BANDON NOTES

Bandon, Nov. 26.

Unable to get beds in the city two men entered the city jail and made themselves comfortable. They were compelled to yield their cozy quarters at midnight by the arrival of the marshal with parties who had earned a night's repose by being drunk and disorderly.

The Bandon Athletic Club is advertising an exhibition in athletics Saturday night, when there will be given two games of basket ball. The first 15 minute halves between picked teams of Bandon's girl athletes. This will be followed by a game between the Athletic Club's regulars, and the old time stars of the town, with 20 minute halves. Between the halves, and between the games, will be enlivened by special stunts of boxing, wrestling, ring and trapeze work and bag punching. The gymnasium is now fully lighted with electricity.

J. Denholm, formerly of this place, but now of Portland is in town with his family visiting friends and arranging matters in his extensive business interests here.

C. E. Hollopeter, manager of the Electric Light company, fell on a slippery sidewalk yesterday and as a result is quite serjously lamed.

The band boys who went to Coquille with the Eagles, at the recent installation, complain of ill treatment at the hands of a hoodlum element there, and also of the fact that there was no attempt by any other element to restrain the said hoodlumism.

Mrs. A. J. Young was surprised by a party led by the Ladies' Relief Corps, auxiliary of the G. A. R., Friday night; the occasion being her birthday, and herself a pioneer of Coos County. A good time is reported.

The initiatory degree in Odd Fellowship was conferred upon Attorney G. T. Treadgold Wednesday night by the local lodge.

Attorney R. H. Smith, from Coos Bay, is a business caller in Bandon today.

Lots 6 and 7 in Block 24, Marshfield, sold for $1500 four months ago. Query: What were lots 1 and 2 in same block worth then?

Did You Ever Hear a Sound Shadow?

Sound shadows are as mysterious and as delusive as shadows of light. Mariners who trust to their ears alone when they are on dangerous coasts are said to run in great peril. Sound shadows are formed within which the ear detects no trace of the signal, although the fog whistle may be blowing full force and the sound may be perfectly audible beyond the range of the shadow.

Sometimes a bluff rising just behind where the fog whistle has been placed suffices to produce a sound shadow. In such a case the sound appears to ricochet like a cannon ball bounding over the water. It may be audible at one mile, inaudible at two, audible at three, inaudible at four miles, and so on. But the intervals between the audible and the inaudible points may vary greatly. Other sound shadows not easily traced cause even greater trouble.

—Heaters and ranges at Milner's.
