EDITORIAL.

City politics are mighty wa'am.

Edward Warren, suspected of setting the fire which destroyed Canyon City, was captured at Sumpter Saturday.

Next week we will tell you exactly the proper way to vote. You will agree with us, to be sure, when you know our rules.

In city politics, throw aside all jealousies and work for results that will prove beneficial to the present and future progress of our city, and "keep your shirt on."

It is true that "Politics make strange bedfellows. A comparison of the situations of the city campaigns of 1897 add 1898 will prove it beyond a doubt. Two men who fought each other bitterly, are now candidates on the same ticket.

Governor-elect T. T. Geer arrived in the city yesterday on the afternoon train, and is the guest of Hon. Jas. W. Welch. The object of the visit of Mr. Geer is to inspect the tug service at the mouth of the Columbia, and to gather such other data while here as may be of value to him when he assumes executive control of the state in January. Mr. Geer is determined to become thoroughly posted on the needs of the different sections of Oregon, and has visited many parts of the state to acquire the necessary information. He will return to Portland today.—Astorian, 18.

A Salem despatch to the Oregonian says: Prosperity is no dream with farmers. The good prices for hops and prunes, better prices for wheat, good prices for wool, rise in the price of lumber, and ready market for all farm products, have conspired to attract the attention to rural occupations and make better the demand for farm land. A local real estate dealer expresses the opinion that revival of interest in realty has come to stay. He expects an advance in the price of real estate in the spring. There is a general looking up of business in this locality. Collections are much easier. Farmers are exspending labor and capital in fencing, repairing, grubbing out new fields and buying new machinery. Merchants are preparing for a bigger holiday trade than usual. There are few idle men on the street, and there is comparitively no complaint of a scarcity of employment." Just such reports appear in almost every paper of Oregon. and the query naturally arises, "Can all these reports be buncombe?" Some might be paid for lying. When it becomes universal, it is hard to believe that every writer is a liar. If you don't believe these reports of prosperity, what is your reason?

A message from Tacoma says: The ship Atlanta, which has been wrecked on the Oregon coast, sailed from Tacoma last Saturday afternoon, Captain Charles McBride commanding, with a crew of 27 men. The vessel was loaded with 1753 tons of wheat for Cape Town. She was a trim, first-class ship, in good condition when she left this port. Captain Charles McBride was a resident of Greenock, Scotland, where he has a wife. The ship left here with 27 men, the only names known here being those of the captain and the following, who joined the vessel at this port as seamen: D. F. Green, of Dublin; J. Webber, of New York; S. A. Jacobson, of Stockholm; J. Smith, of Finsbury; G. Covalis, of Callao; J. Tones, of Valparaiso; N. Sorensen, of Bergen; G. Fraser, of Philadelphia; R. Codd, of Liverpool, and J. Marks, of Indianapolis.

Wants Information.

Salem, Or., Oct. 9, 1898.

HON. C. B. CROSNO,
Dear Sir:

This being a short session and my place on the Ways and Means committee largely occupying my time, I have been unable to take up some matters of interest to the people of Lincoln county, chief of which is, I think the salary bill. The present unsatisfactory manner of fixing the compensation of county officers should not continue, and before I take the matter up at the coming regular session I want an expression from the citizens of the county, irrespective of politics, as to what salaries should paid.

One party, I believe, at their county convention last spring passed some resolutions relative to salaries which undoubtedly expresses their views in the case. However that may be, I will be pleased to have suggestions from every one, as I think the amounts to be paid should be determined only after the fullest and freest exchange of views and should be just to the tax payers of the county as well as the officials.

This is an important matter and I hope to be fully informed of the wishes of the citizens of the county in ample time to introduce a bill to carry them out.

I have written similar letters to others, and I hope this matter will be considered.

This is all that I will refer to now as anything else can be considered later.

Yours truly
G. E. DAVIS.

The Lost Atlanta.

Far from out the sable shadows, of the dark and cheerless night,
When the mighty ocean rose in angry gloom,
Where the flying sand and vapor veiled away from mortal sight,
Sped a vessel to her sad and awful doom.

In the dark hours of the morning, where the drifting sands are deep,
In the towering waves she foundered on the shore.
Hearts that wait for joy are fated, and in anguish they will weep
For their loved ones will return to them no more.

They are resting 'neath the waters, where the billows surge and sweep,
'Neath the breakers' crumbling crests of snowy white:
Many homes are draped in mourning, for their loved ones fast asleep,
They are resting in an ocean grave tonight.

Pussies.

Several days agone a large number of very active and squally kittens were turned loose on the bill opposit Barney Morrison's store just at train time.

Barney was not asleep by any means and very soon discovered the poor little orphans, and concluded the matter a joke only half played. So he proceeded to play the other half.

With unerring marksmanship his gun repeatedly cracked until he bagged the entire covey. Then he repaired to his domicile and wrapped each inaminate form carefully in paper, marking each one plainly Pussy No. 1; Pussy No. 2; etc., etc.

This labor of love being accomplished, he securely enclosed the entire catch and expressed them to Jack Simpson, to whom he ascribed the first half of the joke. Jack loves a joke, but when he got the bundle of dead kittens—Oh, well, he never said a word, not a word.

A Sure Sign of Croup.

Hoarseness in a child that is subject to croup is an indication of the approach of the disease. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough has appeared, it will prevent the attack. Many mothers who have croupy children always keep this remedy at hand and find that it saves them much trouble and worry. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant to take. Sold by O. O. I am very pleased to state that since I took the agency of Chamberlains medicines the sale has been very large, more especially of the Cough Remedy. In two years I have sold more of this particular remedy than of other makes for the previous five years. As to its efficacy, I have been informed by scores of persons of the good results they have received from it, and know its value from the use of it in my own household. It is so pleasant to take that we have to place the bottle beyond the reach of the children. E. J. SCANTLEBURY
