The Pacific Coast Baseball League closed the season Monday. Los Angeles won the pennant and Tacoma beat Portland out of tail-end honors—by a small margin. Now watch Tacoma crow!

We disclose no secret when we state that Congress is again in session. Congress is a necessary evil. It appropriates money for keeping the Columbia river's mouth open and does several other things.

A recently issued authoritative statement of party expenses in Presidential campaigns reveals the fact that it cost the Democrats $4,100,000 to elect Cleveland in 1892, this being about double the amount ever spent by any party in any other campaign. If our memory is not at fault, the victory was not worth that much to the country.

Women must obey the laws, therefore they should have a right to do their part in choosing the lawmakers. Many of them are taxpayers, therefore they should have a right to a say-so in matters of taxation. This is the plain English of the whole business. The woman who doesn't want to vote will not be forced. The woman who wants to vote should be given the opportunity. The man who is not willing to extend this privilege to women is a mean old cuss—and his initials are Harvey Scott.

The Roseburg Land Office will soon be doing business again. Last Friday night President Roosevelt named B. L. Eddy of Tillamook as Register of that office and James M. Lawrence of Bend as Receiver. Senator Fulton recommended Eddy for the Registership several months ago, but his choice for Receiver, Prof. Narregan, was turned down, and Lawrence appointed. Being a newspaper man, the latter is naturally believed to be all right. Mr. Eddy is one of the best known and most highly respected citizens of Oregon, and his appointment will please a host of friends.

William C. Bristol of Portland has been appointed by President Roosevelt to succeed Francis J. Heney as United States District Attorney for Oregon. It is reported—and the report is undoubtedly correct—that the President acted without consulting Oregon's delegation, Senator Fulton. Bristol was the choice of Heney, who, it is reported, will continue to take the lead in conducting the land-fraud cases in Oregon. This will enable Heney to keep an eye or two upon Mr. Bristol, no Oregon man being altogether above suspicion of the National Administration, of which Heney, although an active Democrat, is one of the main guys. Bristol is probably a good man, as reported, but the insult which Senator Fulton has received from the President is unwarranted. Roosevelt might as well go a little further and place Oregon under martial law. The people of this state are as meek as oysters, and wouldn't think of protesting.

Too long women afflicted with husbands who come home drunk every Sunday have confined themselves for redress to ineffectual weapons, like prayers, tears and scoldings. Mrs. R McKinstry has made a decided advance in the ancient art of dealing with a drunken husband. Her method is in every way commendable, and should be widely imitated. She provides herself with a good, substantial ax-handle, and when her husband and his friend Busch enter the house bringing their usual jags, she sailed in upon them. Both the method and her application of it are praiseworthy. She spared her husband, who, presumably, contributes more or less to the support of the family, but the friend Busch she smote with the ax-handle of the Lord and of Gideon, and, having smitten him hip and thigh, she turned him over to the police, who hauled him away to a dungeon. We admire Mrs. McKinstry's conjugal forbearance; but if her husband comes home drunk next Sunday there is really only one fitting use for the ax-handle. May the police in the meantime not deprive her of it, and may her nerve not fail at the critical moment.—Oregonian.
