The Stoves. Stoves made of tiling are in general use in Austria. They are said to be superior to iron stoves on account of the great economy of fuel possible by their use.

THE WONDERS OF THE FARM. Now the country has a charm For the boarders on the farm And, delighted, they its mysteries explore, plow, plow, plow. And the wonders grow apace As with wise and solemn face The old farmer stuffs them full of rural lore, lore, lore. In horse-chestnut trees around There are mare's nests to be found, And the axle-trees have iron nuts to crack, crack, crack, And the milkweed churned at night Makes the buttercups so bright And the ducks to little gooseberries say "quack, quack, quack."

Where the cattails hide away Do the pussy-willows play Till the dogwood tree frights them with its bark, bark, bark. And the cow-stalks in their ears By the weeping willow's tears Aad potatoes shut their eyes when it is dark, dark, dark. With pine needles from the trees Farmers sow the seeds with ease And the honey combs the rows of cabbage heads, heads, heads. And the rooster turns to crow And the egg plants hatch, you know, All the chick-weed that is running on the beds, beds, beds.

Coming back to Ireland, it is found, according to the official figures, that 47,107 emigrants abandoned in the year 1900 the country to which they are so deeply attached. These figures represent 10.5 per thousand of the population. They show an increase of 3,347 over the figures for 1889 and 13,000 over those of 1898. Since the beginning of the reign of Victoria the population of Ireland decreased from 8,000,000 to 4,500,000. The laws in favor of the farmers, the establishment of elective county councils and the numerous lines of railway have had no effect upon emigration.

But the strange thing about it is that the same phenomenon is observed in Australia, in New Zealand and in all the countries inhabited exclusively by Anglo-Saxons. The London Daily Telegraph gives a cause for the phenomenon which may perhaps be a true one, and this cause is none other than the rebellion, often noticed by close observers, of the Anglo-Saxon women against maternity—a rebellion which is the consequence of their passion for independence and that constantly increasing desire to become equal, if not superior, to men in the intellectual occupations and in physical exercises. In saying this we refer particularly to American women. For the ladies of the law, and the medical, and journalistic ladies maternity is a nuisance. Just as it is for those whose greatest delights are bicycle riding, tennis, golf and hockey.

FEW FAMILIES ARE LARGE Births in Great Britain Have Decreased in Recent Years. There have been many surprises in the census of Great Britain recently taken, and much concern has been manifested throughout the kingdom over evidences it presents of national retrogression. While the emigration from Ireland increases from year to year, a curious phenomenon is observed elsewhere in the United Kingdom. The number of marriages is increasing and the number of births decreasing. There never were so many marriages in England as there were in the year 1890. But the records of the birth rate run down to the lowest figure. England, that was so proud of her increase in population, from 12,000,000 to 40,000,000 since the commencement of the French revolution, while during the same period the population of France increased only from 25,000,000 to 38,000,000, now finds her population diminishing.
