCann within 24 hours joined in holy bonds of wedlock Joseph Hartman and his son, Adam, to the two Bordee sisters, Katie and Gertie.

An interesting complication of relationships thus arises. Of course Gertie who married the father, Joseph Hartman, will be both stepmother and sister-in-law to the son, Adam Hartman. Hence, if Adam and his wife have any children Gertie will be grandmother to her nephews and nieces, but Katie, the son's wife, will be aunt to her father-in-law's children, and Adam will have to be an uncle to his own half-brothers and sisters. The children of the father will be aunts and uncles and cousins to the children of the son. The wife of the father becomes her own sister's mother-in-law and father and son become brothers-in-law.—Cincinnatti Enquirer.

Hail to the Hunter.

Oh, we're getting under cover, for the "sport" is on the way—
Pockets bulge with ammunition, and he's coming down to slay;
All his cartridges are loaded and his trigger's on the "half,"
And he'll bore the thing that rustles from a deer to Jersey calf.
He will shoot the foaming rapids and he'll shoot the yearling bull
And the farmer in the bushes—why, he'll fairly get pumped full.
For the gunner is in earnest, he's coming down to kill—
Shoot you first and then inquire if he hurt you—yes he will—
For the average city feller has ring necked China's on the brain,
And imagines in October that its mete that they be slain.
Therefore some absorbed old farmer cutting corn or pulling beans,
Gets most mightly astonished with a pellet in his jeans.
So, oh neighbor, scoot for cover or get out your armor-plate—
Johnnie's got his little gun and is swooping on the state.
Oh, we're learning, yes, we're learning, and I'll warn you now, my son,
If you really mean to bore us you must bring a bigger gun.
For the farmers have decided they will take no further chance
And progressive country merchants carry armor-plated pants—
Carry shirts of chain plate metal, lines of coats all bullet-proof
And the helmets they are selling beat a Knight of Malta's "roof."
So I reckon that the farmers can proceed to get their crops
Yes, and chuckle while the pellets rape their trouser seats and stops;
And the hissing double B shot as they criss-cross o'er the main,
Will excite no more attention than the patter of the rain.
And the calf will fly a signal, and the Jersey bull a sign,
And the horse a painted banner, reading: "Hoss; Don't Shoot; he's Mine!"
And every fowl who wanders from the safety of the pen,
Will be taught to cackle shrilly, "Please don't plug me; I'm a hen,"
Now with all these due precautions we are ready for the gang,
We'll endure the harmless tumult of the shot gun's crack and bang,
For we're glad to have you with us—shoot the landscape full of holes—
We will back our brand-new armor for to save our precious souls.
Oh, you feller in the city, these 'ere words is full of fun,
We've got on our iron trousers—so come up and bring your gun!

STEAMER EUGENE SUNK.

A Hole Six Feet in Length Torn in Her Bottom—She is Beached.

The Steamer Eugene reported to have been sunk last Monday now lies beached a short distance below Albany.

She had on a cargo of flour and 2,000 bushels of wheat. It is reported that the entire cargo is a total loss and it is doubtful if the boat can ever be fixed so she will be useful.

The damage done to the hull is a hole 6 feet in length in her bottom and being otherwise badly torn up.

The accident happened while under a full head of steam. Striking a log.

Captain Jim Smith, one of the oldest rivermen now on the Willamette river, was in charge.

A prominent shipper this morning stated that Captain Smith had sunk every boat that he has been in charge of on the Willamette river during a long period and that he has done nothing more than make good his record of sinking every craft he has had in charge. This, however, he said, was not due to Captain Smith's qualifications as a navigator of the Willamette but attributes it to ill luck.—Salem Capital Journal.

The boat has since been repaired and is making regular runs again.
